MORE BABIES IN COLLEGE HOMES IS CRY

Danger to Nation Seen By Child Welfare Leaders in Plea of Professors' Wives That Salaries Block Births

Barrows Remains Silent As Women in All Walks of Life Support the Views of Would-Be Mothers

BERKELEY, Oct. 16.—There must be more babies in academic families if the standard of American citizenship is not to fall. This was the cry today of leaders in child welfare activities following statements made by wives of University of California faculty members that the low salaries paid college faculty men prevented them from raising families.

"Give us more money and we'll have children," came the ready answer from the academic wives in question headed by Mrs. Harold Bruce, wife of a professor in the university's English department, who was responsible for starting college and lay circles with a frank statement of the position of the college wife in the current issue of the University Chronicle, official publication on the campus.

Other developments in the campaign for higher rewards for the college faculty man following the firing of the published broadside of Mrs. Bruce and her collaborators, eight other faculty women, were these:

A statement from Professor H. R. Hatfield, dean of the faculties at the University of California, who declared that figures were being prepared to present to the next session of the legislature showing just how poorly paid the faculty members in comparison to other professions and occupations.

The continued silence of President David P. Barrows as to whether or not he considered his new salary schedule as "adequate" for the raising of families.

An avalanche of support from women of all walks of life reinforcing the plea of younger wives on the campus that they be not denied the privilege of motherhood.

PRESIDENT OF MOTHERS' CONGRESS COMMENTS: "University professors and their families have demands made upon them of which the average family has no knowledge," is the comment of Mrs. W. H. Marston, second district president of the Congress of Mothers.

"It is true that probably the majority of children are brought into the world in homes where the wage is lower, but we must consider the children and what they are getting out of life. It is true, also, that the salary of the university man has not increased in the past few years at the same rate as has that of the laboring man. And this despite the fact that the college man has unusual demands made upon him which his laboring brother does not know exist."

That the salary scale recently put into effect at the University of California is lower than that of eastern universities is the declaration of Dean Hatfield.

Where Is U. S. To End in Birth Strike? Is Query

As a leader in child welfare work in the State, Mrs. W. H. Marston, of Berkeley, president of the second district, California Congress of Mothers, today declared that there is a danger signal in the statements broadcast by the university women.

"What is to become of our nation if these leaders in the intellectual and moral development of the present day refuse to bring children into the world?" she demands. "It is a known fact that many people of fine intelligence are deliberately limiting the number of children while the irresponsible are bringing large families into existence. The question we must consider seriously is this: Where are we going, where shall we finish?

College graduates are taking the subject of motherhood seriously. I know of one sorority at another university where a definite check is being kept on the number of children born among its members. The cry is for better childhood. Yet if these fine people represented in our American universities are not encouraged to have children and the other irresponsible group continues at its present rate of multiplication—what is the answer to be?"

OLD FREE MARKET ZONE ABOLISHED

Council Passes Ordinance to Ban District After Heated Arguments

After listening to arguments from market men, farmers, sanitary inspectors, merchants and commission men, the city council this morning gave final passage to the ordinance which abolishes the old free market district bounded by Sixth, Washington, Market street and the eastery.

The old ordinance which permitted the use of this zone by market men and itinerant farmers was abolished by a 4-1 vote in the council, Commissioner Harry Edwards casting the negative vote.

John Rohan, owner of the Sixth Street Market, said he would consider his next move. Some time ago he announced that he would consider a recall or a Superior court injunction if the ordinance went through today.

OWNERS NOT DECIDED ON NEXT MOVE. "I do not know," he said, after the council session. "The next move, I see, is up to me; but I have not made my decisions."

The discussion was held in the presence of a large audience. At the east, City Attorney Leon E. Gray advised the council that the ordinance, 1220 N. S., is invalid anyhow as it is "discriminatory" and "allows special privilege" by permitting market men to do in one portion of the city what other market men in other districts are not permitted to do.

"The zone," said Gray, "allows the street area to be used for purposes other than the purpose for which it was created."

BRITISH PAY 50 MILLIONS IN INTEREST

First Installment of Overdue Amount on Four-Billion War Debt Remitted to U. S. Through Morgan Firm

Plan to Reduce Burden Every Six Months Expected to Aid Largely in Clearing European Finance Maze

By DAVID M. CUTTCH.

International News Service Staff Correspondent. LONDON, Oct. 16.—The first payment by any of the allied powers upon war loans of approximately $10,000,000,000 advanced by the United States was made today by Great Britain, when the treasury department turned over $50,000,000 to the American government through J. P. Morgan & Company at New York, American fiscal agent of the British government.

This is an installment on overdue interest upon the $4,277,000,000 lent by the United States to Great Britain in war-time loans and credits. It is believed by British government officials that the beginning of interest payments will go far toward unearthing the inter-allied debt tangle. Payments are to be made at intervals of six months.

The check was drawn against the British government's account with J. P. Morgan & Company, in favor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

While the actual date was Sunday, October 15, it was decided to make the payment today instead of Saturday, because Saturday is a "short finance and markets day."

The British government's credit with J. P. Morgan & Company consists of gold shipments, bonds and American dollars which the treasury department has been buying in large quantities for some months past. The check is payable through the Federal Reserve Bank of New York to the general account of the United States treasury in American dollars, not in British pounds sterling.

France to Ratify Washington Treaty

PARIS, Oct. 16.—(By Associated Press.)—Premier Poincare will advocate the immediate ratification of the Washington naval treaty when he appears before parliament shortly, it was stated in a reliable quarter today.

Poincare will announce that the French government is of the opinion that the treaty should be ratified at once. There will, it is understood, be no question of a reservation or change in phraseology, but simply straightforward approval of the Washington accords as they stand.

Boys Take Coin, Guns, Set Forth On Quest Led By Blind Chief

Somewhere out on the highway is the queerest procession. It is the "Four-strong Gang." In front is Frank Mariani, sixteen years old. His brother John, who is seven, is guiding him by the hand. Lawrence Spear and George Haberneck—they are twelve and eleven years old—follow.

Frank Mariani is led by the hand because he is blind. Yet he is the chief. Back of his sightless eyes is the brain of a born leader, the same kind of brain that has made Napoleons, Rockefellers and Roosevelts.

It was he who organized the gang, recruited guns for each of its diminutive members to shoulder, got the necessary financial backing—surprisingly from his father's purse—and led his followers forth to adventure.

There was no particular reason for the four boys' reason. They have been talking highway, railroads, hunting, box car rides, farming, for days. Frank Mariani did most of the talking and encouraging. In this as in everything that takes place among boys in the neighborhood of lower Fruitvale avenue where he lives, he was the projector.

His father says he missed $25 after the boys, with no word of warning, disappeared yesterday morning. Other boys who did not join the caravan, tell of Frank setting out to raid on weapons, and succeeding so well that all four boys departed armed. They took some clothing and other supplies, too, folded away into a suitcase that Larry and George shouldered by turns. The uninitiated say they hear talk of Glen Ellen as an objective, so that the quartet may be now somewhere near the Valley of the Moon.

It was a dynamite cartridge that lost Frank Mariani his eyesight, when he was only five years of age. He laid it on a stone and hit it with a hammer and the explosion that followed robbed him forever of his sight. Mrs. C. Wall of 668 Fruitvale avenue, knows the family well.

"His blindness has never kept him from taking his place with the other boys," she says. "In fact he has always been a leader of the boys around here. In play, whether it was innocent or not, he has been the organizer. They all take their orders from him."

With John holding his hand he is leading them again. His family, who live at 666 Fruitvale avenue, would give much to know where the four are. Larry Spear lives at 781 Peterson street and George Haberneck next door.

Weeks and Pershing Protest Army Cut

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Secretary Weeks and General Pershing called on President Harding today to present their reasons for believing the military policy of the government cannot be maintained adequately with a regular army of less than 13,000 officers and 150,000 enlisted men in place of the present strength of 12,000 officers and 125,000 enlisted men. It was understood they laid before the president specific instances in which the reduction would be injurious.

$10,000,000 to Be Asked of Federal Government For Hospitalization; Federal System Is Denounced

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 16.—(By the Associated Press.)—Bitter resentment of a federal writ enjoining 47 New Orleans saloons from selling liquor during the convention week was voiced today before the opening session of the American Legion national convention by George I. Berry, of Tennessee, first vice-commander. He declared that Americans who thought enough of their constitution to fight for it in France, needed no federal injunction to make them obey the law in their country.

The American Legion opened its fourth national convention here today. Meeting in a converted warehouse on the Mississippi river front, decorated with flags of the allied nations, and red, white and blue bunting, the legion heard the reports of its national commander and adjutant.

Practically every state in the union was represented as well as a number of territorial possessions and representatives of posts of the legion in foreign countries.

California, outstanding contestant for the 1923 national convention, arrived here clad in bronzed battle black hats, red shirts and knee boots, the costume of the "49ers."

COUPLE REUNITED IN POLICE COURT

Old Sweethearts, Estranged 35 Years Ago, Meet Before Judge; Will Wed.

A misunderstanding and a few harsh words sent Nellie Anderson one way and James Turner another. That was thirty-five years ago, when both were young and full of love for life.

Today Nellie Anderson and James Turner faced each other in the courtroom of Judge Mortimer Smith. From Mrs. Anderson's face youth had fled, like the stars fade at the breaking of dawn. And tomorrow James Turner will claim his bride and save her from a term in the city jail.

Then known by a stage name, the Nellie Anderson of today was as sweet as the rose of morning. She was so full of life that her theater in Seattle was packed to its doors. With her on the stage was James Turner. They loved each other, and the day was approaching when the minister would be called in to make them as one. But that day never came. Instead, there came another suitor, and quarrel. Turner went one way and his love another.

Castaways From Fire at Sea Tell Own Stories of Peril; Praise for Captain and Men

SAN PEDRO, Cal., Oct. 16.—After the U. S. Army Transport Thomas had nosed her way into the Wilmington Channel here this morning and been greeted by a mighty cheer from the piers as the hawser lines were made secure at 7:47 o'clock, the rescued castaways from the Los Angeles-Hawaiian liner City of Honolulu had an opportunity to tell their versions of the fire at sea; the descent into small boats; the hours drifting on the open ocean as the liner burned; their rescue by the West Faron and their final transfer to the Army transport on her way home from Manila which was to bring them safely into port.

Chief Officer W. J. Robbins of the City of Honolulu, the last man to leave the ship with Captain Lester and the chief radio man, was the first survivor to land. His wife wrapped her arms about him and sobbed a greeting. Other members of the family cuddled up close to him. It was a touching scene.

Miss Mindel Deutsch, San Pedro school teacher, followed, and then came the Misses Murray of San Pedro, Gladys and Genevieve. Anxious parents whisked them away in waiting automobiles.

Mrs. L. K. Baker of Hollywood and her two grandchildren, Barbara and Patricia Hilliard, were next.

CHILDREN STOOD WITHOUT WHIMPER. "The children behaved wonderfully," said Mrs. Baker. "They didn't even whimper. It was magnificent the way Captain Lester handled the situation. Shortly after the fire broke out we were all aroused. It didn't look like anything serious until we had breakfasted and everyone began dancing and singing to keep up good spirits and allay the fears of any who might be timid. Suddenly the great hull aft became a roaring furnace with dense clouds of smoke issuing from the hatches and portholes. "Shortly afterward, Captain Lester, in his calm and collected way, announced that everybody would leave the ship. We were put over the side and were in the small boats before we realized the seriousness of it all. Captain Lester and several of his officers remained aboard until the fire became so hot and terrific that they, too, had to take to the small boats in order to keep from being burned to death. The sea was calm and the weather clear, and no hardships were endured by anyone between the time we took to the boats and the hour when we were picked up in the afternoon by the freighter West Faron.

CASTAWAYS CHEER RESCUE SHIP. "A mighty cheer went up when the rescue ship appeared on the horizon as a black speck and then grew larger and larger until it was right upon us. The Faron picked us up and we enjoyed a warm meal.

"The following morning we were transferred to the Thomas, which had stood alongside early in the morning. I cannot praise too highly the officers of the Thomas for the splendid treatment they gave us.

"All through the night, flames shot skyward from the burning palace of the sea, illuminating the heavens for miles around. It was a wonderful sight, but pathetic. Flames were chewing at the very heart of the liner. The mast fell, then a funnel. A terrific explosion followed. The blue-white flames leaped into the air like a great geyser."

Little Barbara Hilliard, when asked about the fire, said blissfully: "Oh, yes, it was a great big

BRITAIN DECLINES DRY SEARCH PACT

U. S. Assured Every Precaution Will Be Taken to Halt Rum Smuggling.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—(By International News Service.)—The "dry" search pact, against the "doughy" rum policy, was lodged with the state department today.

Count Charles de Chombrun, charge d'affaires of the French embassy in the absence of Ambassador Jusserand, called at the state department and acquainted the American government with the French viewpoint.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—(By the Associated Press.)—Great Britain in a communication delivered today to the state department, is understood to have declined to agree to the suggestion of Secretary Hughes for a reciprocal agreement of the right of search and seizure so as to give the American prohibition navy jurisdiction outside the three-mile limit.

At the same time, the British foreign office assured the American government that every precaution would be taken to prevent violation of the American prohibition law by rum smugglers under the British flag. It was said that Canadian and other port officials had been instructed to prevent so far as possible the issuance of fraudulent clearance papers and other improper practices complained of in Secretary Hughes' prohibition note.

The British communication in reply to the one sent to London by the state department several weeks ago, was presented to Secretary Hughes by the British ambassador, Sir Auckland Geddes. Although department officials would not discuss the subject there were indications that the refusal to accord a reciprocal right of search outside the usual limits of territorial waters would be considered as finally blocking any extension of authority to prohibition officers.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The government's contention that a rum runner may be seized outside the three mile limit but within four leagues of the coast if it can be shown she has been carrying on illegal traffic with the American shore was upheld by Federal Judge Hazel today in a case against the British schooner Henry L. Macbeth. Judge Hazel granted application for condemnation and forfeiture of the schooner and her cargo of 12,050 cases of liquor.

FIRE SHIP'S CREW HELD FOR PROBE

Officers and Men of City of Honolulu Are Kept On Thomas While Federal Officers Make Investigation

Salvaged Voyagers of Sea in Happy Mood As They Walk Down Gangplank; Some Borrowed Clothes

By WILLIAM PARKER. (International News Service Staff Correspondent)

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 16.—That there was almost continuous trouble with the electrical system of the City of Honolulu from the time the vessel left the Hawaiian Islands until fire was discovered aboard the ship early Tuesday morning was the declaration of passengers when they came ashore from the United States army transport Thomas today.

By ASSOCIATED PRESS. LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE. LOS ANGELES, Oct. 16.—The officers and crew of the steamship City of Honolulu, which was destroyed by fire off Honolulu last week, were held aboard the transport Thomas early today, while federal officials investigated the disaster. The crew and the passengers arrived at San Pedro about midnight aboard the Thomas after they had been rescued from small boats by the freighter West Faron and later transferred to the Thomas.

By WILLIAM PARKER. (International News Service Staff Correspondent)

WILMINGTON, Calif., Oct. 16.—Salvaged voyagers of the sea, the 74 passengers and 186 members of the crew of the burned Los Angeles-Hawaiian liner City of Honolulu disembarked here today from the United States Army Transport, Thomas.

After discharging her cargo of survivors, the transport Thomas cleared for San Francisco at 10:30 a. m.

The passengers were in a happy mood when they walked down the gangplank, even though some were clad in parts of clothing hastily snatched when the fire raged aboard the liner early last Thursday morning when the Los Angeles-bound vessel was 670 miles from its destination.

Although the transport Thomas arrived off the San Pedro breakwater at 11:30 o'clock Sunday night, the passengers were held in quarantine until noon, when the customs service officials, invoking the time honored law of protecting this ancient rule, its origin a mystery to modern mariners, forbids passengers from foreign ports disembarking in American harbors if the vessel arrives between sundown and sunup. Thus the salvaged passengers last night impatiently paced the deck of the transport, hoping any hour to be allowed to go ashore.

As the Thomas steamed easily up the inner channel shortly before 8 o'clock this morning, the thousands who had waited at the dock all night sent up a cheering of greetings, and whistles of nearby factories joined in the chorus. The former passengers of the City of Honolulu lined the decks of the Thomas and waved to friends and relatives.

United States Shipping Board officials boarded the Thomas before she left quarantine and refused to allow any newspapermen or camera men to go aboard. One camera man persisted in going on the ship and attempted to climb up the side of the vessel, but fell in the ocean and had to be rescued by a launch.

Meanwhile, through the night, the government quarantine doctors slept peacefully in their bungalows ten miles away.

Although unwilling to be quoted, several of the passengers declared they would endeavor through their congressional representatives to have the law of pratique repealed.

The International News Service correspondent went to sea in a water taxi and while the big white steamer was breasting a rough sea in the Santa Barbara channel, he obtained a composite interview via megaphone with the rescued passengers.

From the fragmentary narratives called through the ship's megaphone, what follows is the story of the ship and the fire which broke out on the City of Honolulu.

The liner was completing her maiden voyage to Honolulu, being on her return trip to Los Angeles from the Hawaiian Islands. Before the World War the vessel was the Friedrich der Grosse, of the Hamburg-American line, and from the masthead proudly flew a flag of Kaiser Wilhelm, for she was the emperor's private yacht.

BOULEVARD PLAN ADDS HIGHWAY TO CITY SCHEME

Extension of Clay Street to Berkeley Line Proposed For Future.

A map of a proposed future boulevard running from Fifteenth and Washington streets to Forty-seventh street, between Telegraph and Grove, has been completed by Landscape Architect Howard E. Key as one of the many suggested "city betterment" plans for the improvement of Oakland.

A movement is already afoot for the extension of Clay street to Twenty-fifth, cutting across San Pablo avenue diagonally, in a slightly different direction from Clay, and running parallel with Telegraph and Grove. The Key boulevard plan would extend this highway to Forty-seventh or to the Berkeley line, and terminate the road with a park or monument.

The plan has not come to the engineering department, according to City Engineer W. W. Harmon, who says that no estimate has been made of the cost.

fire. But I wasn't scared, was I grandma?"

WIRELESS OPERATOR DRIVEN OFF BY HEAT.

"We left when it got too hot," was the comment of Chief Radio Operator Bell. "My last message to the rovers of the sea was, 'We're leaving; goodbye.' The Farallon, Enterprise, Casiana and Thomas all intercepted our S. O. S. calls and we knew that help was on the way. The Farallon was only fifty miles away and replied, 'We're coming—be of good cheer.' The Thomas also sent encouraging messages before we abandoned the ship."

Besides having all the earmarks of a drama in which death had been defeated, the arrival of the Thomas also brought memories of the sunning days following the end of the world war when Yankee troopships put into New York and other Atlantic ports with great cargoes of fighting men.

Eight hundred fighting men of Uncle Sam's army, returning from the Philippine Islands and China were aboard the ship in command of Major H. E. Mann. Lieutenant R. L. Hammond, Ninth cavalry, was adjutant on the returning troopship.

LAUGHTER GREYS SALLIES OF CLOWNS.

"We asked for liberty and they gave us prohibition," chirped the red-headed clown of the ship.

"If you don't marry me, I'll shoot you," said his cotton-topped assistant.

A great wave of laughter swept over the forecastle.

Praise for Captain H. R. Lester was sung loudly by Captain Hammond, troop adjutant aboard the Thomas.

"He handled the situation so well," said Captain Hammond, "that the passengers didn't realize the danger until it was all over and they had been rescued by the West Farallon and later transferred to the Thomas. It was a ripping example of fine seamanship and great courage," he said.

"Positively the finest way to spend a honeymoon," was the comment of Mrs. George L. Martin, bride of a Los Angeles rancher, returning on the Honolulu. "I'm sure we love each other all the more for this experience."

If M. Butler, weight 230 pounds was thrown headlong into a lifeboat when one of the guide ropes broke, "I landed," he said, "on a couple of sailors. What worries me is they laughed."

"I liked it in the lifeboat best," said Patricia Hilliard, aged four.

"Mickie," cat of the City of Honolulu, refused to be brought home with other survivors. She had away about the West Farallon and is now on the way to the Orient.

TWO PASSENGERS ON THOMAS ARRESTED.

Two of the rescued passengers were arrested aboard the Thomas yesterday, following radio advice. Leslie Downey Atkinson, first class passenger, was held for alleged embezzlement of funds at Pearl Harbor. Private Gonnelli, steward, was said to be wanted by postal authorities in Honolulu.

Mrs. Louise McCloskey, believed to have become mentally deranged, will be taken into custody by a sheriff and placed in the psychiatric ward for observation. Advice from her son told of her condition.

SAN FRANCISCO IN WRITING ATTIRE.

"From all I could learn, the fire started in one of the staterooms on what is called the 'F' deck," said Ed Lachman, a San Francisco furniture dealer, who was forced to flee from his stateroom in his pajamas and wore only a discarded pair of seaman's trousers and an old jacket when he was met at the dock by his brother.

"We were awakened by the ringing of our telephone bell about 5:30 o'clock Thursday morning," continued Lachman. "The telephone operator told us in a cool tone of voice that there was a fire on board and that the captain wanted all passengers to come on deck at once, and to put life preservers about us. This was my first experience in a sea accident and I lost no time in obeying instructions, pausing only to fasten a life preserver about my wife. When we went to the upper deck, I had on only my pajamas and she her night robe."

"When we got there, practically all of the other first class passengers were gathered near the bridge. It was still an hour before sun up and a chill wind was blowing, but the men were unusually smooth. It seems that there were aboard passengers who had experienced shipwrecks, for I heard a man joking with a woman.

"I have been in five shipwrecks," he bragged. "Well, she replied with a laugh, 'you're only one ahead of me.'"

WIFE HELPED BY A SEWARD.

"Noting that my wife was clad only in her nightrobe, one of the stewards asked the number of our stateroom, and went below and got a dress for her. That was all he was able to get, for by now, the fire was spreading rapidly. In our stateroom, in addition to our clothing, were jewels and money, the total of which I would say was $2500. I don't believe that I honestly could say that the thought of this money or the jewelry, some of which we cannot replace, ever entered our minds. All we talked and thought about was whether we would escape from the steamer with our lives."

The deck, undecided what to do, the ship's orchestra suddenly began playing. First I heard a saxophone and music being so unexpected, I believed my ears were deceiving me. Then I began to recognize such popular tunes as "Three O'clock in the Morning," "Gorogette" and such melodies as we had been dancing to only the evening before.

"About 8 o'clock in the morning the vessel gave a sudden list to port, a thirty degree list, and officers said it was. This really was the only time that there was a sense of fear among the passengers. We thought that it was going to turn turtle. Apparently realizing that the vessel was now doomed, Captain Lester gave orders for the small boats to be lowered. Subordinate officers went among the passengers and said that the liner Enterprise was rushing to our assistance but would not reach us until about 10 o'clock at night and possibly even 8 o'clock the next morning.

NO CONFUSION IN GAINING BOATS.

"There was not the slightest confusion in getting into the boats. I want to say that the women passengers were even more cool than the men, although several of them did at the last minute insist that cabin boys rescue their pet canaries. So, when we got into the boats, several women were clinging tightly to their canary cages, although everything of intrinsic value they had aboard was forgotten."

"Once settled in the small boat, Mrs. Lachman and I began to worry about our daughter, Dorothy, aged five and one-half, who we had left with her grandmother at home. "An unusual feeling of joviality seemed to possess all of the passengers as the small boat drifted about. They shouted jokes to and fro, and the women led in singing 'It's a Long Way to Tipperary,' 'I'm Back to Old Virginia,' and some of the newer popular airs."

"We all were reconciled to spending the day and possibly the night adrift. The captain too must have believed this was our prospect, for the sea anchors were cast out and, up to 3 o'clock in the afternoon, no food was given us, nor were we allowed to drink of the supply of fresh water aboard. I don't mean to say that we could not have had it for the asking, but we were all in such good humor and carried away with the novelty of the situation that we did not ask for food."

WOMAN 81 YEARS OLD CLIMBS JACOB'S LADDER

"Shortly after 3 o'clock, we were cheered and surprised to see thick black smoke on the horizon. Then we began to speculate as to whether or not the vessel would see us. It kept coming on heading directly for our position. Shortly we could make out the hull of what was the freighter West Farallon. It came up close and a Jacob's ladder was put over the side.

"First to go aboard the West Farallon was a woman who, I understand, was 81 years old. She climbed the frail swinging ladder as though she were an adventurous girl in her teens. I think that affairs committee has had a particularly active year."

Request for a 10,000,000 dollar appropriation to equip hospitals now being constructed and to build additional hospitals for neuro-psychiatric patients was contained in the report of the Legion's commission for rehabilitation by Colonel A. Sprague, head of the rehabilitation commission. The report criticizes the government achievements to date in caustic language.

"The story of hospital construction by this government up to date," declared the report, "judging by actual results, is a tragedy for the sick, a discredit to the government and an affront to the American Legion. There is not a redeeming feature in it; politics, promises, plans, failure to prepare anything but shibboleths in advance, red tape, excuses and confessions, conspired to defeat the actual providing of needed beds."

The report, after commending Congress for enacting beneficial laws, excoriates individual congressmen and senators for what it terms "their endeavors to locate hospitals where they cannot be used, and to keep hospitals where they are not needed, and to send employment for their friends."

President Harding, the report asserts, decided after conferring with the United States Veterans Bureau to appoint co-operative committees on rehabilitation in various districts, to be made up of representative citizens and ex-servicemen.

"Those co-operative committees," the report declares, "would have helped to make a success of the rehabilitation program. The request for approval of this resolution has been on the desk of the President since June. Up to the date of the writing of this report, no action has been taken."

"At the end of five years," declares the Sprague report, "the government will have spent as much in hospital construction and rental as was originally estimated and requested in 1918. In the meantime, during the period when these beds were most badly needed, when they would have helped to pay the debt this country owed the men who had given most, they were lacking."

LACK OF BEDS STIRS HEATED COMMENT.

"What was the substitute?" "Hotels, sanitariums, nitrate plants, private homes, inebriate asylums and orphanages were purchased and remodeled, and added to public health hospitals, army convalescent and posts to constitute the present government-owned hospitals."

"On September 15, 1922, there were 5222 beds in leased hospitals and 1814 beds, temporary facilities, on government-owned properties. There were 7974 patients in contact hospitals, 2695 in tuberculosis hospitals, 4123 in neuro-psychiatric hospitals, and 1156 in general and surgical hospitals."

"Unoccupied beds? Yes, a lot of them. Ten thousand of them at that date. Most of them useless, because badly placed."

On Armistice Day (1918), the report declares, there were 334,000 men sick and wounded in army hospitals in this country and with the American expeditionary forces in France.

Painter Lured to Store and Robbed

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16.—Lured inside a vacant store early today, Frank Sandini, a painter and decorator of 2148 Steiner street, was beaten by three men and robbed of $70. It is believed that Sandini unwittingly exhibited his money to a chance acquaintance, at the same time making known his occupation. Overtures were made to him to estimate the cost of decorating a store. The three men took him to vacant premises at Stockton and Broadway. As he entered he was seized from behind, knocked down and kicked and his pockets ransacked. Sandini was treated at the Harbor hospital for a lacerated eye and contusions of the face.

U. S. Men on Rhine to Be Withdrawn

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—The one thousand troops constituting the U. S. army of occupation in Germany are to be returned home, it was understood today following a conference of Secretary of War Weeks and General Pershing with President Harding. It was learned that this question was taken up by Weeks and Pershing with the President, and that a virtual decision was reached to return the American army on the Rhine.

FRENCHMAN THE LUCKIEST.

NICE.—To a Frenchman this year fell the honor of being the luckiest man at Monte Carlo. M. Robert Sievier won $35,000 in an hour.

Such little incidents as that, illustrative of the coolness and self-possession of the women, was what made this ship fire more of an incident than an accident.

Passenger accommodations were limited aboard the West Farallon and the next day the United States transport Thomas loomed out of the light mist and we were transferred in small boats to it.

"I believed all during our experience that I was not frightened, but I think now that I would rather go through Hades with my hat off than be in another fire at sea."

mum for the maintenance in health and reasonable comfort of a professor's family of five a yearly income of $7212.60.

"Yet," points out Mrs. Bruce, "only the exceptional man under the new salary schedule is to have a salary of $6000 and this not until he is more than 60."

While refusing to discuss at the present time the attack made by the university women on the new salary schedule prepared by him and which went partially into effect on July 1 of this year, Dr. Barrows referred questions to his statements of "The Prospects of a University Professor," as published by the University Chronicle in which Mrs. Bruce and her collaborators made reply to him last week.

BARROWS DEFENDS SCALE.

In this report Dr. Barrows declared that in his belief the present salary plan is "adequate and may stand indefinitely until social conditions in America appreciably alter."

"It may be said at once and positively that universities cannot compete with the financial rewards of private business," declares Dr. Barrows referred questions to his must be based upon a lower and entirely distinct scale from the compensation paid by American business for comparable talent and administrative ability. The attractions of a university career to men of intelligence and personality must remain other than financial. The university professor, like the man who enters the army or navy, must, unless he has independent means, be reconciled to the prospect of a relatively poor man.

The attractions of university life in its freedom, its opportunity for the exercise of the higher spiritual activities, its social distinction and, finally, in the surety of its tenure, the prospects for continuous though moderate advancement and the assurance of a retiring provision when the university's interests recommend a teacher's withdrawal from active service."

Continuing further, Dr. Barrows says:

"The enhanced cost of living combined with other alterations of the war make the old standards of compensation obsolete and inequitable. I have the impression, however, that in some instances American universities have proceeded too rapidly and even heedlessly in lifting the scale of salaries and particularly in conferring undue rank upon immature men whose scholarship has not been fully demonstrated. The University of California has at least not made this mistake."

MONEY FIRST DECIDED.

In declaring the adequacy of the present salary schedule Dr. Barrows said:

"In presenting this plan I repeat again that what the true university teacher covets is not a highly remunerative personal compensation but a salary that will give reasonable comfort to himself and family, spare him the anguish and humiliation of debt, provide for the proper education of his children and for his own advanced years and allow him freedom and opportunity to develop the field of teaching and research which most fully presents his capacity and enthralls his imagination. After the first necessities of life his interest is in having adequate resources for carrying through those disinterested and serviceable discoveries of which the universities are the home."

Here is the salary schedule endorsed by Dr. Barrows but attacked by Mrs. Bruce and other university women:

Age	Grade	Salary
26-27	Instructor	$1850
28-29	Instructor	2000
30-31	Instructor	2200
32-33	Assistant Professor	2700
34-35	Assistant Professor	3000
36-37	Associate Professor	3300
38-39	Associate Professor	3600
40-41	Professor	4000
42-43	Professor	4500
44-45	Professor	5000

Armistice Halted Raid By U. S. Fliers on Berlin

CLEVELAND, Oct. 16.—The story of how the signing of the armistice saved Berlin from an aerial attack was related here yesterday with the permission of the government, for the first time by Lester P. Barlow and Glenn L. Martin, inventors of a device for a long range attack. Only a few persons are said to have known the secret, so closely was it guarded.

The basis of the idea was the combining of the flying torpedo, built principally along the lines of the dual-motored bombing plane, with a small plane of the scout type, but carrying a large fuel tank, Barlow said.

In flying to the objective, the two planes were to have been a single unit, the smaller plane's engine drawing its fuel from the torpedo plane's tank leaving its own fuel supply intact for the return flight.

The range was limited only to the distance the smaller plane could travel in bringing the pilot back to the American base, Martin explained.

AIR CHIEF SKEPTICAL.

"Our scheme to blow to atoms the German capital—700 miles from the battle lines—was so simple that General G. O. Squier, American ranking general of the air forces, was skeptical," Barlow said. "When he was convinced of its practicability his greatest fear was that the Germans might hit upon the same idea and put it into effect before we could get the necessary equipment across the Atlantic."

FIFTY TO ATTACK.

"In order to assure a thoroughly successful attack, our hope was to launch a fleet of at least fifty of these dual units against Berlin. Their flight was to be so arranged that they could approach the city from all directions simultaneously."

who even go without the things that are considered necessary."

Mrs. E. Dershow, wife of Assistant Professor Dershow of the physics department, declares:

"It is true not only of California, but of universities all over the country, that professors do not receive wages that are conducive to the support of a family. A man has to spend such a long period in preparation before he receives wages that in any way can be considered ample for the support of a family. It used to be that a man could teach with a high school certificate. Now he has to have a B. A., M. A. and Ph. D. degree before he can enter the teaching profession."

"Families of professors have to maintain a higher standard of living than those of ordinary laborers. Demands are made upon them that they like to comply with, that are not made upon men in the business world."

"I can see readily why professors and their wives would have to give up having children because of inadequate salaries. If a mother has to pay $4.50 a day for help it is not likely that she can afford it if her husband receives low wages."

Mrs. E. C. Tolman, wife of Prof. Tolman of the psychology department, states:

"One result of inadequate salaries is that practically every married man on the faculty except the full professor is doing outside work. It means that he must give up part of his work in which often he finds the most happiness."

DARING BANDITS PURSUED AFTER BOLD ROBBERIES

Men Playing Cards at Chico
Relieved of $4000; Raids
At Marysville.

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 16.—Police and sheriff's offices of a half dozen cities are searching Northern California for bandits who yesterday made getaways with loot valued at nearly $6000 after a series of daring holdups, robberies and burglaries in Chico and Marysville. Early in the morning three bandits, armed with revolvers and wearing handkerchiefs over the lower part of their faces, entered a gambling room in the Johnson hotel at Chico and robbed fifty men said to have been playing cards, of $4000 in currency, according to telegrams sent Chief of Police Bernard McShane and Sheriff Ellis Jones by police authorities at Chico.

The bandits were pursued by a large crowd of citizens and thirty shots were exchanged.

The trio were still at large late last night, according to word from Chico. In burglaries at Marysville loot estimated at $1150 was obtained.

SHRINE TO HOLD BIG CEREMONY AT CAPITAL OF STATE

Neighbor Temples to Participate At First Session of Ben Ali

Members of Aahmes Temple, Memphis, are preparing to leave for Sacramento, where next Saturday, with other temples from the principal cities of California, they will be guests of Ben Ali Temple at its first ceremonial session. Ben Ali Temple received its dispensation from the Imperial Council of the Shrine in San Francisco last June.

Besides the local delegation, there will be representations from Islam Temple, San Francisco; Al Malakiah Temple, Los Angeles; Al Bahr Temple, San Diego, and Kerak Temple, Reno, at the affair. The officers and Arab patrol of Islam temple will have charge of the ceremony and the 300 neophytes.

A procession will start from the Southern Pacific station at Sacramento at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, headed by the uniformed band of Ben Ali Temple and the two Ben Ali Arab patrols, one from Sacramento and the other from Stockton. This will form a guard of honor to illustrious Potentate Ira Coburn and his fellow officers and nobles of Islam Temple, who will be accompanied by the Islam band, patrol and Poseans. After the parade through the principal streets, a banquet will be served at 5:30 o'clock, and at 8:30 the ceremonial at the armory will begin.

Convict Leads Band Playing Own Pieces

SAN RAFAEL, Oct. 15.—D. G. Callor, convict from Oakland, led the Oakland Municipal band of forty pieces while it played two of his own compositions at a concert held at San Quentin prison yesterday.

The band, under the leadership of Dexter M. Wright, gave a complete concert program to the 2500 convicts within the prison walls, and followed this with another concert outside the penitentiary for the benefit of prison officials and their families.

How Do You Feel Today?

How well are you protecting yourself against prevalent diseases? Your resistance is determined by your general health of vigor and by the presence of protective substances in your blood. To a certain extent both of these factors are within your control. You can eliminate those forces which most frequently destroy human vitality and acquire yourself with the means of developing immunity to specific diseases.

AVOID FATIGUE—Fatigue lowers resistance to disease. Overworking the muscles produce toxic substances which render the body susceptible to invading bacteria. You must allow time for rest if the body is to rid itself of such fatigue-products. Better stop before the over-strain begins to tell.

AVOID EXPOSURE TO WEATHER—Definite experiments have demonstrated that we contract disease more easily when exposed to dampness and cold. Improper clothing, poor ventilation, damp shoes mean more sickness especially from respiratory infections.

EAT SUFFICIENT AND SUITABLE FOOD—Food is needed to repair your engine and to provide fuel for its work. You want 100 per cent efficiency from it and provision for withstanding all taxes upon its strength.

REMOVE MOUTH DEFECTS—Decaying teeth or chronically inflamed tonsils are producing poisons which tax the protective powers of the body. Then too, a dirty mouth is a better culture ground for germs than a clean one. Remove these dangerous allies of disease.

HELP NATURE TO HELP HERSELF—In several diseases (i. e., diphtheria, typhoid fever, cholera, etc.) thanks to the brilliant discoveries of science, it is possible to make people definitely immune by injections of a vaccine or serum. Vaccines are generally used before a disease is contracted and stimulate the body to form substances that will defend it against particular germs or their poisons. If a disease actually sets in such substances aid recovery and reduce the period of suffering.

NOTES—Questions on health problems may be sent to HEALTH EDITOR, OAKLAND TRIBUNE. Questions of a personal nature will be answered through the mail.

Free State Offer of Amnesty Expires

DUBLIN, Oct. 15.—(By The Associated Press).—The Free State government offer of amnesty upon their surrender of persons illegally bearing arms, holding stolen property, or retaining premises unlawfully occupied, expired at midnight. Beginning today the military authorities are empowered to punish offenders with death, deportation, imprisonment or fine, and the constitution of new courts to deal with such offenses can proceed forthwith.

The government's offer apparently has been ignored and yesterday there was posted surreptitiously throughout Dublin a proclamation purporting to be issued by the "Republican Army Executive," warning the public that any one giving information leading to punishment of republicans by the new courts will be regarded as a spy and dealt with accordingly, while those acting as members of the court will be punished for their "offenses against the republic."

43 Ohioans Cited in Ku Klux Probe

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 15.—Forty-three persons were summoned today by Edward C. Staanton, Cuyahoga county prosecutor, to appear in his office as the initial step in a probe of an alleged Ku Klux Klan meeting near Chagrin Falls Saturday night.

Forty of those summoned are owners of motor cars that carried alleged Klan members to the scene of the meeting.

The other three summoned are George K. Wadsworth, vice-president of the Ohio General Motor Truck company, and Burt S. Howlett, both of Cleveland, and E. J. Rhoads, owner of the farm on which the meeting took place.

Warrants For Arrest of 17 Sellers to Be Sought By Organization.

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 15.—Warrants for the arrest of seventeen alleged bootleggers will be sworn to today by Edgar Fuller, klan leader of the Ku Klux Klan, according to his statement yesterday when he turned over to the police department large quantities of liquors of many varieties which he said he purchased from grocers, cafe men and soft drink merchants in Sacramento.

Fuller said this was "the first act of the Ku Klux Klan in making Sacramento too hot for bootleggers." He claimed he had 175 men combing the city for places where illicit liquor is dispensed, and asserted the liquor he had in his possession was the first consignment the Ku Klux Klan intended to turn over to the police.

What's Happening in the Motor World

Large crowds attended the Motor exhibits at the East Bay Manufacturers' Exposition Sunday. Many novel demonstrations were given by the various exhibitors who were anxious to show their products in actual working order. The Huggins-Bacon exhibit displaying the Hubaco Boring mill, a machine built to bore engines, attracted many. The new attachment which has been built for this boring mill is proving very successful according to Bacon, a member of the organization. "Just recently we were able to bore a Ford engine block in twenty three minutes, the cylinders we measured with a micrometer and found to be correct to within five tenths of one thousandth of an inch, the walls of the cylinders were smooth and bright."

The attachment is on display at the exposition.

RUMANIA CROWNS ROYAL COUPLE AT IMPRESSIVE RITES

Coronation Occurs in Public Amid Plaudits of Thousands.

ALBA IULIA, Rumania, Oct. 16.—(By the Associated Press).—King Ferdinand and Queen Marie were solemnly crowned yesterday in the vast public square amid the plaudits of thousands of picturesquely dressed Rumanians. The ceremony was carried out without incident.

Promptly on the conclusion of the church service, a procession was formed, and the sovereigns, escorted by the Duke of York, Prince Paul of Yugoslavia, the Duke of Genoa, the Infante Alfonso, Marshal Foch and the foreign delegations, marched from the church to the richly decorated dais in the center of the square, dense with spectators.

As soon as the sovereigns had taken their place on the dais, the president of the senate received the crown from the president of the chamber and placed it on the head of the king. The king, in turn, crowned the queen, who knelt before him. The king and queen were then clothed in the royal mantle and other insignia.

DUAL SLAYINGS BLAMED ON GANG

By GERALD P. OVERTON
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 16.—A hired gang of experienced criminals, led by an expert gunman and accompanied by a woman who hated the sexton's wife but loved the pastor, conducted the double murder of Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills on September 14, is the belief of a majority of those investigating the case.

From letters placed in the hands of the authorities by Charlotte Mills, motherless victim of the tragedy, and from the fact that both the preacher and the woman answered mysterious telephone calls at the same hour, the investigators, while awaiting appointment of a single head of the activities, agreed the murder was thoroughly planned in advance.

The attorney-general of New Jersey is expected to name today a man to supersede the present prosecutor, conducting the search for the murderer. All forces of law engaged in the probe will be coordinated under the direction of the attorney-general's office.

SENATOR BORAH CREATES FIGHT WITH HIS PARTY

Idaho Republican Committee Disregards Solon's Wishes in Campaign Program.

BOISE, Idaho, Oct. 16.—Notwithstanding the attitude of Senator Borah—in the language of the resolution passed last Sunday night—the Idaho state central committee will hold to the Wallace platform the senator denounced at Weiser and Meridian and proceed unhesitatingly with its campaign.

Thirty-three of the forty-four counties were represented at the session called to meet the situation created by Senator Borah's "assumption" that he is fighting for his political existence and his statement that a piece of blank paper would have been better than the platform adopted in the convention in August. Life-long friends of Senator Borah cried out against his attitude in demanding that the candidate for governor renounce the platform, and political enemies bitterly opposed his Republicanism. Senator Frank R. Gooding, who stopped to greet the committeemen at the opening of the session, told them he could see only one position they could take.

Speakers insisted that the senator has raised more than the primary-convention issues, that he has attacked Republicanism and the very principles of partisan government. Although speakers eulogized Senator Borah and took his part final action on the resolution was unanimous.

The climax of the session came shortly before midnight, when Captain A. H. Conner, a war veteran and candidate for attorney general, declared he would resign his campaign rather than accept office under a party which would fail to meet the challenge of Senator Borah.

POLITICAL NOTES

A public official who has made good in office should be retained, in the opinion of Everett J. Brown, former judge of the Superior court, who gave his reasons today for supporting Judge Edward J. Tyrrell for re-election.

"It has always been my idea that a public official who has administered his office with dignity and efficiency should be returned, regardless of who that official might be," said Brown.

In support of Tyrrell for re-election I am therefore simply following my policy and not making an exception in favor of a particular candidate.

There can be no doubt that Tyrrell has made good as a judge of the city of Oakland. Every one who has watched his work there admits that he has all the qualifications for an excellent judge. Why should we change him for an untried man?"

Indications that Edgar S. Hurley, Republican nominee for state senator, will receive much support from Eastbay teachers was indicated today when Hurley received a letter from H. D. Brasefield, secretary of the Oakland Teachers' association, expressing appreciation of Hurley's work for school legislation during his terms as assemblyman. Hurley is now a member of the assembly and seeks the office of state senator in the sixteenth district, comprising parts of both Oakland and Berkeley, at the November election.

The legislative report made to the council of the association by Miss L. A. Shelton showed your interest, attitude, and effort to be a friend of school legislation," wrote Brasefield, who is principal of Fremont high school. "The council unanimously instructed me as secretary to convey their appreciation of the splendid work done by you in the interests of the teachers' retirement salary law."

The organization considers itself deeply indebted for your aid in putting through the legislation of 1921, a most progressive and constructive school legislation program, which we feel affords every child in the state a better opportunity in our public schools for the improvement which will make him a useful and dependable citizen."

Hurley spoke last night at the home of Mrs. Mable Mitchell in Webster street, discussing "The Educational Needs of Berkeley."

Urging strong support of all Republican nominees at the polls November 7, James H. MacLafferty, Republican nominee for Congress, was the principal speaker at the meeting last night of the Young Men's Republican League.

"It is pleasant to find oneself a definite part of a great California Republican organization," said MacLafferty, "but the time has come to forget ourselves and to remember the larger issues of the day. We must work for these larger issues in order to keep the party fresh in the minds of the people."

MacLafferty will toss the first ball tonight in the bowling tournament of the Native Sons of the Golden West at a bowling alley in Thirteenth street. He has given a 16-pound bowling ball as first prize to the team holding first place in the tournament. MacLafferty will appear as a member of Claremont Parlor, No. 246. All the parlors in the county will participate in the tournament, an annual event of great importance in Native Son circles.

An appeal for a large vote at the November election was made yesterday by Edward Bacon, candidate for police judge, at a neighborhood meeting held at the home of Mrs. O. P. Cole, 626 Fifty-second street. "Unfortunately there is too much indifference on the part of the citizens concerning elections," declared Bacon. "The result has been the formation of formidable political machines."

FOURTH PRIZE—One Vest Pocket Autographic Kodak Special (size 1 1/2 x 2 1/2), focusing model, fitted with F 6.9 lens and kodak ball-bearing shutter. Retail price $18.00. From Bowman Drug Co.

With only ten days remaining in the TRIBUNE'S big Eastbay photo contest, contestants should remember that there is a decided advantage in getting their entries in to this office as early as possible.

The reason is that the best of the pictures received before the final days of the contest are published in the TRIBUNE'S daily magazine section. If its entry, received at an early date, is not published, it's a pretty good sign that the shooter has again before the contest, closes, in order to stand a chance for a prize. If it is published, he has a chance to see how it compares with those of other contestants.

It is a wise plan, therefore, for contestants to send in their entries early enough that there will still be time to "repeat" if this should seem advisable.

Here are the conditions which govern the contest:

All photos submitted must be of Eastbay scenes, incidents or persons. Contestants, in order to be eligible, must live in the Eastbay. Entries must be received by the contest closes, October 20, 1921.

Contestants will send one contact print AND THE NEGATIVE. The

Mr. Homebuilder—

Hardwood is not an expensive luxury.

Two Hundred Dollars per room over the cost of Pine will give you a full hardwood interior in genuine Mahogany, Oak, Gum or Koa. For this small investment you can have beautiful Mahogany French Doors or the aristocratic effect of Koa or Quartered Oak wainscoting.

In very moderate priced homes a prominent San Francisco builder tells us he is now installing hardwood finish at a cost over Pine of only one hundred forty dollars for four rooms.

A room in hardwood is only the cost of a piece or two of furniture for that same room.

Hardwood furnishes a home and makes it of far greater value for selling, as well as occupying.

GIRL, 16, HURLED FROM WINDOW, VICTIM CLAIMS

Mystery Attack on Upper Floor of Home Asserted By Young Woman

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16.—Mysteriously thrown, she claims, from her bedroom window on the second floor of the family home at 455 Ivy avenue, Edna Kirkpatrick, a sixteen-year-old girl, was taken to the Central emergency hospital early today suffering from a fractured skull.

A passerby found the girl injured and bleeding on the sidewalk, after the family had been aroused by her screams. According to her father, John Kirkpatrick, there was no one in the house except members of the family, and he has no idea how the girl could have fallen from the window. She revived sufficiently at the hospital to say that she was not walking in her sleep, but that someone had actually thrown her from the window. Her condition is serious.

Sixty-seventh Congress Is Praised by President

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—President Harding, in a letter to Representative Mondell of Wyoming, Republican leader of the House, expresses his belief that the general results of the accomplishments of the Republican sixty-sixth and sixty-seventh Congresses, "have been so helpful to American welfare that they will not fail to appeal to the American people."

The President, in his letter made public last night, further declares that "few Congresses have been called upon for such arduous service as has been exacted from the sixty-seventh," and adds that he doubts "if any Congress in our history has accomplished so impressive a volume of work, touching so wide a range of national interest."

In addressing his letter to Mondell, who is the Republican candidate for the Senate from Wyoming, the President asserts he does so "in testimony of my appreciation of the great public service of yourself as its majority leader."

The executive's letter, written under date of October 11, follows, in part:

"I am addressing you in testimony of my appreciation, of the great public service of the present House of Representatives and yourself as its majority leader. It is an acknowledgment which I record in this manner with the more satisfaction, because of my warm personal sentiment for yourself as well as my high estimate of your performance in one of the most trying posts under our government."

MADE NOBLE RECORD.
"Few Congresses have been called upon for such arduous service as has been exacted from the sixty-seventh. It has been in approximately continuous sitting from the day it came into existence. In the realm of achievement, its record is notable. I doubt if any Congress in our history has accomplished so impressive a volume of work, touching so wide a range of national interest.

"One must dissent from the too prevalent idea that our plan of congressional government is not paving equal to the strain of these times. The most casual student of history, comparing the legislative record of the reconstruction period following the Civil War with that of the period following the World War, must realize that we have gone far toward lessening partisan, factional, personal and sectional strife in the lawmaking process. Whoever will compare the turbulent period of legislative and political history from the close of the Civil War to the end of President Hayes' administration with the record made since the armistice, four years ago, must agree with this judgment. He will find, in the earlier period, such convulsions as marked the impeachment of one president, an embittered national election contest, and a prevalent conflict between legislative and executive branches. Contrasted with that showing, the business-like fashion in which the sixty-seventh Congress has addressed itself to its huge task ought to inspire us with the conviction that conditions nowadays are met quite as favorably as may be expected."

U. S. MOST FORTUNATE.
"If it is urged that we cannot fairly compare our generation with those of another, then let there be a comparison of the progress which our country has been making since the armistice, with that of any other major belligerent in the world war. It must be agreed that we have come through this trying epoch with less of distress and disaster than many others of the great powers."

So, whether the comparison is made with our own experience in after-war reconstruction a generation ago, or with the experiences of the other nations since the World War, it is clear that we have been most fortunate. The sixty-seventh Congress must be awarded recognition for splendid achievements along these lines.

"The two Congresses serving since the restoration of peace have seen a world-wide inflationary tendency to reach barriers against international trade were menacing our commerce and industry. We have passed tariff legislation which first protects our own producers, and second, through its provisions for administrative adjustment of duties to changing conditions, makes possible to adapt them to shifting economic relations and enables us to encourage foreign trade."

TRADE FOUNDATION LAID.
"In the present disturbed condition of money exchanges and world trade, I believe that, by inaugurating this policy of flexibility and elasticity, we have set the example which the commercial world will accept as a truly constructive foundation on which to rest our commercial policy. The first duty is to protect our national interests, but in many ways real protection comes from cooperation with other nations. The best intelligence of the day recognizes the need to encourage intimacy and understanding in the social, economic and political family of nations; and it recognizes that, in thus inaugurating a plan which looks to intimate consideration of facts, we are offering a means of true unification and solidarity among the interests which underlie our industrial civilization, and we are taking a step toward the solution of some of the most perplexing economic problems which confront the nations in the last of the century. Thoughts are aloofness from the rest of the world."

"No other belligerent country has, since the restoration of peace, reduced its expenditures so rapidly as has our own. For the year ending June 30, 1920, our public expenditures aggregated $6,403,343,000; a year later $5,115,920,000. For the fiscal year 1922, $5,373,607,000. This has been possible through united and determined effort, legislative and administrative, based on the sound business policy of a proper budget organization."

"The appropriation for the army for the fiscal year 1922-23 is less than one-third that for the year 1919-20. Nearly as great a reduction has been accomplished in the navy. In all other directions, save only in the provision for the care of those who fought the war for us, there have been similar economies."

"In making provision to care for the rehabilitation of wounded, diseased and disabled men of the service, no expense has been spared that was necessary to perform the full national duty gratefully and generously. The national fiscal policy has been directed to arrest the too-rapid deflation which had set in, and to this end there has

Application to Acquire Sacramento Northern to Be Heard December 6.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Hearings of the application of the Western Pacific railroad to acquire control of the Sacramento Northern railway were set for December 6 in Washington by the interstate commerce commission today.

The Sacramento Northern Railway is an electric line running from Sacramento to Chico, tapping rich fruit production districts. The intended acquisition of the property by the Western Pacific forms part of an extension program announced by the railroad company at the beginning of the present year. The proposed plan involved taking over the Sacramento Northern, and extending it, by the construction of 57 miles of new track to Vallejo, where connection would be effected with the Monticello Steamship company's line of steamers to San Francisco.

FRENCH FLYERS FAIL TO EQUAL RECORD IN U. S.

LE BOURGNET, France, Oct. 16.—(By the Associated Press).—The French aviators, Lieutenant Bousoutrot and M. Droupin, who ascended in a Goliath biplane at 6 13 Saturday morning in an attempt to beat the American duration flight record recently made at San Diego, Cal., by Lieutenant John H. Ready and Oakley Kelly, landed at 4:27 yesterday afternoon, having remained in the air 34 hours, 14 minutes and 32 seconds.

They thus failed to equal the record of "Ready and Kelly," which was 35 hours, 16 minutes and 30 seconds.

The French Aerial Federation considers the mark set by Bousoutrot and Droupin an official world record, contending that the American flight was conducted under such conditions as will not be accepted by the International Federation, of which the United States is a member.

The aviators were forced to land through the lack of gasoline, of which they had taken 4200 litres when they started. When informed that his performance did not break the record, Bousoutrot remarked:

"I don't see how he could do it with the gas he is reported to have had aboard."

The Goliath traveled 3200 miles according to the instruments, which were sealed before the departure. At midnight, after being in the air 18 hours, Droupin complained of cramps owing to cold coffee. Bousoutrot took command, remaining at the helm for seven hours. He was then almost exhausted and aroused Droupin from the camp bed within, saying "There is plenty of gas left. Shall we land?" "I am finished," at that time the aviators were within sight of Le Bourget, but Droupin revived at the thought of landing.

been a progressive reduction of the federal income tax rate.

PROSPECT BRIGHTER.
"As a result of these policies, liberty bonds have progressively risen in value. The general financial situation has steadily improved and today the country has a brighter prospect ahead of its business, industry and agriculture than at any time since the mistaken program of drastic deflation adopted by those who were then in control of government policies."

"There is reason for the most cordial commendation of the program of measures enacted by the Congress for the rehabilitation of agriculture, the financing of the farmers' needs, the opening of foreign markets for their products and the general stabilization of the industry. The agricultural interest was perhaps the worst sufferer from the slump which followed the restoration of peace, and it cannot but be a gratification to you and your associates, who had so much to do with framing the legislative program, that such far-reaching and beneficial results have followed it."

"Without attempting to suggest an enumeration of the accomplishments for which the country is indebted to the sixty-seventh Congress and its immediate predecessor, it is tempting to appraise the general results, which have been so helpful to American welfare that they will not fail to appeal to the approval of the American people."

BEGGAR CRIPPLE AND BANK ROLL RUN FROM TOWN

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Oct. 16.—"Help a poor crippled fellow," was the plea that came from the lips of a beggar in front of St. Mary's church this morning. Crippled he was, for one leg was cut off, and the other apparently useless. But this claim of poverty was not borne out by his admissions to the police, who took him into custody.

The cripple claimed possession of a thousand dollars in a local bank and an additional $300 in a Denver bank—the proceeds of begging. And moreover, he declared he was unable to save his money; that a "party" in Pueblo last week cost him $60.

Chief of Police Hugh D. Harper ordered him to remain in his room at a local hotel until he could draw money from the bank and get out of town tomorrow.

Millions of Yen Fed to Flames

TOKYO, Oct. 16.—Millions of yen are being fed to the flames in the chief banking centers of the empire. This is due to the government's decision to replace the paper currency put into circulation during the war to preserve silver. This far 23,000,000 yen in ten and fifty yen notes have been destroyed and before the end of March, 1923, it is hoped that the whole issue of these notes, totaling 218,000,000 yen will have been reduced to cinders. Silver and nickel coins of 50 and 10 yen are being minted at Osaka to replace these notes. Already many of these are in circulation.

Show Them What this new way does

No mother wants children to suffer what she may have suffered from her teeth.

Then teach them the new way of teeth cleaning. Show the prettier teeth it brings, the whiter, safer teeth. Or let them make this test, and see and feel the benefits themselves.

Must fight film
Dingy teeth and most tooth troubles are now traced to film. One must fight to avoid them.

Film is that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. Stains discolor it, then it forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

No ordinary tooth paste effectively combats film. So, under old methods, very few escaped tooth troubles. Beautiful teeth were less often seen than today.

Two ways found
Then dental science, after long research, found two ways to fight film. One acts to curdle it, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then dentists the world over began to advise their use.

A new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. The name is Pepsodent. Those two great film combatants are embodied in it for daily application.

Its new effects
Pepsodent brings other effects which research proved essential. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to constantly neutralize the acids which cause decay.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits on teeth which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

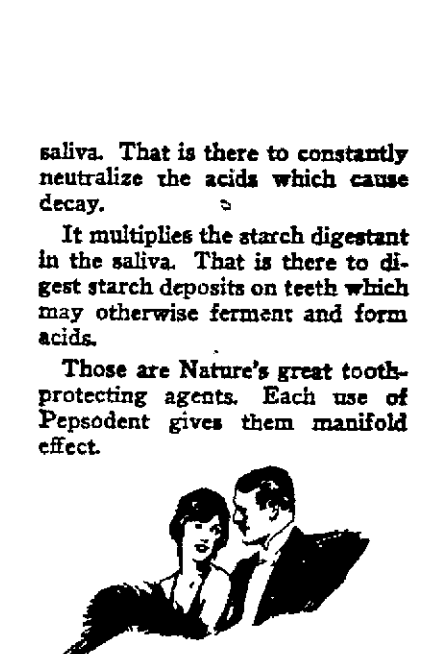

Those are Nature's great tooth-protecting agents. Each use of Pepsodent gives them manifold effect.

For dainty people
Pepsodent is now used by millions the world over. Careful people of some fifty nations have adopted it, largely by dental advice. Dainty people—those who care for whiter, cleaner teeth—will never go without it.

Evacuation of Thrace Develops Into Panic-Stricken Flight of Greeks.

PARIS, Oct. 16.—The Greeks, not the Turks, deliberately burned Smyrna, Franklin Boudillon, French envoy, who just returned from the Near East charged today.

Boudillon, in a statement to the United Press, said that the Greeks also burned 100,000 houses in the interior of Asia Minor.

The Greeks were worse than the Germans in the late war, he charged.

ATHENS, Oct. 16.—(United Press)—Many Greeks were slaughtered and a number of girls carried off in bondage when the Kemalists gendarmes, on their way to Thrace, destroyed the village of Chilo, according to an unconfirmed report received here today. Chilo is on the railroad, not far from the Black sea. It is directly north of Ismid and northeast of Constantinople.

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 16.—Twenty-five hundred Turkish gendarmes crossed into Europe today for police duty in eastern Thrace under allied supervision. Unconfirmed reports have been received here of massacres of Greek and Armenian Christians by Turks at Edine, 26 miles south of Chanak. These reports are discredited here as it had previously been announced that all the Greeks were out of Anatolia, and Edine lies in the northwestern corner of Anatolia.

Evacuation of 400,000 Greeks from Eastern Thrace is under way amidst confusion. Railway stations and docks are besieged with Greek men, women and children seeking places on trains and boats.

THRACIAN PROHIBITION PLANNED BY TURKS.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 16.—(By the Associated Press).—Total prohibition of alcoholic drinks, one of the tenets of the Mohammedan religion, will be applied throughout eastern Thrace as soon as the Kemalists authorities are installed, according to despatches received by the local newspapers from Angora, seat of the Turkish nationalist government.

OIL WELL BOOM IN CLAREMONT ONLY TANK LEAK

BERKELEY, Oct. 16.—The fashionable Claremont region of Berkeley will have no opportunity to steal honors from the famous oil fields of the south. It looked for a while as if it might. H. S. Ridgely, 3147 Claremont avenue, reported to the police that his "spontaneous" in a creek back of his home. The waters of the creek, he declared, were filled with the fluid. Officer H. H. Reid was sent to investigate. He found a crowd of residents of the district there ahead of him.

Lee "scouted" the neighborhood. He returned to the creek, a big grin on his face. "Go home," he declared, "that's oil from a leaking tank at the Hotel Claremont." That 52 gallons of the fluid had leaked into the creek was the report of the Claremont management.

Court Martial Gathers At Annapolis As Names of Victims Are Told.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 16.—Just before the assembling today of the court martial for the trial of midshipmen of the first-class on charges growing out of the recent outbreak of hazing at the naval academy, Rear Admiral Henry B. Wilson, superintendent of the naval academy, today announced the names of two midshipmen of the fourth, or "plebe" class, who have been under treatment at the naval hospital, because of the effects of hazing. They are R. B. Pearson, of Pell City, Ala., and W. H. McGregor, of Bremerton, Washington.

The midshipmen to be tried first are Stuart H. Hawkins, Springfield, Mass., and Bruce Robinson, Chandler, Ariz. Hawkins is said to have compelled a "plebe" to eat his dessert under a mess table in Bancroft hall, while Robinson is alleged to have put a new recruit through the physical exercise known as the "sixteenth," in a room of Bancroft hall.

Two other seniors also are slated for trial for conniving at a hazing practice. They are Thomas E. Boyce, of Mount Vernon, Ind., and Thomas J. Casey, Roxbury, Mass.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE: HEAVEN HERE AND NOW

C. W. Chadwick, C. S. B., Speaks To Large Audience at Local Church

C. W. Chadwick, C. S. B., of Omaha, Nebraska, member of the Board of Lecturers of the Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, delivered a lecture on Christian Science, under the auspices of the Second Church of Christ, Scientist, of Oakland, in the church edifice, at the corner of Third, fourth and Elm streets, Friday evening, October 13, at 8 o'clock. The lecture was attended by a large crowd. The speaker was introduced by James C. Rea, member of the church, who said:

We find in the gospel, according to St. Luke, that when Jesus was demanded of the Pharisees, when he was in the temple, to come down from heaven, then, and then, he answered them all said: "The kingdom of God cometh not with observation; neither shall they say, 'Lo here!' or 'Lo there!' for behold, the kingdom of God is within you."

In explanation of this statement Mrs. Eddy has written, on page 576 of her book, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, "This kingdom of God is within you." It is within each of us, and the spiritual idea reveals it. In divine Science man possesses this recognition of harmony consciously in proportion to his understanding of God.

It is the purpose of a lecture on Christian Science to aid in revealing this kingdom of God which is within each of us, and to unfold the understanding of God which will enable us to overcome all evil by recognizing harmony as the only reality. "We will be able to do this only as we put our power and ideas that are presented to us; and, you may be sure, they will be practical."

The members of the Board of Lecturers of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Boston, Mass., do not present a theory nor preach a creed. They have proven for themselves and for others that the application of Christian Science to the problems of life results in peace and happiness just as definitely as the application of the principle of mathematics enables us to solve numerical problems.

It is my privilege this evening to introduce a member of this board, Mr. Clarence W. Chadwick, C. S. B., of Omaha, Nebraska.

The lecturer then spoke as follows: Why do people congregate to hear a Christian Science lecture? Is it not because they want to know more about "good"? Fortunately for humanity there is an influence ever operative in human consciousness which is good, and which compels this reaching out for good. No one could possibly live a life of absolute selfishness. There comes a time when he wants something better than what he has when the heart yearns for something more satisfying than belief in evil, sin, pain and sorrow when he begins to think less of self and more of others.

What of this yearning which for a time satisfies that it is satisfied with disdain the spiritual? Evidently it is a false state of consciousness, for the "good" which the Christian Science would have assured us that this false selfhood must be denied or corrected, if one would become an active follower of the Master. The revelation of Christian Science to this age uncovers the mythical nature of this false self, which Paul refers to when he says, "Who opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God." A complete statement of Christian Science may be found in its textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science.

It is the inspired teaching of this book that is opening the eyes of countless thousands to behold the real nature of this so-called self. False theology has tried to get this self into the kingdom of heaven, while Christian Science shows us that this false self is nothing more than the "flesh and blood" referred to in Scripture, which we are assured does not "inherit the kingdom of God." Self is only another name for the so-called carnal mind, or mind of the flesh, which Paul says is "enmity against God."

It is not the purpose of this lecture to dwell at length upon the unreal; but it is impossible to present Christian Science to the world in a thoroughly practical manner without referring incidentally to that which Paul designates as the "enemy of all righteousness." How to conquer self does not at all detract from the spiritual awakening finally comes when they find themselves willing to entirely apart from self.

GOING TO HEAVEN. Old theology has had much to say about going to heaven, but it has signally failed to provide humanity with any satisfactory explanation of heaven. The design of heaven is a far-distant world where all good people are to congregate after the so-called death of the body, has failed to give satisfaction. The thought of a place called by an entirely different name, has caused untold suffering. Christian Science has come to deliver those "who through fear of death were all their lifetime subject to bondage." Healing has often resulted from destroying the patient's unhappy belief in the fear of death and in the uncertainty of heaven. We are asked to look for the kingdom of heaven here and now, and to be assured that we shall find it just to the extent that we separate ourselves from the flesh in our own thinking.

The obstacle standing between us and the kingdom of heaven is the belief in a false self, claiming another creator than God, while calling itself God's child. There is nothing on earth that the probability, or finding the way should interest us more than the experience of finding heaven. Whatever trouble we may experience, however weary or burdened we may be, our one and only remedy is the application of a right understanding of the kingdom of heaven. If we are in the depths of darkness, nothing so short of the heavenly vision will dispel such darkness.

His talk a holy silence pervaded the room, and there was many a tear-filled eye. All had learned their lesson. Young and old had glimpsed the meaning of the word "love."

To know that God is unchangeable divine Love is to be conscious of the kingdom of heaven here and now. No greater message could come to benighted humanity than that God is Love. Why has old theology not associated divine Love with the healing of disease? Christian Science has come with healing in its wings, and it is this fact that separates Christian Science from all religions that rule out Christian healing. It is the Christian Science that is the Christian Science.

DIVINE LOVE THE ONLY POWER.

Do professing Christians stop to think what a wonderful thing is God's healing power? The divine Love is all-power, why should any one doubt God's willingness or ability to heal here and now? Christian Science, do what it tells you to do, and all such doubt will be forever removed.

If every Christian minister in our land would be sufficiently humble and loving to take Mrs. Eddy's word, and be willing to accept on trust what he does not understand of the letter of Christian Science, he would be in a position to comply with the Scriptural admonition, "Try the spirits if they come from God." One thing is certain, the mortal attitude of "I do not believe" will forever debar him from proving the truth of Christian Science. He desires to understand the spiritual power, he must be willing to set aside his material beliefs concerning this spiritual fact and to accept the fact as being true. So doing, he will necessarily arrive at the following conclusions: If God is Love, and God is omnipotent, then Love is all power; if divine Love is all power, there is no other power, presence or influence in the universe; if God is Love, and Love is all power, then all evil, sin, disease and death—none of which can enter the kingdom of heaven. They are to be lost, spiritualized, and become good. Dishonesty never becomes honest, but when dishonesty is corrected or destroyed, honesty takes its place. Disease never becomes health, but when disease is corrected or destroyed, health takes its place. Death never turns into life, but when belief in death is destroyed we find Life to be God here and now.

Christian Scientists are most eager to aid improved transitional mental states, recognizing them as human footprints to higher spiritual attainments. They do not ignore such improved beliefs, but they recognize that the moral law of growth and unfoldment in their effort to reach the goal of spirituality. Improved moral conditions always precede the understanding of spiritual things. The Ten Commandments are not brushed aside by Christian Scientists as non-essentials. It is often said that to obey the First Commandment is to keep all the others. This is true, for the First Commandment is the basis of all the others. It is this should not excuse one from becoming acquainted with the other nine and from complying with their demands. One who does not obey the law of Moses, but who obeys the law of spiritual law or to become a follower of Christ, Truth; in other words, he is not prepared to enter the kingdom of heaven here and now.

Whoever tries to find a way to the kingdom of heaven by material or human conditions to perfect or spiritual conditions will fail to grasp the practical side of Christian Science for himself or to make it available to others. The bridge between the material and the spiritual, which can be crossed only through definite human footprints, through strict obedience to the moral law, observation of the Golden Rule, and loving one's neighbor as one's self.

The man who is healed of sickness in Christian Science has taken but one step along the road leading to heaven. He has had his thought lifted above matter, but there is another important step to be taken. He must now be willing to turn away from a thousand and one theories and opinions of men and to recognize the power of spiritual law. He must be willing to get into the spiritual kingdom. If he hears the call of the Master, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross and follow me," and recognizes his material selfhood as a composite of these various theories, needing correction and denial, he will have taken a second useful step toward heaven. He will then be engaged in the practice of Christian Science, of living what he professes, denouncing and overcoming the erroneous thinking of the past and of the present. The "new man" is put on characteristics of the "new man" are evidenced in improved mental, moral and physical conditions. These improved conditions are transitional, and are the kingdom of heaven here and now.

THE TRUE NATURE OF GOD. The essential nature of Deity is that of omnipotent, ever-present Love. The other words which convey the thought of gentleness, tenderness, compassion and loving sympathy. It is this understanding of God that heals and saves. In order to understand the meaning of the word "love," a man must himself learn to love. "He that loveth not knoweth not God; for God is love," and "He that loveth not his brother abideth in death." The Scriptures are statements. When divine Love permeates the human affections it enables one to be unselfish, kind and considerate.

If the infant could express its love, it would love God. Love. Ask the older child what he learned at the Christian Science Sunday School and he will say, God is Love. Ask his parents, who have learned about God, and they will reply, God is Love. Ask the man who has been saved from darkness, and he will say, God is Love. Science what he knows about God and he, too, will join in the glad refrain, God is Love.

It may be easy to talk of divine Love, to admonish our brother to love more, but the real test of sincerity lies with ourself. Do we love? Are we unselfish? Do we love a Christ-like life? A well-known Christian Scientist was once asked to give a short talk on Love to a small gathering of Christian Science students. He proceeded to attempt to enumerate some of the opposite qualities to Love, such as fear, malice, envy, dishonesty, greed and selfishness, and to show how imperative it was to overcome these qualities—making it clear that when these were obliterated in individual consciousness, the presence of divine Love would be self-defined. At the conclusion of his talk a holy silence pervaded the room, and there was many a tear-filled eye. All had learned their lesson. Young and old had glimpsed the meaning of the word "love."

His own ideas. They are all perfectly obedient to the divine Principle that created them. Whoever catches a glimpse of the unity existing between God and His ideas catches a glimpse of heaven here and now. "The power of the power of Love. Human hate has no power. No one could use the power of Love with which to express hate. Then why fear wrong thoughts of any other? He alone reflects real power who learns to love here and now. This is practical Christian Science.

GOD IS LIFE. When Christian Science tells us that there is but one Life, and that this Life is eternal, that it is forever unchangeable, there are some who take issue with such statements. Jesus once told His hearers that He came that they might "have life," and "that they might have it abundantly." Those who are ready and willing to gain a more abundant sense of Life, and to see it apart from matter as neither organic nor structural, but as infinite and indivisible, will rejoice to learn that God is Life.

A realizing sense of what Life is plays a most conspicuous part in the daily practice of Christian Science, so numerous are the requests for help from those who are weighed down with the thought of fear. Examine this thought of fear and it will be found to be the fear of God, and the fear of God is the right idea of Life destroys all fear of and belief in death.

Because Christian Science comes with a message of life and love, revealing a God of truth, of whom it is written, "Thou art of pure eyes than to behold evil, and canst not look on iniquity," should it be shunned by Christian people as unsound doctrine? Because Christian Science reveals the kingdom of heaven as an ever-present, ever-active consciousness of good and of good only, here and now, should it not be received with open arms? We really desire to live and to love? He that loveth not knoweth not the meaning of the word "life," for Life is God.

"ONLY ONE SPIRIT." The average believer readily accepts the statement that Spirit is God, but at the same time he admits the existence of many spirits. He would have us believe that exposing his lack of spiritual understanding. Since Spirit is God, and is infinite, there is only one Spirit.

In Christian world view much to Mrs. Eddy for exposing the erroneous foundations of spiritualism. She was never connected with this cult, nor could any one who understands Christian Science and spiritualism have anything in common. To understand that God is infinite Spirit disposes of this subject in a most practical way, by healing so-called "spirits." In short, the whole matter of belief in spirits may be said to speak with positive conviction, at the same time having the utmost consideration for those who hold spiritualistic views. When a spiritualist accepts Christian Science he will believe in one God, one Spirit and one Life, and will use the word "Spirit," as well as several other terms, as synonyms for Deity, Christian Science bids us ponder and study them from the standpoint of spirituality. We will find that God is not a being, but a power, and influence here and now in the overcoming of all that is unlike good. In Science and Health (p. 45) there is an opportunity will do well to recall at times, if he would succeed in finding the kingdom of heaven at hand. It is this: "For right reasoning, but not by the senses, before the thought, namely, spiritual existence." The study of modern psychology as taught in the schools of learning will not accomplish this all-important task. Science stands before the world today as the one true Science of Soul or Spirit, and the student of genuine metaphysics must be willing to make this humble admission before he can do the thinking and saving onstrate the power of divine Love. The Christian delights to think and to talk about God, but does he always include in his thought the spiritual relationship existing between God and the so-called ideas? Christian Science tells us that "God is not separate from the wisdom He bestows" (Science and Health, p. 6). This certainly means that where wisdom is actually expressed, there God is wisdom. Nor would God be God without the attribute of wisdom. God, in other words, has no existence apart from His manifestation or expression. His manifestation or expression is God, because they are one and inseparable.

Could one think of the sun as separate and apart from the rays of light which it sends forth? Could the sun exist without its rays? The moment the attempt is made to separate the sun from its rays, the result is darkness. Any attempt to separate God and that which emanates from God, must result in mental darkness. To illustrate further: The attributes of God are not one, the concepts of God are not one. Health, holiness and purity apart from God are inconceivable. Health without any recognition of God would not be health at all. God, then, is the source of the health, holiness and purity man. Man apart from God, then, is nothing. Man, as the image and likeness of God, is absolutely dependent upon God for his existence. He could not exist without God, and God could not exist without His idea, man. Who could conceive of an unexpressed God, or of a lifeless Life?

It is well that we ponder this subject so as to ascertain together we are living as close to divine Love as we should and can, for heaven is not experienced until we actually express or manifest the quality of God's ideas. We are theorizing or believing that God is Love does not of itself bring us into touch with God; it does not bring into human experience the fact of our relationship, but leaves us helpless wanderers in "this present evil world."

THE WAY-SHOWER. The life and mission of the great Saviour of men stand out in bold relief to the student of Christian Science. They mean more to him than ever before, because of the insight gained through the study of Christian Science to practice Christian healing.

Mrs. Eddy expresses her concept of Jesus as follows (Science and Health, p. 51): "He was inspired by God, by Truth and Love. In all that he said and did, it was not in full accord with the statement in John 3:34: 'For He whom God hath sent speaketh the words of God; for God giveth not the Spirit by measure unto Him.' There are numerous illuminating statements throughout Mrs. Eddy's writings which prove her profound estimate of Jesus' Godlike character. She recognized the distinction between the so-called conventional morality from the virgin mother, and His real or spiritual manhood, which was the Christ.

Christian Scientists lay stress upon the fact that the mission of Christ was to save the sinner, and as well as to save the sinner. God's forgiveness of sin includes the healing of sickness as well as the destruction of sin. The mission of the Saviour was in no sense incomplete. He was the full and complete revelation from the consequences of belief in evil. His divine nature, that is, the Christ, was constantly working through the humanity of Jesus to heal and to save. It found its highest expression in those words of the Master, "I and my Father are one."

When our orthodox friends are persuaded that Christian Scientists "believe in the divinity of Christ," the corporate concept of Him, which disappeared in the ascension, that they also recognize His spiritual selfhood as inseparable from the Christ, they can no longer deny the reality of His divinity. It is not a matter of denying the divinity of the Christ. If there is a religious activity today that is doing everything possible to establish Christ's divinity it is the Christian Science movement. He said, "I am the way," and Christian Scientists, above all other Christians, realize their need of spiritual regeneration if they would have the power of the way. They realize that they can not merely believe themselves into the kingdom of heaven, but that they must earn their way, by getting rid of every seeming obstacle to the power and presence of God. They believe, theory and opinion that would deny the oneness of God and His idea. We must become pure enough in thought to have the thoughts of God, and to do the works that he did if we would find our way "out of darkness into his marvelous light."

One of the most helpful thoughts given to us in Christian Science is that Jesus was the connecting link between the real and the unreal. This makes clear to us the statement of the apostle that there is no God above the man, the man Christ Jesus. What was this mediatorial service on the part of the Master? Was it not his complete subjection of the human to the divine? He said, "I of mine own self do nothing." It is only as we follow Jesus' example, overcoming belief and faith in a selfhood apart from God, that we can succeed in the line of righteous endeavor.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE IN BUSINESS. The business man or today will find in Jesus' teachings a remedy for all his troubles. It is comprised in this simple statement: "Not my will, but thine, be done." The subjugation of the human will means the overcoming of all that is selfish and demoralizing of all art, greed, and dishonesty, dishonesty, chance and inefficiency. Business is just as just as much in need of applied righteousness as a sick mind or body, and the sooner the business man will the business world be a credit to the cause of Truth on earth.

All business transactions reside in the atmosphere of thought. If the business man is seeking first the kingdom of God, making the spiritual of first consideration, his right thinking will be followed by satisfying results. If business comes first and God second, the business man will be followed by failure and disappointment. Why should not an honest business man be a law unto himself in his business? He has but the one and only weapon.

A moral and spiritual awakening on the part of the business world is what is needed to bring about useful and helpful relations between capital and labor, and to establish the cause of temperance throughout the world. God's plan for His children is already a fixed fact, and if humanity will seek to understand this fact as an entity and as a part of the divine plan for the earth for her hidden treasures, its externalization in human affairs will be more speedily seen and acknowledged.

MRS. EDDY AND HER TEXT-BOOK. It is a well-authenticated fact that Mary Baker Eddy is the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science. No one familiar with her life and writings could or would attempt to deprive her of her high honors. Her life work stands before the world today as a striking example of what could be and was accomplished by one lone brave woman, who had the courage to leave all for Christ. A more unselfish or loving character never lived. She was, indeed, to repeat the words of Longfellow, "a noble type of good, heroic womanhood."

Study the life of Mary Baker Eddy and you will learn the meaning of the word "good." In her discovery of Christian Science, she was enabled to grasp Jesus' explanation of matter, contrary to that of modern science and philosophy, and this made it possible for her to bring out the practical demonstration of the Christian Science. This achievement the Christian world owes Mrs. Eddy a debt of endless gratitude. She was a woman whose nobility of character and keenness of spiritual discernment lifted her thought to the higher spiritual realm. We would commend the prayerful study of her wonderful book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures." As an inspired and duly authorized text-book of Christian Science, it is calculated to lift the thought of the student to the plane of practical demonstration. This mental height is not reached through reading books by other authors claiming to make Christian Science "easier to understand." There are books to read and there are books that must be studied. Science and Health belongs exclusively to the higher class. Something more than a simple perusal of this book is required of its students. It contains definite rules and laws which have to be obeyed in daily human living before one can read one's title clear to the spiritual kingdom here and now. This book, in connection with the Bible, is the careful, persistent and prayerful study, and is receiving it from countless thousands of Christian Scientists throughout the world.

There are grateful hearts in every part of the world who look up to Mrs. Eddy with joy and thanksgiving for the healing that has come to them through her revelation of Truth to this age. Such believing that God sends disease and suffering upon His child for some wise purpose, but by knowing that evil is not a part of God's perfect creation, that all belief in evil is an intolerable mistake, and that Christ Jesus came to correct it, not by admitting evil to be real and on a plane of equality with good, but by knowing the opposite fact of being, that good is supreme and the only reality. His was a correct, or scientific, mental perspective.

Lecture Given Under Auspices Of Second Church of Oakland

realizing the ever-presence of divine Love. The only scientific treatment ever given by the Master or by any of his followers was "God with us," and this is the only treatment known to Christian Scientists. Which is more humane, kind, sympathetic, and in every way helpful to the patient, the practice that is dependent upon time and material law so-called, the practice that is powerless to save human life and suffering, the practice that says to the patient, "I know you are sick and there is nothing I can do for you, you should have called me sooner, but now there is no hope; or the practice that instantly knows the truth about man, enabling it to say to the patient, whether present or absent, "Man is not sick. He is not under any law of matter because God is the only lawmaker; man lives in God and cannot die,"—the practice that brings immediate cessation of pain and fear and mental anguish, and comfort and encourages the patient to trust in ever present Life,—the practice that leaves with the patient a sweet benediction of peace and assurance that God has already created "the Lord God omnipotent, eternal?" "Choose you this day whom ye will serve."

PRAYER. The life of a consecrated student of Christian Science is one of unceasing prayer. This does not mean that he is constantly on bended knee, imploring God to do something for him that He has already done. God has already created man in His own image and likeness, and when mortals awaken to know this great spiritual fact, they experience healing. Admitting that we are sick, and then asking God to heal us, betrays a state of consciousness that is devoid of spiritual understanding and that does not reach the ear of the Infinite. An honest, sincere acknowledgment of one's weakness with His Master, silently or audibly expressed, is consistent prayer, and if we are living what we profess, such prayer is always answered. The honest, unselfish effort to be Christlike is prayer. The prayer that forgets self in serving God and humanity is known to God and will be rewarded by Him. Importuning God to send us material blessings is not the mission of true prayer. The highest prayer, the prayer of spiritual understanding, is the honest expression of gratitude for knowing that we are now in the kingdom of heaven.

In the Christian Science Hymnal (p. 91) we find this helpful hymn: "Prayer is the heart's sincere desire, Uttered or unexpressed, the motion of a hidden fire, That trembles in the breast. Prayer is the simplest form of speech, That infant lips can try; Prayer the sublimest strains that reach The Majesty on high. Prayer is the Christian's vital breath, The Christian's native air; His watchword overcometh death— He enters heav'n with prayer."

Detroit Industry Shows Expansion

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 14.—The two most encouraging signs in the Detroit business situation this week were expansion of building construction, which had suffered a slight check, and increased activity at the Ford factories. New employees are being taken on regularly and it is predicted that production this month will run above 100,000 cars.

A further increase in employment of 5,700 men this week brought the total number at work in the industrial plants here to within 10,000 of the high record attained in April.

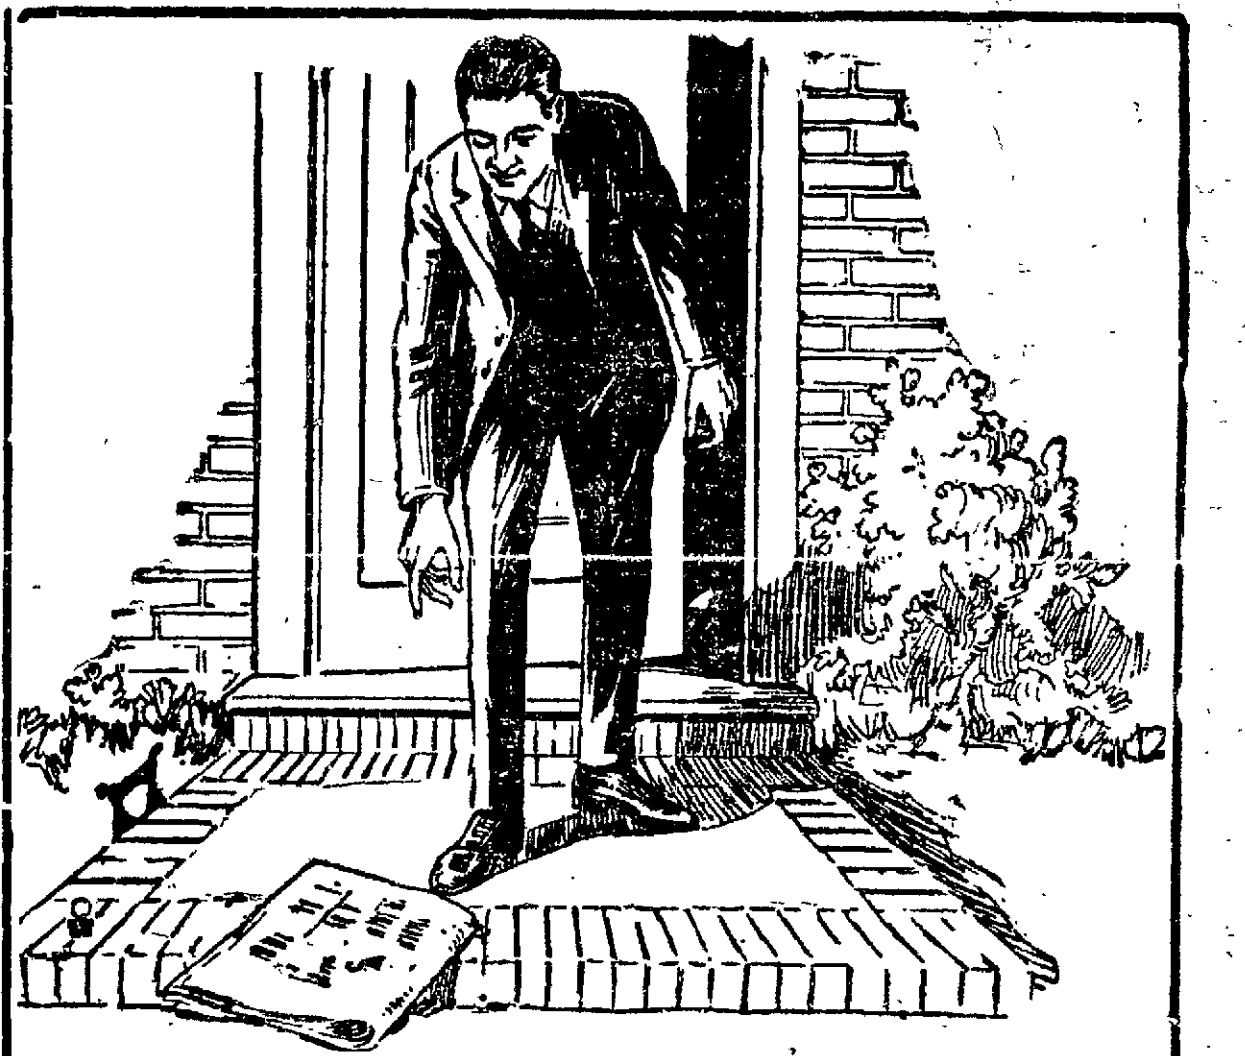

Car shortage still is hanging over the situation like a cloud, but local railroad officials say the tie-up will be at other gateways than Detroit.

ROBBERIES OF CEMETERIES.

LONDON.—Charles Clarkson, who was sentenced to a year's imprisonment for robbing a grave-digger in Fulham cemetery, has made an amazing confession. According to his story, he has kept himself in luxury for 17 years by cemetery robberies. His method was to mingle with the mourners and pick their pockets while the services were going on at the side of the grave. Clarkson owns two motor cars, a fine home and numerous works of art, paid for by the loot of his graveyard thefts.

LLOYD GEORGE MAY RESIGN AS CRISIS TENSES

Dissolution of Parliament and Election Rumored
As Alternatives.

By LLOYD ALLEN

United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON, Oct. 16.—Lloyd George's resignation or dissolution of parliament may come any day this week, it was learned on high authority today. Austen Chamberlain, nominal leader of the Unionist party, called a conference of the Unionist members of the government to consider the crisis. Upon the outcome of this meeting of conservatives today depends the date for the forthcoming general election, now considered inevitable.

With friends and enemies of the prime minister clashing in the press over the government's Near East policy, the issues will be put squarely up to the people, it was believed.

"We are on the eve of a general election," many of the newspapers, both pro and anti-Georgian, are stating.

The premier was enthusiastically greeted at every station yesterday on his way from Manchester, where he had made a speech in defense of his policy. On Saturday, to London. In London he was cheered by throngs. The British public knows no more today of the premier's immediate plans than it did before he made his speech at Manchester. He made no mention of whether he intended to resign, thus precipitating a general election.

By WEBB MILLER

United Press Staff Correspondent
PARIS, Oct. 16.—Lloyd George's speech would have risked compromising peace in the Near East if our work had not been sold."

M. Franklin Bouillon declared today upon his arrival here. The French commissioner to the Near East went into conference with Poincaré and was closeted with the premier for an hour. The French are bitter over Lloyd George's address at Manchester Saturday in which the British prime minister claimed credit for his government for averting war with the Turks. They feel a slur has been cast on their efforts at a time when they were being given for the peaceful outcome of the crisis.

Heads of Homes Form New Athletic Team and Enjoy It

By FRANCES MONTGOMERY

"Mothers organize volleyball team, Saturday 9 a. m., Manzanita school."

Just this written on a little slip of paper. It was my detail for the day. Surely, thought I, here were some remarkable and enthusiastic mothers who could gather on a Saturday morning at the early hour of 9 and for the purpose of all things, to indulge in reckless recreation.

With great interest I thought to miss nothing by arriving at the appointed hour. But although the time had been set for 9 in the morning, the mothers, what with laundrying, scrubbing and mending and scrubbing Jimmy and Billy, found it expedient to postpone their game until 3 p. m.

At 3 o'clock the mothers gathered the children of Manzanita school to be athletic enthusiasts. Saturday was their first all-day playtime on the school playgrounds. In recent school athletic contests they took several prizes. Perhaps their enthusiasm has inspired the mothers.

With the children and parents the popularity of the play director, Mrs. Teura Swin, plays a great part in the mothers' eagerness for outdoor athletics.

Mrs. Swin's hobby is directing play and community work. She gathered covers being laid for eighteen intimate friends of the bride.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—After three years of experimenting, Maude Adams, noted actress, is ready to present for practical use an invention designed to permit the showing of motion pictures without dimming the theater lights, according to a report here today.

The invention is said to be a type of light that can be used for theater illumination and left burning while pictures are being shown on the screen.

Miss Adams retired from the stage about three years ago, and soon after recovering from a breakdown began work on the invention. At the General Electric Company's plant in Schenectady she was given a section of the building and permitted to work in seclusion. The quarters included living accommodations.

Three hundred guests were apprised of the announcement. The honor guests at the affair were Mrs. Howard McCreary and Miss Doris O'Donnell of Los Angeles.

Pink blossoms were used in the appointment of the dining room while the tea table was adorned with a centerpiece of lilies-of-the-valley and roses. There were pink hearts engraved with the names of the betrothed couple attached to pink rose buds, and presented to the guests by Miss Janet Brown and Ethel Mae Smith. POSTOFFICE MAPS NIGHT AIR FLIGHT WITH MAIL TO S. F.

Experiment Seeking to Establish Regular Schedule Across Continent.

MT CLEMENS Mich Oct 16—C F Edge of Washington, superintendent of the air mail service, left here yesterday for Chicago on one of twelve mail ships that are to be placed in the aerial mail service between Chicago and San Francisco. Edge is to supervise the night-flying experiment on October 23, in which flares will mark the course from Chicago to Cheyenne.

This experiment with flares, Edge said before his departure, will mark the first step by the government to afford mail service on a regular schedule night and day entirely across the continent. The flares are to be placed 24 miles apart and will be visible for 12 miles. Attendants will operate the signals and report by radio on the passing of planes.

WORKERS STRIKE AT HETCH HETCHY

(Special to The TRIBUNE.) STOCKTON, Oct. 16—Every tunnel camp in Hetch Hetchy started today by a strike which began last Friday and has quickly spread over the entire construction area.

The strikers demand, according to a pamphlet issued by the strike committee, 50 cents an hour increase in pay, hot meals for all tunnel workers, an eight-hour day including the trip from Portal to the works and back, better food, better sleeping accommodations, and release of all class prisoners. Hetch Hetchy officials assert they do not know what the latter demand means.

The officials have issued a statement in which they assert that the strikers are the highest paid in California for the class of work they are doing, and that the food and sleeping accommodations are good.

LIABILITY IS FIXED AS TO SCHOOL MISHAPS

In an opinion from the district attorney's office, received by David E. Martin, county superintendent of schools, it is declared that school trustees can be held liable for injuries to persons on school property only when negligence is shown. The opinion, drawn up by Miss Agnes R. Polsdorfer, deputy district attorney, declares that in this state and generally throughout the country, that in the absence of negligence on the part of the school trustees no personal liability attaches for such injuries. The opinion points out that municipalities or school districts, as part of the government, cannot be held liable.

Fifteen Minutes of Radio Daily

The ordinary buzzer employed for code practice is very uncertain in its operation and usually requires frequent adjustment in order to obtain a sound resembling radio telegraphic signals. It is possible by means of a comparatively simple circuit to use a vacuum tube as a source of audio-frequency signals of any desired pitch. The circuit which may be employed is shown in the diagram.

In the diagram of coil "L1" is an inductance having a value of 5 henry and may be in the form of a special home-made coil of large size or may consist of a coil having an iron core. If an iron core is used fewer turns are necessary in order to obtain the requisite value of inductance. If a home-made coil is used it should be about seven inches in diameter in order to approach the proper value of inductance. Shunted across the terminals of the coil "L1" is a fixed condenser of .05 microfarads capacity. This condenser may be of the usual paraffin paper and must withstand a voltage of at least 110 volts direct current without breaking down. The plate and grid of an ordinary receiving vacuum tube are connected across the terminals of the inductance coil "L1" and the filament of the tube is connected to a tap at the point in the coil to give the desired frequency. The location of the filament tap is found by experiment. A wire connected to a pin may be used until the right spot is found, where a soldering connection should be made. The circuit as described will be recognized as one in common use by amateur operators of continuous wave radio stations.

DECK HAND FIRST TO DETECT FIRE ON THE HONOLULU

Laurence Green, Swabbing Down Decks, Saw Smoke in Ventilator.

By WILLIAM PARKER (International News Service Staff Correspondent) HONOLULU, Oct. 16—An unsung hero—and today a penniless hero of the burned liner City of Honolulu—is 24-year-old Lawrence Green, an orphan boy, who discovered the fire and alerted the ship's crew. He was a deck hand on the ship when it stood on the dock after the Transport Thomas had disembarked the rescued passengers, that "my brother's home is the one I live in."

Young Green is one of the lowest of the lowly class of the City of Honolulu. He is a deck hand, although he declared rather proudly that he was an "A. B." and a "B. B."—a double-bodied seaman. It is Green's duty at 4 o'clock every morning to swab the decks.

Green was discharging his duty with considerable conscientiousness, he said, that he glanced at his watch at 5 minutes to 6 o'clock to make sure that he would finish his task that morning as early as the day previous.

Then, as he was about to start the pumps, he noticed a small fire coming out of one of the ventilators. This was on the deck about No. 5. He had never before in a ship fire before, but he knew what fire at sea can mean so he ran to the bridge and reported the smoke to the first officer. He told me to sound the fire alarm.

I ran to the bell and rang it. Then some of the other crew came on deck and ordered us to start the pumps. We grabbed the hose and opened the nozzles wide. That first officer, burst, was a bear, though, he kept working right along side of us until he fell. His face burned and he was covered in soot. He had to be carried to the upper deck.

We kept on fighting the fire for all we were worth. They loved us over the starboard side and then the fire broke out and we broke open the ports and shot streams of water inside with hose. This water began to make the liner list on that side so they let us down the ladder and we poured in water there to equalize the list, but the vessel wouldn't right itself.

All of a sudden the City of Honolulu gave an awful roll to port and we thought we were going over for sure, but she stopped at an angle of about 30 degrees. Then Captain Lester ordered the boats to be lowered.

One of the men, rescued the ship's cat. As we hauled away from the liner we could see hundreds of rats swarming to the decks and jumping overboard. The ship's cat was the only animal that was saved. It was a dead mouse who was being brought to Los Angeles from Honolulu.

When all of the boats had been lowered Captain Lester issued orders that they were to be lowered. Some of the men were asked when help would arrive, and the captain answered that the Enterprise was expected the next morning.

The people in the boats were mighty nervous. I want to tell you they all sang and kept as cheerful as they could. One of the fellows in our boat—he was one of the waiters—had picked up a banjo just as he was leaving and he played that part of the time.

Former Faculty Man Pneumonia Victim
BERKELEY, Oct. 16—John J. Morris, 50 years old, former member of the faculty at St. Mary's college in Oakland and for the last nine years head of the safe deposit department in a local bank, died yesterday at the El Reposo sanatorium following an illness of several days of pneumonia. Morris had his home at the Hotel White-cotton, coming to Berkeley from Quebec, Canada, twelve years ago. He was prominent in Berkeley Council, Knights of Columbus. At the time of his death he was associated with the Berkeley Commercial and Savings bank, formerly the Berkeley branch of the Oakland Bank of Savings.

WILKENS DEFENSE ATTACKS LAWYER INVOLVED IN CASE

Attorney Herron Scored in Opening Statement; Brady Called to Stand.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16—That Henry Wilkens is the victim of a conspiracy and that the only dark blot on his escutcheon is his unproven conduct with his sister-in-law, Helen Lange, was the assertion of Frank J. Murphy, his chief counsel, in the opening statement for the defense before Superior Judge David I. today.

Murphy stated a suppliance when he called District Attorney Matthew Brady as his third witness of the morning and when he laid at the door of Attorney William F. Herron responsibility for Wilkens' present predicament.

"I am glad the time is come when Henry Wilkens can speak for himself and produce evidence to dispell the cloud on his name, resulting from cruel and unrelenting persecution," Murphy began. When he concluded he said: "If I am able to shatter and destroy the testimony of Arthur Castor, I shall expect a verdict of not guilty at your hands."

Murphy outlined his defense, made in always the following claims: That Wilkens had been a square and upright citizen; that he was possessed of a violent temper and that it was as the result of a drinking party that he came to blows with his wife and a tooth fell out from a blow on her mouth. That he did not return over the route described by Castor, that he did not pick out Walter Castor in the prison lineup because he was on the verge of collapse, and finally that he was at the end of the Pacific car line in response of a mysterious telephone call and met an individual who knew all about Helen Lange's relations with him and promised to keep them secret for $5000.

COUNTY BRIDGE TO BE WIDENED

The supervisors today passed a resolution providing for the widening by twenty feet of the San Leandro bridge across East Fourteenth street.

The addition to the bridge will cost in the neighborhood of $15,000, in the opinion of George Posey, county surveyor, who will draw up plans for the improvement.

The board appropriated $2000 for use by the committee in charge of the Complete Home Exposition for advertising.

An invitation was received by the board from the Merchants' Exchange to a meeting being held this afternoon to discuss the question as to whether a tube or bridge should be built across the estuary.

In a letter from David L. Martin, county superintendent of schools, the board was informed that by a vote of 41 to 1, the San Jose school district rejected the proposal to join the Washington Union High school district.

IMPERSONATION ACT LEADER ON ORPHEUM'S BILL

Individual Acts Meet With Some Success; Norman Wins First Honors.

This week's offering at the Orpheum is pleasing but not impressive. It is the brand of vaudeville known as mild.

Individuality the acts yesterday afternoon met with a certain amount of success, but the program as a whole is not one that is distinctive, and even the featured acts did not create a tumult of applause.

Karyl Norman, "The Creole Fashion Plate," was deservedly accorded headline honors, and won rapid attention with his female impersonation act which completely fooled the audience until he made his denouement after wearing two startling gowns and singing two numbers in his feminine voice.

After the second change Norman removes his wig and goes into a baritone voice for the conclusion of that number. The next song is offered in male attire with a return to the female in order to introduce more gowns and songs. Norman has a flashy act with a gorgeous wardrobe. He is a fine performer and his act has plenty of class to carry it without becoming suggestive.

COULD HAVE RETURNED.
Senator Ford, monologist, kept the well-filled house chortling throughout his tenure of office, through the medium of his dry wit expressed during the course of remarks on the government, war, prohibition flippers and short skirts. Ford could have returned for additional stories had he been so inclined.

The third feature was the Weaver Brothers with a novelty musical act. These two in rural make-up are billed as the original hand-saw musicians. They manage to get music out of saws, and comedy out of their characterizations. Their finality, a banjo specialty, was a hit.

These three acts are the accredited feature numbers, and the balance of the bill is not notable with the possible exception of Vincent O'Donnell, the miniature McCormack, who is a former Gus Edwards' kid and should have had that worthy arrange his repertoire of songs.

WASTES VOICE ON BALLADS.
O'Donnell is obsessed with the idea of wasting his voice with sticky sentimental ballads. He did score with "Pretty Kitty Kelly," a novelty number, but it came too late.

The bill was opened with a rough and tumble cycling act by the Gorton Girls, "Tomboys on Wheels," an unusual act for an opener and one which met with approval. Hancock and Dolly presented "On the Boulevard." The former is a clever dancer and a good comedy tumbler, and his partner wore a wig and a keyhole made suggestive gestures in keeping with the act, but in bad taste in Oakland.

Adelaide, Herrmann, widow of the great magician, closed the show. Mme. Herrmann's Funct Orpheum act did not mystify. Pictures opened and closed the bill.

NEW BROADWAY

"One Clear Call" offering two stars in the persons of Henry B. and Milton. The latter will be shown for the last time at the New Broadway theater tonight.

This is Walter's last appearance in a picture since his theatrical tour, an engagement that kept him out of the screen for almost two years. The story offers Sills and Walch in two widely contrasted characters. The action is feverish in interest and contains a smashing and original climax.

"Seeing is Believing" and other features follow tomorrow.

"Two Fisted Jefferson" follows Thursday.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets
Are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—has effected a cure for the liver in almost instantaneous time. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel causes many have with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dizziness" and that laxy feeling come from congestion of the liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lax" and "heavy." They "clear" the liver and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.—Advertisement.

"The New Mama" Is Treat For Musical Comedy Fans

"The New Mama" won new laurels for Jack Russell and his musical comedy family at the Century theater last night and incidentally won a host of laughs from the first-nighters who swarmed into the Broadway amusement house.

Barring an off-color song and a "blue" scene between Russell and Walter Spencer, his comedy foil, "The New Mama" is bright, fresh and clean. It possesses a plot which is in itself unusual, and the performance is up to standard.

In the current play Russell is forced through a curious chain of circumstances to pose a pretentious steeplechase rider. The fun is fast and furious, and, of course, the fake steeplechaser wins the race, despite the fact that his mount carries a stock saddle.

Supporting Russell and Spencer are Ruby Lang, an old-time favorite here, who scored heavily with a song number, as well as her work in the comedy; James Edwards, who gave an intelligent and original performance in the typical stage Englishman; Babe Hildebrand, the ingenue; Florence Spurrier, as the grand dame, and Ted O'Mark in a small role.

Honors in the singing line went to the Century trio, Miss Lang, Russell and Ora Knight, a member of the chorus. Miss Hildebrand won attention with her jazz number, and did the chorus working in ensemble in a novelty dance. Milha Pedro, another chorus girl, was intrusted with the blue song.

"The New Mama" is presented on a pretentious scale and features bright costumes, artistic scenic investiture and an Oriental opening by Edna Dillon and Blanche Ensign. Taken all in all, "The New Mama" is entertainment of the first water in its class, and it was received with acclaim by the musical comedy fans.—W. S.

Each Act in Vaudeville Performance Wins Merited Acclaim.

As is frequently the case on a vaudeville bill without a headliner, excellent entertainment was provided the patrons of the Pantages theater last night.

There is no headliner on the bill in the accepted sense of the word, but it would be difficult to single out the most popular offering. Each act won merited acclaim from the patrons who filled the theater from pit to dome.

The program was opened by the original Juggling Nelson, a standard act. Nelson is the man with the funny hats and the mysterious water pitcher. He kept the crowd convulsed with laughter and performed some difficult juggling without the customary "stalling."

GOES OVER WITH "BANG."
Tyler and Crolius followed with a brand of nut comedy that went over with the proverbial "bang." Tyler, elongated and clever, offered a rapid-fire chatter act and forced a fine foil for his laughing partner in his comedy partner. Both are hard workers and deserve a better spot on the bill.

Number three proved to be George La Shay, a marimbaphonist, who despite the show despite the fact that the upper register of his instrument was faulty and doubled his work. La Shay's routine was nicely arranged and he might have continued indefinitely if the crowd had his way.

He was followed by "Stepping Some," a six-people dancing act, featuring Alice Manning and Herman Waniura. Miss Manning has the poise and balance and danced heavily with her eccentric toe dance. Waniura is a whirling dancer of ability and the others in the company were uniformly good. The act showed the need of a wardrobe woman.

ACT IS ACROBATIC.
Then came Ross Wyse and Tony Wyser, the latter a child performer, who is an accomplished acrobat and is featured in a head spinning bit. As arranged now the climax of the act comes about half way through the routine and from that point on there is a letdown. The act is essentially acrobatic and does not win with singing, dancing or comedy.

Page, Mack and Mack, two men and a woman, assisted for comedy purposes by Tyler, of the Tyler and Crolius act, featured a novel hand-balancing act by a lady, one of the best acrobatic thrillers seen on the vaudeville stage this season.

Taken as a whole the program was surprisingly good.—W. S.

"Paper Drives" in Schools Protested.
A protest against "paper drives" was conducted in schools for charitable purposes will be discussed this evening by the board of education.

"Paper drives" form one of the means for raising funds for school activities and for school charities. Now comes a protest, as outlined in a letter from Mrs. Ethel M. Johns, who says:

"I wish to protest against the paper drives given yearly in the Oakland public schools for so-called charitable purposes. It is not in the curriculum of the city schools to teach charity. We are sending our children to school to be taught self-reliance, and to put the charity concept in the assimilative minds of young children is merely retarding self-reliance for generations to come. Teach our children self-reliance and there will be no need for charity. Stop making junk peddlers of our young children."

Blind Solicitor's Shot Proves Fatal.
PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 16.—Leland M. Muck, of Lincoln, Neb., a blind solicitor, trying to raise funds for a library for the blind, who shot himself in a hotel at Wickenburg, Ariz., last Wednesday night, is dead of his injuries. Muck, about 40 years old, was traveling about the county accompanied by a Mr. and Mrs. Hardin, also of Lincoln, who also are blind. The three were engaged in canvassing for money with which to establish a library for blind people and to equip it with books printed with raised letters. It is said that Wednesday night the three were gathered in a hotel at Wickenburg and checked up. They found that their hotel bill alone would take practically every penny they had collected.

An hour later Muck shot himself. Mr. and Mrs. Hardin, destitute, are still in Phoenix.

Death Penalty Is Urged for Gland Larceny.
CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—A move was made today to make the stealing of human glands punishable by death. Representative Thomas J. Crady announced today that he will introduce at the January session of the State Legislature a bill to make the robbery of glands a capital offense.

The mystery of the stolen gland cases was still unsolved today. Police and doctors played to canvass all surgeons' offices in the hope of revealing some clue. Two and possibly three cases of gland banditry have been reported to police.

Joseph Wozniak was at home today following several days in the hospital as the result of being drugged and robbed of glands.

Harry Johnson reported to authorities that he was attacked several weeks ago and, when he regained consciousness, found that he had been operated on. Doctors who attended Johnson declared that the operation was performed by an amateur and that Johnson was fortunate to be alive.

The persons who operated on Wozniak were believed to have been inefficient surgeons. Police were seeking Leo Proshinsky who was with Wozniak on the evening when he was attacked. It was reported to police that Proshinsky also was a victim of the gland thieves.

Death Toll Again Narrowly Averted At Night in Lone Tree District.

VALLEY HOME, Oct. 16.—The second fire of mysterious origin in the Lone Tree district within two nights, in which the death toll was barely averted, has aroused the district to a high pitch of excitement. Thursday night the newly-built residence of Matthew Pliter on the Hambridge tract burned to the ground and so rapidly did the flames spread that Pliter, who had been asleep, barely escaped.

This fire coming on the heels of the incendiary blaze which destroyed a farmhouse and the sleeping quarters of M. Andrews, leads to the belief that a pyromaniac at large. Andrews, after escaping the flames, was fired at twice by a would-be assassin hidden in the darkness. The bullets went wild and Andrews ran to the home of a neighbor where he was given shelter. Officers are investigating and many conjectures are advanced by the farmers, who now turn their watchful eyes at night and sleep with loaded handguns and rifles within reach.

Council of Churches Votes Ban on Klan.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—The federal council of Churches of Christ in America, representing twenty million Protestants, today went on record as opposing such masked organizations as the Ku Klux Klan.

The administrative committee of the council has passed resolutions denouncing organizations "whose members are masked and whose actions have the effect of arousing religious and racial antipathies." The Rev. J. M. Caver, one of the general secretaries of the church, said the administrative council had the Ku Klux Klan in mind when passing the resolution.

Winston Churchill Is Seriously Ill.
LONDON, Oct. 16.—(By the Associated Press.)—Winston Spencer Churchill, the secretary for the colonies, is confined to his bed with acute gastro-enteritis, it was announced this afternoon.

Churchill's attack evidently was a sudden one, as a London despatch last night announced he had a long conference with Prime Minister Lloyd George on his latter's return from his hasty-making trip in the midlands. This conference had to do with the ratification of the new Irish constitution.

Jewelry Taken From Private Residence.
Jewelry valued at several hundred dollars was taken by burglars from the home of John Gonsalves, 1808 East Twenty-third street. The police believe that the same burglar ransacked the home of Joseph M. Sappers, 1802 East Twenty-third street, which is the next door to the home of Gonsalves. Sappers' home was entered after he had taken his wife to the hospital. When he returned home he discovered that the thieves had entered by forcing a window.

Policemen and Men Die in Raid on Dive.
ROCK ISLAND, Ill., Oct. 16.—Policemen James Green and Edward Minor and Robert Scott, a negro, are dead as a result of a gun battle last night in an underworld negro drug den. Policemen sought to stop a quarrel between Scott and his wife that was disturbing neighbors. Scott turned his gun on the officers. Green was killed instantly and Minor and Scott died in a hospital.

These deaths during the toll of lives lost in underworld warfare here in a few months to seven.

Number three proved to be George La Shay, a marimbaphonist, who despite the show despite the fact that the upper register of his instrument was faulty and doubled his work. La Shay's routine was nicely arranged and he might have continued indefinitely if the crowd had his way.

He was followed by "Stepping Some," a six-people dancing act, featuring Alice Manning and Herman Waniura. Miss Manning has the poise and balance and danced heavily with her eccentric toe dance. Waniura is a whirling dancer of ability and the others in the company were uniformly good. The act showed the need of a wardrobe woman.

ACT IS ACROBATIC.
Then came Ross Wyse and Tony Wyser, the latter a child performer, who is an accomplished acrobat and is featured in a head spinning bit. As arranged now the climax of the act comes about half way through the routine and from that point on there is a letdown. The act is essentially acrobatic and does not win with singing, dancing or comedy.

Page, Mack and Mack, two men and a woman, assisted for comedy purposes by Tyler, of the Tyler and Crolius act, featured a novel hand-balancing act by a lady, one of the best acrobatic thrillers seen on the vaudeville stage this season.

Taken as a whole the program was surprisingly good.—W. S.

"Paper Drives" in Schools Protested.
A protest against "paper drives" was conducted in schools for charitable purposes will be discussed this evening by the board of education.

"Paper drives" form one of the means for raising funds for school activities and for school charities. Now comes a protest, as outlined in a letter from Mrs. Ethel M. Johns, who says:

"I wish to protest against the paper drives given yearly in the Oakland public schools for so-called charitable purposes. It is not in the curriculum of the city schools to teach charity. We are sending our children to school to be taught self-reliance, and to put the charity concept in the assimilative minds of young children is merely retarding self-reliance for generations to come. Teach our children self-reliance and there will be no need for charity. Stop making junk peddlers of our young children."

Blind Solicitor's Shot Proves Fatal.
PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 16.—Leland M. Muck, of Lincoln, Neb., a blind solicitor, trying to raise funds for a library for the blind, who shot himself in a hotel at Wickenburg, Ariz., last Wednesday night, is dead of his injuries. Muck, about 40 years old, was traveling about the county accompanied by a Mr. and Mrs. Hardin, also of Lincoln, who also are blind. The three were engaged in canvassing for money with which to establish a library for blind people and to equip it with books printed with raised letters. It is said that Wednesday night the three were gathered in a hotel at Wickenburg and checked up. They found that their hotel bill alone would take practically every penny they had collected.

An hour later Muck shot himself. Mr. and Mrs. Hardin, destitute, are still in Phoenix.

Death Penalty Is Urged for Gland Larceny.
CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—A move was made today to make the stealing of human glands punishable by death. Representative Thomas J. Crady announced today that he will introduce at the January session of the State Legislature a bill to make the robbery of glands a capital offense.

The mystery of the stolen gland cases was still unsolved today. Police and doctors played to canvass all surgeons' offices in the hope of revealing some clue. Two and possibly three cases of gland banditry have been reported to police.

Joseph Wozniak was at home today following several days in the hospital as the result of being drugged and robbed of glands.

Harry Johnson reported to authorities that he was attacked several weeks ago and, when he regained consciousness, found that he had been operated on. Doctors who attended Johnson declared that the operation was performed by an amateur and that Johnson was fortunate to be alive.

The persons who operated on Wozniak were believed to have been inefficient surgeons. Police were seeking Leo Proshinsky who was with Wozniak on the evening when he was attacked. It was reported to police that Proshinsky also was a victim of the gland thieves.

Death Toll Again Narrowly Averted At Night in Lone Tree District.

VALLEY HOME, Oct. 16.—The second fire of mysterious origin in the Lone Tree district within two nights, in which the death toll was barely averted, has aroused the district to a high pitch of excitement. Thursday night the newly-built residence of Matthew Pliter on the Hambridge tract burned to the ground and so rapidly did the flames spread that Pliter, who had been asleep, barely escaped.

This fire coming on the heels of the incendiary blaze which destroyed a farmhouse and the sleeping quarters of M. Andrews, leads to the belief that a pyromaniac at large. Andrews, after escaping the flames, was fired at twice by a would-be assassin hidden in the darkness. The bullets went wild and Andrews ran to the home of a neighbor where he was given shelter. Officers are investigating and many conjectures are advanced by the farmers, who now turn their watchful eyes at night and sleep with loaded handguns and rifles within reach.

Council of Churches Votes Ban on Klan.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—The federal council of Churches of Christ in America, representing twenty million Protestants, today went on record as opposing such masked organizations as the Ku Klux Klan.

The administrative committee of the council has passed resolutions denouncing organizations "whose members are masked and whose actions have the effect of arousing religious and racial antipathies." The Rev. J. M. Caver, one of the general secretaries of the church, said the administrative council had the Ku Klux Klan in mind when passing the resolution.

Winston Churchill Is Seriously Ill.
LONDON, Oct. 16.—(By the Associated Press.)—Winston Spencer Churchill, the secretary for the colonies, is confined to his bed with acute gastro-enteritis, it was announced this afternoon.

Churchill's attack evidently was a sudden one, as a London despatch last night announced he had a long conference with Prime Minister Lloyd George on his latter's return from his hasty-making trip in the midlands. This conference had to do with the ratification of the new Irish constitution.

Jewelry Taken From Private Residence.
Jewelry valued at several hundred dollars was taken by burglars from the home of John Gonsalves, 1808 East Twenty-third street. The police believe that the same burglar ransacked the home of Joseph M. Sappers, 1802 East Twenty-third street, which is the next door to the home of Gonsalves. Sappers' home was entered after he had taken his wife to the hospital. When he returned home he discovered that the thieves had entered by forcing a window.

Policemen and Men Die in Raid on Dive.
ROCK ISLAND, Ill., Oct. 16.—Policemen James Green and Edward Minor and Robert Scott, a negro, are dead as a result of a gun battle last night in an underworld negro drug den. Policemen sought to stop a quarrel between Scott and his wife that was disturbing neighbors. Scott turned his gun on the officers. Green was killed instantly and Minor and Scott died in a hospital.

Individual Acts Meet With Some Success; Norman Wins First Honors.

This week's offering at the Orpheum is pleasing but not impressive. It is the brand of vaudeville known as mild.

Individuality the acts yesterday afternoon met with a certain amount of success, but the program as a whole is not one that is distinctive, and even the featured acts did not create a tumult of applause.

Karyl Norman, "The Creole Fashion Plate," was deservedly accorded headline honors, and won rapid attention with his female impersonation act which completely fooled the audience until he made his denouement after wearing two startling gowns and singing two numbers in his feminine voice.

After the second change Norman removes his wig and goes into a baritone voice for the conclusion of that number. The next song is offered in male attire with a return to the female in order to introduce more gowns and songs. Norman has a flashy act with a gorgeous wardrobe. He is a fine performer and his act has plenty of class to carry it without becoming suggestive.

AMENDMENTS 17, 25 AND 29.

Amendment 17 on the November ballot would appear from its title to have a general application but, in reality could be applied in a limited number of cases. It was designed primarily to further the development of water power projects on the Colorado river and to enable cities to work together in that development. The purpose of the proposal is to remove possible uncertainties concerning the rights of cities, counties, irrigation districts and other political subdivisions, to co-operate with each other and with political subdivisions of other states. Because this county is not interested in water projects which include the crossing of a state line it may be said to be without local significance. The argument voiced against the proposal does not deny the ends sought are worthy but claims a loose partnership of heterogeneous elements as cities, irrigation districts, etc., is not a feasible plan for ownership.

There is no opposition expressed to Amendment 25, which simply adds to the constitutional provision for the appointment of pro tempore judges the words "with the approval" of the regularly constituted judge or judges in the particular court in which they are to sit. This provision was formerly in the constitution and the words now sought to be reinserted were in some manner amended out. A particular case brought forth a complication and the only remedy was this amendment. It appears to be fair and reasonable.

Amendment 29 is another which will require no extended argument. Believers in single tax will favor it; those opposed to this tax scheme which is biennially put forward and as regularly defeated, will register their disapproval. Despite the fact that the single tax measure in 1920 was defeated by 350,000 votes a measure more drastic is presented this year.

NAVY DAY.

The Navy and the men of the Navy will be hosts to the cities on the Bay on Navy Day, October 27.

The day has been designated for special observance, officers and men will receive the public and entertainment of a number of kinds will be provided. The Navy has asked that Navy Day be observed generally.

Oakland, home of the reserve officers which, though not actually under the Naval Department, will share in the ceremonies, should participate to the fullest in the events of Navy Day. The Yerba Buena training school is all but an Oakland institution and there are scores of Oakland men employed in the great navy yard at Mare Island.

Details of the celebration are to be announced later and this city, because of its position on the bay, will be asked to give wholehearted support. Properly, Vallejo, the city of the naval yard, will have leading place. If plans now being made in that city are carried through the Navy Day celebration on the Bay will center there. A festival at Vallejo with the Mare Island yards as a background and all the facilities for aquatic sports should be worth going miles to witness.

MUSIC LOVERS INCREASE.

There are many evidences to strengthen the belief of those interested in the cultural advance of America that in and through music this country is to achieve its greatest distinction. This will be news to many persons who have accepted the careless verdict that the United States is without musical appreciation, and that art, here, is left to languish.

Henry Hadley, associate conductor of the New York Philharmonic orchestra, has declared recently, "the widespread interest in music, the best music, is one of the extraordinary things in American life today." The development of this interest in the Eastbay has been so gradual that by many citizens it has gone unmarked. Yet one may point to concert seasons in which the supply of season tickets has been exhausted before the first recital, to the Greek theater filled to hear a symphony orchestra, and to an innovation which means the school children of a whole city will have the opportunity to hear real music at a price surprisingly low.

What has gone on here has not escaped Mr. Hadley. "Only those who have been on tour with great orchestras," he says in Arts and Decoration, "and who are familiar with current affairs on the Coast as well as in the Middle West realize this intense interest in music pervading all classes. There is thus afforded the interpreter a background of appreciation absolutely without parallel anywhere in the world."

Mr. Hadley has had the opportunity for observation and study. There are many in the Eastbay who know he has not overstated the case and who believe the increased interest in good music is doing its part, and a large part, in making this part of California distinctive.

UNDERPAID FACULTY MEN.

The protest of wives of faculty members at the University of California against a system of remunerating teachers so ill as to be woefully inadequate, is not a new one. It has been voiced in articles in learned periodicals; novels and plays have been written on the theme and, indeed, most everything has been done with the subject, except remove the cause for complaint.

One wonders, often, why men elect to be teachers of the country's youth. There are in Berkeley, just as there are in every college or university center, scores of men equipped by education for places of high financial reward, who have given over the hope of wealth and are struggling along the best they may with little satisfaction save that of the service they are rendering.

The young man or woman who has made the most of his opportunities at the university where the underpaid faculty members are teaching, steps off of the platform with his diploma prepared for a responsible position in business or profession. In a few years' time he returns to the campus flushed with success and finds the men who were his teachers along bravely under the same conditions.

The colleges and universities are not to pay higher salaries to their instructors and professors. Privately, however, institutions realize this and many have made the preparations. The State of California has the lesson yet to learn. Until this lesson is learned the injustice cannot be corrected for it is to the state that the universities must appeal for its support. It is to be hoped the letter of the wives of faculty members will have its effect in bringing attention to a situation in need of betterment.

ANOTHER DISCOVERER.

On Discovery Day a newcomer to Oakland took time to write a letter which appears in another column on this page. In it is a recital of the experiences of a man becoming acquainted with what is to be found here in the Eastbay, a story of how his attention was attracted to Oakland and his estimates, from the viewpoint of a man who has seen our attractions through unaccustomed eyes, of what constitute our greatest assets. There is much of local benefit which may be gained from the latter.

It is significant this man came to Oakland as a result of printed material sent him by the Chamber of Commerce and is a firm believer in publicity for what is now his city. Perhaps he was not here a few months ago when the Chamber added to its membership and resources and does not know the suggestions he has made are being carried out. There are many men, like the writer of the letter, who have journeyed through Oakland to form an opinion from what they saw as a train pulled through the yards and along the western border of the city. Every day more make the discovery made by him and each discovery points to the value and the need of a continued program of city exploitation.

The California Retail Furniture Association will be guests of Oakland October 19. Dust off the parlor chair and give them the key to the city.

THE CAPTAIN OF THE OREGON

In the death of Rear Admiral Charles E. Clark it is not the flag officer of a later period who comes to mind but the captain of the Oregon, the intrepid commander who brought his ship around the Horn from San Francisco in time to take part in the Battle of Santiago. The war with Spain was signaled by greater naval events than this, both at Manila Bay and in the smashing of Cervera's fleet. But as a feat of seamanship it made a peculiar appeal to the imagination and it remains one of the spectacular exploits of American sea history. While the American navy endures, the fame of the Oregon's race at full speed for two months and a week from the Pacific ocean to the Atlantic will animate one of its stirring chapters.

The achievement ranked Captain Clark high in popular esteem. It was the culminating event of an active naval service which began while he was an under-class man at Annapolis at the outbreak of the Civil War and continued until his retirement in 1905. He last appeared in public view in 1913, when the old Oregon, under his command, was selected as the first vessel to pass through the Panama Canal. His death now revives the recollection of a great feat of nearly a quarter of a century ago the glory of which a greater war has not dimmed.—New York World.

Department of Information.
For a long time there has been need of a department of information, an agency to tell the citizen how to act. We accept the duty, willingly, and turn attention first to the man who is invited to inspect a friend's radio set.

The secret of success in a case like this is a concentrated expression, an air of knowledge, and silence. The radio-friend will usher his victim at once into the presence of a lot of black boxes decorated with safe-knobs and electric lights. He will stand back regarding this heap of intricacy with affection. Then he will ask, with reverence in his voice, "Isn't she a beauty?"

It is important not to answer him at once. Walk back and forth in front of the contraption. Lean over it, squint into the squintable places. Follow those wires you can see, then say, carelessly, "Wonderful hook-up you have. Can you hear Honolulu?"

After that all one needs do is listen to the radio friend. He will do all the talking and the victim need do no more than nod and clear his throat in impressive agreement. The system has been known to work well enough to make radio-friend forget his theme long enough to make a journey into the cellar.

When Lloyd George goes into his position we are quite certain all of the cartoonists will be prepared with the appropriate "Dropping the Pilot" picture.

Sir: If Admiral Plunket plays the ukulele I have a good joke.—R. Spinkey-vintz.

One understands something of the weight which hangs over the heads of royalty when he learns the crown which was fitted today upon Queen Marie of Rumania weighed four pounds.

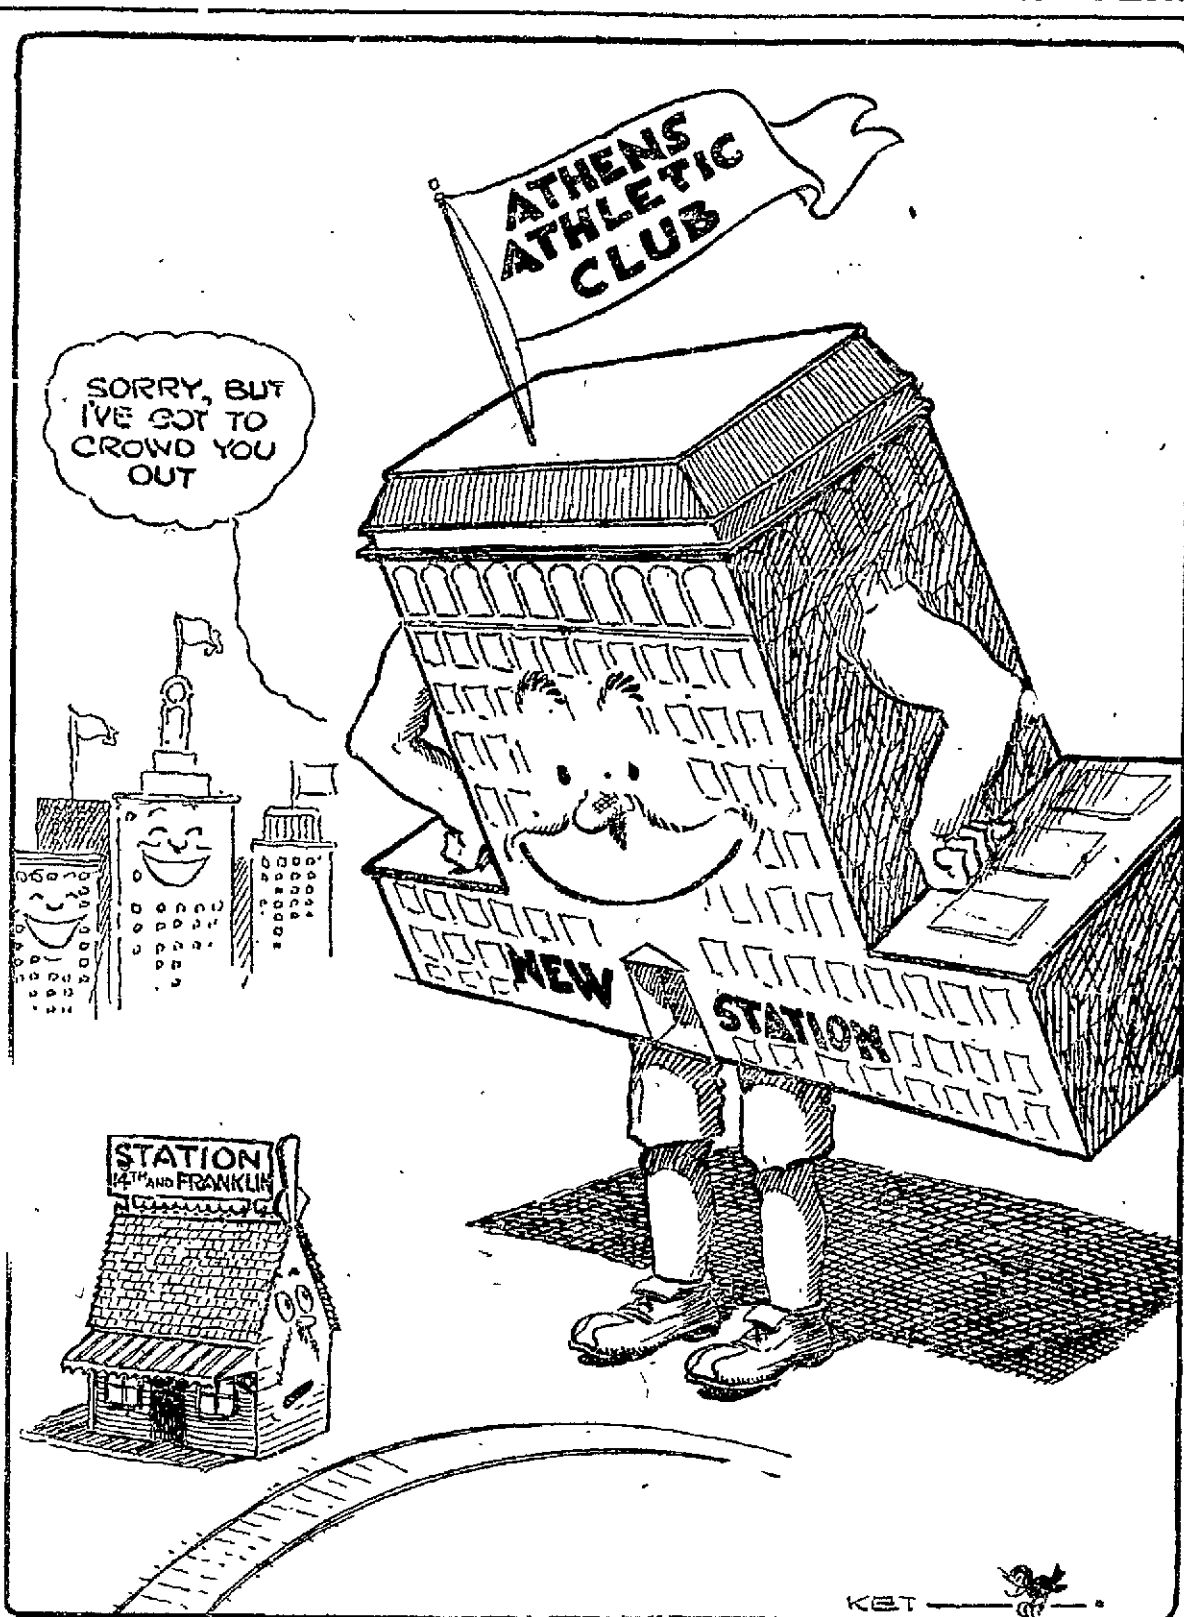

One may also understand how handy it is not to be a king. Imagine, for instance, how a king must feel after a hard day of kinging when he comes home from the office or the throne room and leans back in the royal morris chair to have the queen look up from her evening paper and remark:
"Oh, Henry, do you know I saw a lovely little crown in a window today!"

"Umph, Oomph!" The royal uncompromising grunt.
"Yes, and so inexpensive. I do believe it weighs no more than four pounds and it is of the sweetest old gold. Really, Hen, I couldn't resist the spiffy diamonds on the points."

"Did you buy it?"
"Of course I did, and, Oh, Henry, old dear, I know you will be just as much pleased as I am. Now can you imagine some queens we know who go about wearing eight or ten-pound crowns? I find a four-pound crown serves the purposes of dignity just as well and is the heaviest I can wear without a headache. Aren't you proud of your little wife?"
"Umph, Oomph!"

NOTES and COMMENT

New York World: "Word has gone out from the White House that President Harding, contrary to precedent, will make no recess appointments. There is a large number of places to be filled, but the full list of lame ducks will not be made up until after November 7. Then the President may check up the deserving Republicans who have preferred claims and allot them to their desirable offices as circumstances suggest. The demands on his favor are certain to be heavy. To dispose of the available patronage before the votes are counted would amount to denying hope and comfort to Senators and Representatives whose chances of re-election look doubtful."

New York Tribune: "Groaning wistfully over the happy days when radicalism paid, the most elegant of our radical weeklies makes a last despairing plea for idealism and subscriptions. It is no time to lose hope, though souls less stout are asking, 'What's the use?' Its weary business office advertises: 'There are weary thousands—tired radicals, tired reformers, tired idealists—who have surrendered.'"

Portland Oregonian: "Uncle Joe Cannon, as he journeys westward this week over the route which he and his parents traversed 33 years ago in emigrating from the hills of North Carolina to the fertile lowlands of Illinois, presents a study in contrasts that gives reality to the romance of American life. The first journey was made by ox team through a region not always provided with passable roads. 'Uncle Joe' now rides in ease and comfort in an automobile. If his parents were exceptionally fortunate and met with no accidents on the way, they might have expected to travel 15 miles in a day; it will not greatly overtax the endurance of a man of 87 now to make 30 times that distance between early breakfast and late dinner. Moreover, he will pass through a country nearly every day."

SPIRIT of the STATE PRESS

Ducks and drives come along about the same time of the year. To participate in the joys of the duck season we must go out and get 'em. To participate in the joys of the drives we merely have to sit and wait for the solicitor, who, after all, is getting the most real satisfaction out of the drive because he is giving service to some organization which has a real place in the development of the nation.—Vallejo Chronicle.

What has San Francisco done to Oliver Morosco, theatrical manager, that he should in the very camp of the enemy, or very close to it, say that the northern metropolis had been "relegated to a cheap amusement city by the advent of the motion picture." He was being interviewed at Santa Barbara and added insult to injury, perhaps, as far as San Francisco is concerned, by adding this was not true of Los Angeles and New York. Anyway, nobody has had the nerve to slam the city by the Golden Gate on its musical side.—Stockton Record.

DISCOVERS OAKLAND.

To the Editor of the Tribune:

I have a real grievance against your city and will ask you to help me locate who is to blame, and take Discovery Day as the time to ask why it took me so long to "discover" Oakland. I do not believe I am to blame, for I have made a specialty of reading advertisements of what various cities offer and then looking them up through their literature and in a number of cases visiting them personally.

I lived six years steadily in Los Angeles, and have been there about half the time the last six years, so know a great deal about the advantages and disadvantages of that city and suburbs. Of course I knew about Oakland in a general way, as I have gone through it many times—on the trains. Knew that since the earthquake in San Francisco many people came here from that place to live, but looked upon it as a "bedroom" to San Francisco. And that seems to be the idea of most people, I find.

Most of my life has been lived in Iowa and South Dakota—states that have helped to build up Southern California. The former considers that California is IN Los Angeles, while folks in the latter state usually speak of "going to Long Beach" rather than to California.

Wanting something different from Southern California, I spent several months last year in Seattle and a delightful city in many respects. My attention was called to the Eastbay cities by a resident here as offering the good features of Los Angeles and Seattle, without their undesirable ones. I immediately wrote your Chamber of Commerce, who sent me the Annual Oakland TRIBUNE, which was surely a surprise to me, for in all my investigation I have never seen a piece of publicity for a city that can equal that.

I came last January to see how much of it was true, and found there was even more here than you advertise. I found the business concerns as advertised—the wonderful opportunities for more commercial enterprises of all kinds—a splendid class of people, yet who do not half realize what they have to offer the world. Los Angeles first attracts people by its climate and places of interest. I have enjoyed every single day of your climate since last January the eighth, and I understand it has not been nearly up to your average. But the roads and drives and WONDERFUL scenery and views in what I can't get over. Why don't you TELL the public about it? If your Chamber of Commerce will begin a fuller system of publicity and get INQUIRIES your Annual Edition will do the rest. As it is only a small percent of our eastern visitors ever so much as go through "this neck of the woods" and when they do they usually "go to the city" to Los Angeles, skirting the undeveloped bay shores and having little idea of your beauties of natural surroundings, fine climate for both summer and winter as well as splendid business opportunities. And these eastern VISITORS have brought the wealth and enterprise that has made Los Angeles the metropolis of California.

JUST FOLKS

MY HOPE.

This is my hope, that no friend shall call
And find me but selfish after all;
That never a kindly word shall die
On my lips unspoken as men go by;
That I shall not sit with the setting sun,
Counting the deeds which I might have done.

This is my need for the common day,
To play the man as I go my way,
To meet what comes with an upturned face
And bring to my duty a touch of grace,
To do what I must, and a little more—
To do what I can till the day is o'er.

To do what I can that will scatter cheer
And brighten the lives of my neighbors here;
To speak in kindness, and now and then
To serve the needs of my fellow men;
Never to sigh at the long day's end
Over wasted chances to play the friend.

This is my hope, when the day shall close,
That I may go to my night's repose
Glad with the thought that I've done my best
And haven't failed in some simple test,
Without regret at the setting sun
For some kindly deed which I could have done.

WHY "OIL CAN"?

There are signs that "dumb-bell," a beautiful epithet, and in many ways not inferior to "flivver," is retiring in favor of "oil can."
Slang has always been resourceful in finding epithets for the person who is obtuse; whose mental processes are slow, who is overdeliberate in coming to little decisions on little matters. "Bone head," "solid ivory," "every bone in his head," "lack of terminal facilities," "great man from the top of his head up," need no glossary. To bring the list down to date, there is "dumb-bell." It has had a fairly long run, and in spite of its familiarity, is still considered passable in the best slang circles. It is short, obvious and always handy.

And why "oil can"? Do our slang craftsmen see in that term merely something which belongs to a bygone era illumination and architecture? Do they think of something that is covered with cobwebs, and laid away in a dark corner? Or do they care how it is to be taken? Probably they simply want another new synonym as an addition to the long list of terms characterizing the many phases of human errors. One thing is certain, they have changed Pope's famous couplet to read:

Be not the last by whom the new is tried,
Nor yet the last to lay the new aside.

CALIFORNIA TEACHERS OPEN CONVENTION HERE

ATTENDANCE IS DOUBLE OF EXPECTATION

Notable Educators of State and West Take Part in Eleventh Convention of State Association Here.

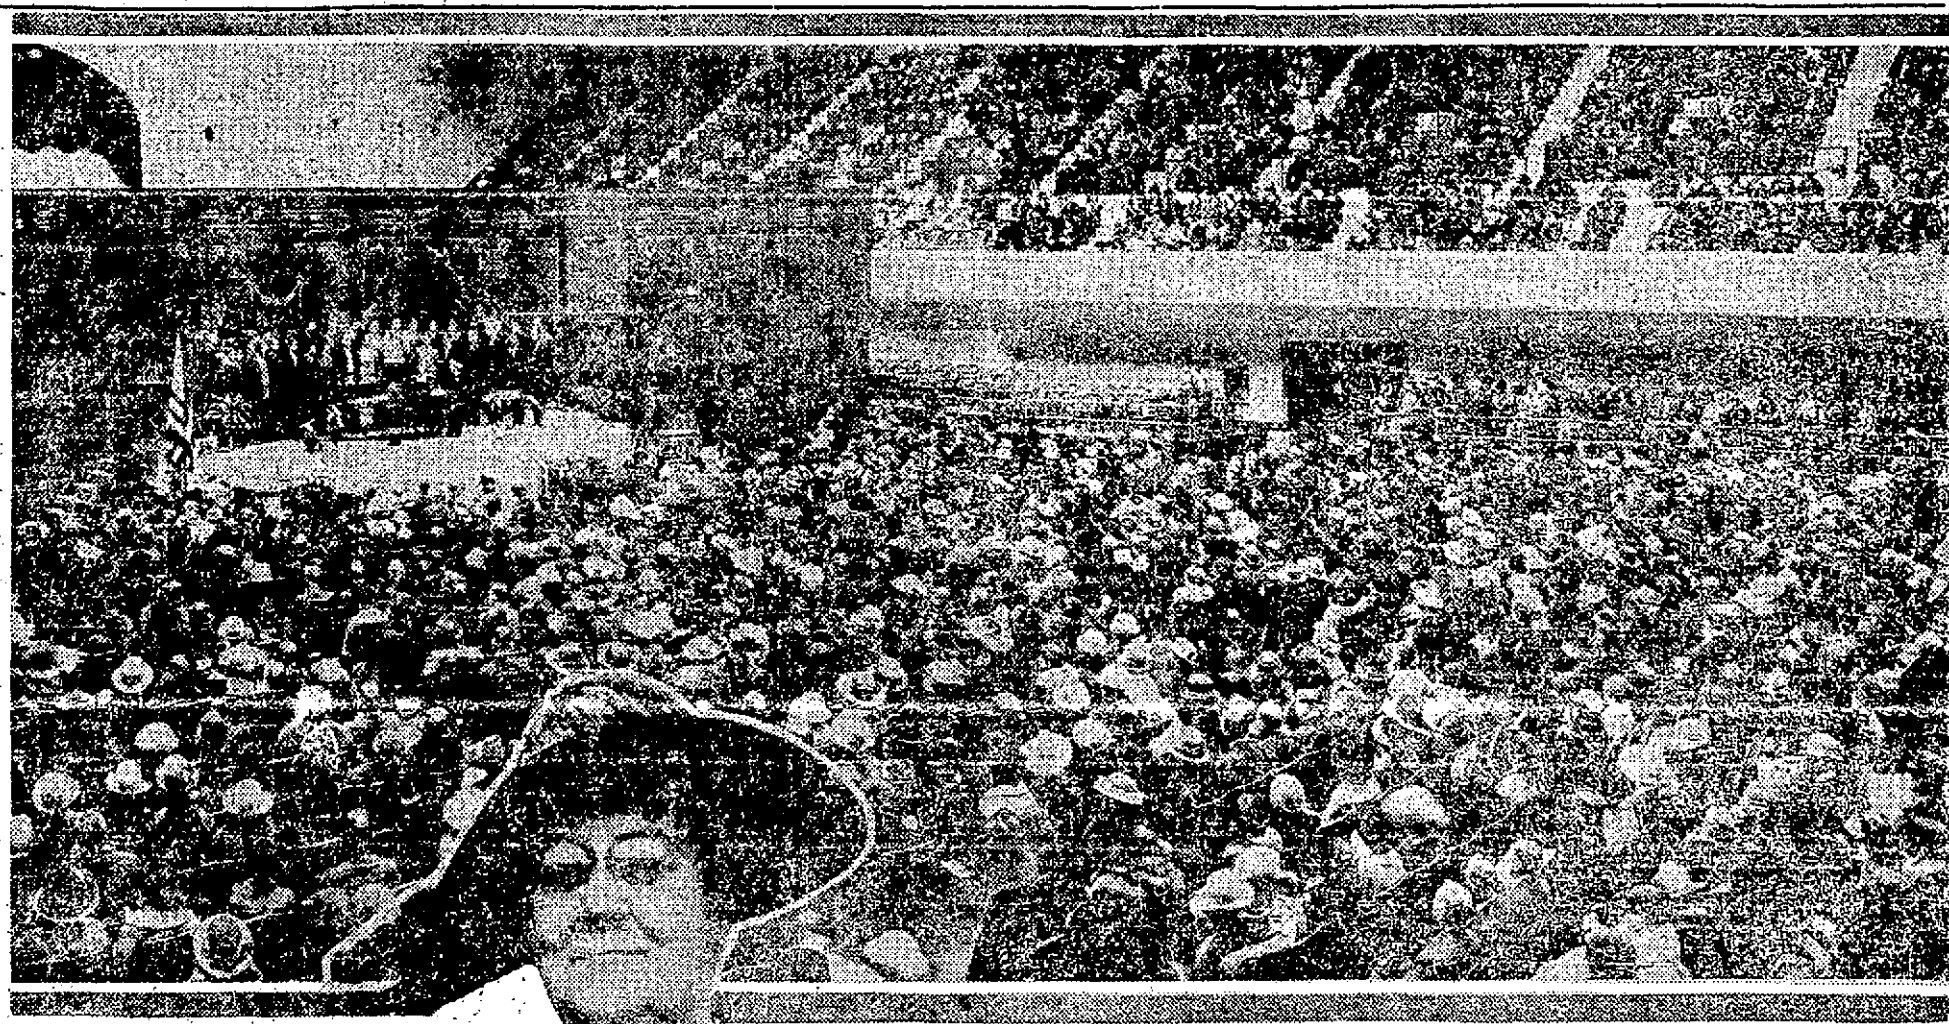

Oakland gave itself over to the educators of California today. More than 5000 pedagogues of Alameda, Contra Costa, Lake, Marin, Santa Clara, Sonoma and Stanislaus counties assembled in the arena of the Municipal Auditorium at 10 o'clock this morning to launch the eleventh annual convention of the bay section, California Teachers' Association.

The three-day meeting will be notable in that only western educators and those very largely California educators will have a place on the program.

Miss Elizabeth Arlett, the first woman in many years to preside over the important organization, declared in calling the convention to order that promptitude, brevity and practicality would mark its history.

The gathering is the largest which has ever been held by the bay section. With preparations originally made for 2500, the committee has been forced within the last few days to find accommodations for double the number and to utilize every available auditorium offered in this city, including Ebell and the Young Women's Christian Association, and to borrow quarters from Berkeley.

President is made this year in conducting the meeting on a budget system which has permitted various sections to make a wide choice of authoritative speakers. General sessions have been eliminated so far as possible to permit conferences of the various groups.

Here is a part of the throng of teachers who attended today at the Auditorium Arena the opening session of the California Teachers' Association, bay region. Below is MISS ELIZABETH ARLETT, president of the section.

WOULD BEGIN YOUNG.

The next twenty or thirty years will witness the child being placed in the schoolroom at four years of age and the creation of a division in public education devoted to prenatal and maternal care and infant welfare, according to Dr. Ellwood P. Cubberley, dean of the school of education at Stanford University, addressing the opening session today. Dr. Cubberley discussed various phases of a "Reconstructed Educational System."

With education reaching back to the pre-natal period, with the child entering school at four years of age, the speaker offered as his belief that further development would come in the Junior high school and in the Junior college. He stressed the fundamental importance of education in national life and national welfare.

of fiscal independence to school boards was urged by Dr. Cubberley. He pleaded for larger expenditures of funds to retain the present grade of intelligence and to promote the readjustment necessary to prepare boys and girls to meet the world.

"The expenditure of more money in rural schools is the only recipe to the problem of rural life," the speaker declared.

"California schools are better situated in this respect than any other state," he said. "Here is recognized the principle that taxes should be levied where the money is and spent in districts where the children are."

HEADS IN POLITICS.

Country superintendents are too much in politics, Dr. Cubberley complained. Equalization of opportunity for every child and nationalization of education were sponsored by the speaker.

Professional loyalty was called for by Miss Arlett in her opening address. Humorous she prophesied that many of the delegates would complain that there was not a thing in the three full-day programs that interested them. These she recommended to attend the sessions most remote from their interest.

Oakland Vocational High School Boys' Glee Club, under the leadership of Miss Lulu G. Merchant presented the half hour of music at the inaugural session.

Lockwood Junior High School Band, choruses by the Berkeley High School Glee Club and vocal solos by Elsa Behlow Trautner contributed the program this afternoon in the Auditorium Opera House, which brought together the music section.

Arthur G. Walbridge, Fresno Teachers' College, and Miss Bertha Weber, Contra Costa county, were the speakers.

Eugene Mathews was the principal speaker before the drawing and fine arts section this afternoon.

"PROBLEMS CONSIDERED." Citizenship problems were considered by the evening school and Americanization sections. The speakers were Mrs. Anne Godfrey, U. S. Naturalization Department; Felicia Evans, Alameda; Rabbi Rudolph I. Coffee; Miss Ethel Richardson.

Adult foreign born students in the Burbank evening school, Berkeley, presented historical dramas. Speakers before the home economic section, which met in the Technical school were Dr. Agnes Fay Morgan, University of California; Dr. Carl L. Alsberg, Stanford University. Round tables will be held tomorrow afternoon.

Tomorrow will be given over by the California Teachers' Association, bay section, to section programs. A partial schedule follows: Beginning at 9:30 a. m. - Elementary school, Auditorium theater, speakers, will C. Wood, Dr. W. W. Kemp, Teachers' college, San Jose.

Dramatic art, auditorium hall, room, speakers, Samuel J. Hume, Doris E. McEntyre, president of Dramatic Teachers' Association of California; Miss Virginia Sanderson, San Jose; H. D. Brastfield, Oakland.

Dramatic Art Is Urged in Schools

The Drama Association of California, the only organization of its kind in the United States, has been given an important place on the program of the Bay City Teachers' Institute. Tomorrow morning's session of the institute will include a meeting of the drama association in the ivory parlors of the Hotel Oakland, at which Miss Doris E. McEntyre, director of the Institute, will preside, and at which the list of speakers will include Samuel J. Hume, Principal H. D. Brastfield of Fremont High School, Virginia Somes Sanderson, and Miss McEntyre.

"The Importance of Dramatic Art for the Schools of California" will be the subject of the talk given by Samuel J. Hume, who will be the principal speaker.

Brastfield will explain how dramatic art can be made a part of the high school curriculum. Virginia Somes Sanderson will give an outline of the drama association's plans for a journal to be published by the teachers this year. Miss McEntyre will outline the future plans for the co-operative enterprises of the drama association in California.

Furniture Men of State to Open Convention Thursday

Delegates from all parts of the state, representing the principal furniture stores of California, will arrive in Oakland this week for the annual three-day convention of the Retail Furniture Association of California, which will convene here Thursday.

It was estimated today by C. F. Thompson of Oakland, chairman of the general committee on arrangements, that at least 150 members of the association would be here. The registration list has already exceeded 100 according to Thompson, and a record-breaking attendance roll is looked forward to.

All sessions of the convention will be held at the Hotel Oakland. The entire three days—Thursday, Friday and Saturday—will be completely occupied with a program of business sessions and entertainment.

"ENTERTAINMENT PLANNED." All furniture men in the city are making ready to welcome the delegates, and Oakland's civic organizations and luncheon clubs are preparing to take part in the reception program. On Saturday, the closing day of the meeting, the delegates will be taken on an automobile tour of the Eastbay. The route will take them through the business district of the city, over the Skyline boulevard and other points of beauty. Berkeley, the University of California campus, Alameda, Hayward and San Leandro.

When the convention is called to order Thursday morning by E. A. Saxe, San Francisco, president of the association, problems confronting furniture dealers will be immediately placed before the organization and this will provide the bulk of the topics discussed at the meeting.

Jury Selected in S. P. Damage Suit

A jury was selected today before Superior Judge St. Sure to try the damage suit of Alexander Fingold against the Southern Pacific Company and Morris Learner, in which the sum of $21,250 is asked. Fingold alleges in his complaint that he was riding with Learner June 23, 1921, in an automobile which was struck by an electric train at Seventh and Harrison streets.

EALS COME CLOSE TO BREAKING LEAGUE WINNING RECORD

LEE ANDERSON, MIDDLE-WEIGHT, ARRIVES HERE FOR BOUT WITH C. KRAMER

EALS WON PENNANT BECAUSE THEY FORMED BEST CLUB IN LEAGUE

Ellison and Hal Rhyne, Who Were "Goals" For Fans Early in Season, Are Now Holding Space in Baseball Hall of Fame

By EDDIE MURPHY

Another season of the Pacific Coast League has passed into history, and the San Francisco Seals are crowned as the new champions and at their park in San Francisco the championship pennant will fly next season. The best team won the pennant, without a question. It was a victory of youth over experience, if anyone should want to get too inquisitive. The Vernon Tigers, runners up for the bunting were a team of much experience and very little youth, while every Seal with the exception of Sam McGraw behind the plate, Jim Scott, the best clunker of the Seal lot, and one or two other pitchers, are all of the age that leaves them still fit for work in the major league if they show the right stuff. The fans all over the circuit have to doff their hats to Jack (Dots) Miller for making good his first season in the major circuit of the Class AA clubs. The owners gave Jack everything to work with. They did not let anything undone to get a real ball club.

It takes more than just having the good ballplayers to win a pennant. It takes a good leader who knows his stuff. Take the Los Angeles Angels club for an example. At the start of the season they were expected to be up in the fight all season, and were really the favorites to win the flag. They had a whole flock of major league stars. They delivered big for awhile, but mid-season saw them doing the "in and out" stuff and two months ago they were as good as out of the running. Jack Miller has a winning way, and he had everyone of his players working tooth and nail for him.

Ellison, Rhyne Make Fans Across the Bay Like Them.

Two of the athletes who at the start of the season were the "goals" in taking the criticism handed down by San Francisco fans, were two of the main cogs in winning the bunting for the Seals. Jimmy Caveney went to the big tent and Manager Miller, not seeing anyone better than Bert Ellison, who could fill Jimmy's shoes, switched Bert into the short position. Three days were more than enough at short for Ellison. The willing worker was unable to fill the shoes near as well as Jimmy Caveney, maybe because he knew the fans expected too much. The fans rode Bert until he got out of there. Bert finally landed at first base, where he stayed all season and did not need a word of criticism. The club is what made Bert so strong with the Seal fans. He delivered more than a baseball that turned what looked like defeat into victory. Hal Rhyne is the other lad who was a "goal" for the fans early in the season. They picked on little Hal to do a job that Ellison failed at. Rhyne also had a tough time of it at the start, but he was given words of encouragement each day by his manager, Jack Miller, and he fought against the big odds until he finally won himself a place in the San Francisco Club house of fame. Now the San Francisco fans, the owners and fans all over the circuit are ready to vote Rhyne to be a second Jimmy Caveney in another season.

Seals Finish With Second Best Per Cent in History.

The figures are at hand to show that the San Francisco Club won the greatest to be in the league in at least sixteen years. In 1906 the Portland Beavers won the pennant with a percentage of .657. The closest that any club has ever come to that mark is this season. The Seals did it by winning up with a percentage of .637. In 1909, when the Seals again won the flag, they came rather close to the mark having a percentage of .629. Other teams will have to write up the Seal in the annual league report as being one of the greatest minor league clubs ever assembled.

Here's M. Siki Again

A new photo of BATTILING SIKI, the former jungle boy who rose to fame by his defeat of the gorgeous Georges Carpentier, idol of France. This picture was taken in Siki's training quarters in France, showing him going through an exercise with the Indian clubs. Note the powerful biceps on the fighter's arms and the stocky build—it was this bundle of physical endurance that sent down Carpentier to defeat in the sixth round and surprised all the sporting world. "Imagine a jungle ape being taught to box—you then have Siki," was the words of the latter's manager after the Carpentier fight.

Darcy-King 10-Round Bout Is Postponed
PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 16.—The Jimmy Darcy-Tom King ten-round fight scheduled at Milwaukee, Ore. for October 21, off for the time being. Matchmaker Kendall received a telegram yesterday from Dan MacKettick, Darcy's manager, saying Darcy's child is ill and that he can't hit the Oct. 24 date, but that he might appear here October 21. Kendall says he will put on the bout at Milwaukee on the 21st, providing Darcy can reach Portland at least a week before that date to train.

Badgers Look To Be Well Up Among Big 10

Wisconsin Developing Strong Overhead Attack With Veteran Quarter.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 16.—Coach Richards has whipped his Badgers into such shape that they look more like title aspirants than was thought probable at the beginning of the season.

Considerable hope is centered on "Shorty" Barr, quarterback, who piloted the team two years ago. Many plays are built around him, his ability as a passer giving Richards a chance to fully develop the forward pass.

A large part of Wisconsin's success will depend on the aerial route, there being a number of plays for each backfield man and end, and Barr's accuracy accounts for the large percentage of successful passes thus far seen on the practice field.

Sensational work may be expected in this department, with Captain Williams, Tebell and Irish on the receiving end. Although Coach Richards is by no means certain, the field has been narrowed down so that few changes are probable.

TEBELL A FIXTURE

Tebell is a fixture at the right wing. He plays consistent ball throughout the season. His work last year was of high caliber and he is going stronger than ever. Irish seems the best bet for the left end. He was a sub last season, but has developed fast this year and is outshining Polaski and Noite, who are candidates for the same job. At tackle the Badgers have two powerful men in Murray and DeLew. Hohfeld and Christensen are veteran guards. The pivot position is still doubtful, with Nichols taking the lead, but with Pearce and Alton close seconds. Altogether the line seems a strong one and has plenty of weight.

STRONG BACKFIELD

In the backfield the Badgers have some shining lights. Captain Williams, who created success last year, is doing so again with greater speed and power. He is at his place at left half, where he works to better advantage than at the right. Harris is also being used at full in place of Taft, who, although he is a good punter, seems to lack the necessary drive on straight plays. Barr at quarter completes the backfield that should go stellar work throughout the season.

At right half Gibson is doing better work than ever before, but is being rotated with Harris, who is more powerful and hits the line harder. Harris is also being used at full in place of Taft, who, although he is a good punter, seems to lack the necessary drive on straight plays. Barr at quarter completes the backfield that should go stellar work throughout the season.

Notre Dame Opened With Two Victories

NOTRE DAME, Ind., Oct. 16.—Coach Knute Rockne, now attempting to build a winning football team from a squad of 10 men who included a majority of freshmen, saw his first indication of success September 30, when his Fighting Irish beat Kalamazoo, 46-0, in the opener of a ten-game schedule, and again St. Louis, October 7, when he was defeated, 26-0.

Georgia Tech, West Point and Nebraska, representing the class of three sections of the country, will be met by the Fighting Irish. Notre Dame hopes will build or wreck. If Rockne's eleven, which will still be in the making at that time, can beat the Yellow Jackets on their home ground, the feat which no other team has accomplished for three seasons—prospects will be bright for the later games with experienced Army and Nebraska elevens. If Notre Dame comes off at Atlanta, little hope will be held for victories over West Point, Nebraska and Indiana, teams which have bowed to Notre Dame for three consecutive seasons.

Captain Connelley at end, Castner at fullback, Lieb and Cotton at tackles, Degree at guard and Thomas at quarterback, represent Rockne's working nucleus. Although none of these men was a full-fledged regular last year, all are fairly well seasoned.

Nearby Assistant Coach Helas, Rockne has longer Kiley, back at school completing his law course, who is assisting in coaching the line.

The party includes Joe Bush and Wayne Hoyt, Yankee pitchers; Herbert Pennoch, Red Sox; Emil Meusel and possibly Casey Stengel, of the champion Giants; Herbert Hunter, formerly of the St. Louis Cardinals; Amos Strunk and Phil Park, Chicago White Sox; Algie Stephenson and Ed Griffling, Cleveland Indians; Bert Griffith, Brooklyn Robins; Fred Hoffman, Yankees, and John Lavan, St. Louis Cardinals.

Eastern Grid Fans Awaiting Centre Contest

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Still feeling the effects of Iowa's 6 to 0 victory over Yale at New Haven Saturday, eastern followers of football are turning toward the tussle at Cambridge next Saturday when another East-West struggle takes place—that between Harvard and Centre.

Both these games, the Iowa-Yale and the Harvard-Centre, have an important bearing on the annual championship game of the West, which is without doubt the climax of the sport's eastern season.

Should Centre defeat Harvard, as it did last year, Yale's loss to Iowa would not affect the big game so much, but it will be further proof that the gridiron game of the West is somewhat better than that of the East, as Chicago last year and Iowa this year have about proved.

Harvard won from Bowdoin Saturday, piling up 15 points and keeping Bowdoin away from the crimson goal, and Centre defeated Virginia Poly, 10 to 6. The Virginia Tech team is generally believed, yet two of their best men sitting on the sidelines.

The outstanding feature of the Saturday games was the spectacular playing of Leland Parkin, who outplayed Aubrey Devine as Iowa's quarterback. He scored the winning touchdown, and made amazing end runs, line plunges and forward passes.

WITH THE KNIGHTS OF THE GLOVES

BOB SHAND.

Lee Anderson, the middle-weight colored heavyweight who is to make his debut before the Oakland boxing fans next Wednesday night, arrived in town yesterday and reported at the West End Gymnasium. Anderson is billed to meet Cliff Kremer in a four round or less bout and from all reports, he is going to make the big local boy work at his best. Anderson for a time held the colored heavyweight title and was quite a card until Kid Norfolk stepped into the ring with him, recently, and grabbed off the honors. Anderson has not given up hope of again becoming the champion, and is going to stay around here for awhile and do some milling. If he can get by alright, he will go after Norfolk for another match. Anderson arrived here from Portland where he spent several weeks trying to get matches, but found the business none too good and was finally talked into coming here to meet Kremer.

Kremer is not taking any chances of being bounced to sleep next Wednesday night, so he is a busy fellow these days at the Surf Club training quarters in Alameda. Harlan Dunker and Jack Reeves met defeat at the hands of Kremer, so the big fellow has plenty of game enough to tackle Anderson.

Frankie Denny is not going to let Steve Dalton get away with any laurels next Wednesday if he can help it. For the "seventh time," he is going to try to meet. They always show the fans a good time. The special event will be provided by Jimmy Callahan and Johnny McManus.

Eddie Mahoney is training hard for his engagement with George Laykine, the Southern California boy who will make his debut. Other bouts on the card are: Johnny Marvin vs. Frankie Oldrich; Pete Francis vs. Eddie Gorman; Abe Miskind vs. Monk Fowler.

No More Main Events at Vallejo Ring Show

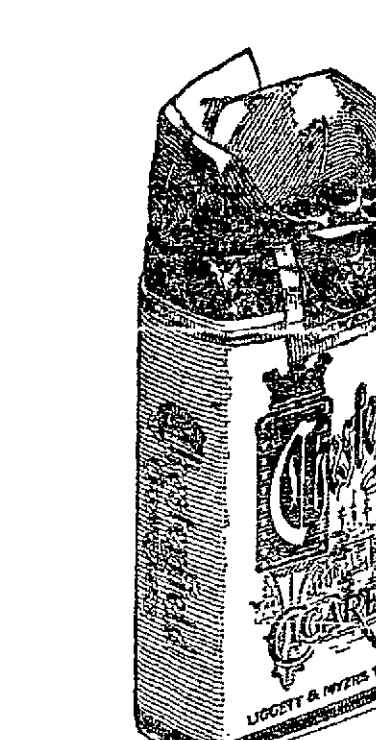

VALLEJO, Oct. 16.—No more main events for Gus Cole, the local matchmaker. Cole is disgusted with the last main event staged at the York street pavilion and says that from now on seven bouts will be staged for the benefit of the fans, and the boys from around the bay will be given an opportunity to secure some medals.

Rico Winner of Argentine Derby

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 16.—A grand prize national, known as the Argentine derby, was won yesterday by the three-year-old favorite, Rico. The race was worth $8,000 pesos. The distance was 2,500 metres, which Rico covered in two minutes, 37 seconds.

Oaks Battle Seals to Tie In Last Game

Locals Cop Morning Game When Ray Kramer Hurls High-Class Ball.

Fifteen thousand baseball fans of Oakland and San Francisco were on hand at Recreation Park in San Francisco, yesterday afternoon, to see the Oaks and Seals bring the season to a close and also to do honor to Willie Kamm, the flashy Seal third sacker. The Seals went down to a 7 to 1 beating in the morning game. Ray Kramer pitched for the locals and the Seals could do nothing with the shots he offered. They got eight hits, but only one in the pinch. Every Oak with the exception of Ted Cather got one or more hits in the morning.

The afternoon game resulted in a 4 to 4 tie, the game being called at the end of the ninth when the fans started leaving cushions all over the field. Krauss held the Seals to five hits, while the Oaks got fifteen off Bob Geary.

Willie Kamm was presented with a handsome diamond set platinum ring, and a lot of bouquets and everything. Kamm hit a home run as his farewell hit to the San Francisco fans. Harry Krauss also hit one for the circuit.

Alhambra High Too Strong for Vallejo

MARTINEZ, Oct. 16.—Alhambra High School's football squad added another victory to its list this season when it defeated the Vallejo High team at Vallejo Saturday afternoon 20 to 6. The Alhambra team took the lead early in the contest and could not be headed by the heavier Vallejo team. Saturday's win gives Alhambra four wins out of five games.

New Haven Club Is After Series With P. C. L. Champions

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 16.—The New Haven Eastern League baseball club has sent a message to President McCarthy of the Pacific Coast League challenging San Francisco, the pennant winner of that circuit, to a series with the local team which defeated the Baltimore International two out of three games last season.

The challenge, it was said today, was sent after reports were received that Baltimore would not go west to play the San Francisco club.

CURTAIN CALLS

By WOOD SOANES

WILLIAM Norman trips only the state of the Orpheum theater this afternoon arrayed in the finest of feminine garb he will look as if he didn't have a care in the world, all of which will go to prove once more that appearances are deceptive, to say the least, for beating under that wealth of female finery is a troubled male heart.

The reason for it is written in an eastern court document which states that Miss Budd, the dramatic soprano, plots that he be awarded the sum of fifty thousand dollars because she is heart broken due to Norman's breaking off of their engagement, leaving her.

TWENTY SEASONS AGO TODAY

John Philip Sousa and his celebrated band stopped in Oakland twenty years ago for a brief stay at the Macdonough theater. In the advertisement's Sousa announced the presence of a solo trombone player—Arthur Pryor. Significantly Pryor's band is nearly as famous as Sousa's now.

Miss Budd's breach of promise suit came as the recent climax to an announcement of her engagement to Norman which in itself created considerable comment in show circles for professionally the two are as unlike as the poles. Norman a former "song plugger" is now known as "The Creole Fashion Plate," a female impersonator of note. Miss Budd twice daily risks her life by sliding head-first down a slender cord from the apex of the proscenium arch to the stage.

Why Norman and Miss Budd failed to agree and whether or not he did not her must be told in court. Discreet silence is being maintained by both principals and the gossips of the Greenroom must continue to speculate yet a little while.

This one is "on" George Ebbel, managing director of the Fulton theater, J. Richard Ryan, manager, and Frank Darnen, stage director and if cornered they will admit it in tearful tones.

If they should attempt to gainsay it, ask Crane Wilbur for verification.

When Wilbur was playing his starring engagement with Suzanne Caubet at the Fulton this summer he submitted several plays to the theater management for production during his season. Among the plays was "The Monster." Darnen read it first and muttered "thumbs down" or words to that effect. Then Ryan read it and ejaculated "ditto" and then it went to Ebbel.

"I should say no," announced the managing director to the author. "As a play it's all right but it's not for this theater."

lend. This is the most shocking thing I've ever seen, etc., etc." So Wilbur took the play back and nothing more was said. Now "The Monster," produced without changes by Joseph Galies, is the particular hit of the season on Broadway. It is in its eighth week with Emmett Corrigan featured and the critics are lauding it as "the most shocking of shocks," "more shocking than 'The Bat' or 'The Cat and the Canary.'"

"And we might have had the premier here," groan Ebbel and Ryan and Darnen in chorus.

EXIT AND ENTRANCES

Chauncey Olcott is seriously ill at his New York home. Olcott was stricken with pneumonia poisoning after eating shell fish in a Paris restaurant. He returned home on the Royal Mail Steam Packet Orbits on October 10 and has been under care of physicians since.

Ralph D. Bushman, son of the once-famous motion picture star, Francis X. Bushman, is making his professional debut in Orpheum vaudeville. "When Love Is Young" is a romantic playlet in young Bushman's vehicle. His father's last Orpheum sketch was "Poor Man Rich Man" in which Beverly Bayne was co-starred.

Lucille Webster, wife of James G. Gleason, who made her professional debut in this city, is having one of the comedy parts in "Arcton of the Movies" being produced by George Tyler.

Officer Vokes and Don, an act well known to patrons of the vaudeville, is en route to the Oakland Pantheon. Vokes an Englishman with a sense of humor is billing himself as the man "who crossed the ocean because it is wet."

Gladys George, former leading woman of the Alhambra theater, is with the Denham theater company in Denver, replacing Orta Porter, who was forced out of the cast through an attack of appendicitis. Her new part is a comedy part in a professional career at old Liberty here. She is the stepdaughter of the late Guy Smith, well known theater manager who died in Pasadena recently.

Speaking of pictures and local people Orville Caldwell, selected by Elton Glyn as the perfect man and the recent picturesque leading man of "Mickey" has just signed a contract with B. P. Schulberg, the head of "Preferred Pictures." It is understood that Caldwell will be used in Katherine MacDonald's "First National attractions exclusively."

"Abie's Irish Rose," Morosco's latest turn-out is in its thirty-second week at the Morosco in Los Angeles and starts its twenty-second week today at the Republic theater in New York.

"Sally, Irene and Mary," which was played in vaudeville with great success last season, has been expanded into a full sized musical comedy and is playing to good business at the New York Casino.

Skunks Popular; Tradition Upset

Commencing with January 1922 the official United States export returns has listed the several varieties of fur skins separately. For the first half of the current year skunk and civet cat undressed skins led, with opossum a close second, and large quantities of unclassified skins third, each of the three mentioned subdivisions recording well over two million pelts, and the first two close to 2,800,000 each. Muskrat shipments were also high in the first half of the year approximating 1,750,000. The lowest unit values were recorded in opossums, well under seventy cents each, and the highest classification unit value was for at slightly under five dollars each.

Atlanta Enjoys Buyers' Influx

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 14.—A surprising influx of buyers came into this market today from four southern states. Their arrival coincided with the southeastern fair and industrial exhibit.

Jobbers here all expressed confidence in the prosperity of the next three months and dry goods merchants, wholesale and retail, are doing all the business they can handle.

Spring gingham are the leaders, the southern mills having taken the initiative in announcing prices. As some of the New England manufacturers have had production curtailed by the strikes in that section. Quotations on the better grades showed comparatively few changes.

California in Pawn!

That's what the proposed additional $500,000,000 bonded debt would do

ON the ballot at the election November 7th will be a proposed initiative amendment to the State constitution miscalled the water and power "act." This act provides: [1] For the creation of a new, appointive commission, to be named the water and power board, with authority to issue bonds of the State of California to the amount of half a billion dollars, and to invest the money virtually without restriction in water and power projects, yet unspecified, and in any incidental business; [2] That the board may hire such employees as it desires and fix their pay, without regard to the civil service; [3] That the board may also fix its own rates and, under the loose language of the act, it will be possible for the board to give preferential rates to favored communities; [4] That, in the event that the ventures in which the money is invested prove unprofitable the losses are to be made up out of taxes. Or bonds may be issued to pay expenses of operation or maintenance or interest on prior issues, thus pyramiding the state's debt. The act is an unlimited deficiency bill.

CALIFORNIA now has a bond debt exceeding that of any state except New York and Massachusetts. Should the additional 500 millions be issued the bond debt of California will amount to more than forty per cent of the aggregate bond debt of all the states of the Union.

In 1921, California paid in national, state and local taxes in excess of a million dollars a day. Her tax bill exceeded by four million dollars the gross value of all her crops; and California is an agricultural state.

CALIFORNIA CANNOT STAND THE DRAIN

Our prosperity cannot long stand such a drain. Taxes are a drag on every form of industry. And everybody pays taxes, if not directly, at least in his rent, his grocery bill, his light and water bills.

It is nonsense to say, as promoters of the act do, that there will be no increase of taxes because the ventures in which the money will be invested will pay for themselves. Who guarantees that these speculations will pay for themselves? The act makes ample provision for payment by taxpayers if the ventures result in losses instead of profits.

Nor is there any necessity or demand for such a speculation with the taxpayers' money. We have in California an abundance of power, cheaper than anywhere else in the country, served by private companies whose rates, financing and service are strictly regulated by public officials under the public utilities law. We now have the benefits of public ownership without its liabilities.

Adoption of the act would put all industry and every community in California under the heel of a political board with power to build up an impregnable political machine. It would impede the industrial growth of the State.

TAKE A LESSON FROM NORTH DAKOTA

You have not forgotten that in 1917 the Non-Partisan League, a name under which socialists masquerade, put the state of North Dakota into the wheat and flour business and into incidental banking and merchandising businesses.

Yet in three years the Non-Partisan League experiments with government in business had brought the state to a condition of economic prostration. Taxes trebled. It is a dismal story of incompetence and dishonesty. Then the people of North Dakota recalled the Non-Partisan administration; but the harm had been done.

TIME TO RING THE ALARM

The Non-Partisan League made the same confident promises in North Dakota that promoters of the water and power act are now making in California.

In January of this year the Non-Partisan League organized a California branch and set out to win political control of California.

The official bulletin of the League published in Berkeley announces that the Water and Power Act is one of the main provisions of the League's working program.

It is time to ring the alarm. It is time for every citizen interested in the welfare of California to take notice. Do not let the Non-Partisan Leaguers and their allied visionaries do to California what was done to North Dakota. People in North Dakota did not believe such a thing could happen, until it did happen. Take warning by their experience.

Vote against amendment number 19 on your ballot and save California.

Big Freighter.

Expert stevedoring, as well as first-class seamanship, was necessary to get the big freighter Pacific unloaded at the Lawrence Terminal last night. The steamer had aboard a cargo of 2000 tons of goods consigned to the Commercial Savings & Trust Company of this city. In order to land this safe without having it drop at the wharf it was necessary to rig a considerable amount of block tackle and booms to support those of the vessel. The unloading of the piece of cargo took nearly two hours of extremely cautious work.

The cargo of the Pacific was various in kind but has been unloaded onto an Oakland wharf. Included in it were shipments of 3500 bags of sulphate of aluminum, 2700 boxes of dry battery electric light globes, as well as a large amount of plate for local canneries, iron pipe and steel plates.

LAST LEG OF THE JOURNEY—Here's an observation car worth observing. It is a Southern Pacific exhibit at the California Industries Exposition in San Francisco. It represents the observation platform of the Overland Limited. The tourist in the picture is Miss Florence Sheldon, one of the S. P. employees. Beware of the dangerous curves.

"SMILES"—This picture of Bobby Thomas and Mildred Stephenson was submitted in The TRIBUNE Photograph Contest by Mrs. E. E. Thomas, 1808 Thirty-eighth avenue, Oakland.

TROUSERS IN HER TROUSSEAU—There are two pairs of trousers in this family. The picture shows Mr. and Mrs. Frank Keables Kretz in their wedding costumes. They were married in Enfield, Conn., and are on their way to California by auto. They used to call a trousered woman a pantaloonatic, but nobody snickers at knickers now.

SULTANA OR GIRL BELL-HOP?—Despite the fez and the brass buttons, it is neither. It is a picture of Priscilla Dean in the uniform she wears in "Under Two Flags," a new Universal film.

CALIFORNIA'S PIONEER AUTO—Believed to be oldest "gas buggy" in the State. A 19-2 model Holman, still in possession of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Albers of Healdsburg, who are seen in this old-time photo. They owned the second auto in California, bought in 1900. They sold it and bought this one later. It would seem that "four wheels do not a speedster make, nor rubber tires a racer."

"START THE MOVIE BALL ROLLING!"—This is the motto of the society girls shown in this picture. They are selling tickets for the Oakland movie ball. They are, left to right: Sylvia Haafsa, Louise Lovely, Mildred Newman, and Nettie Farrar at back.

TO WED JERSEY SOLO—Miss Camilla Sewall of Bath, Maine, whose engagement to Senator Walter E. Edge of New Jersey, will, according to rumor, be announced shortly. She is the granddaughter of Arthur Sewall, now dead, who was candidate for Vice-President on the Bryan ticket in 1896.

My Marriage Problems

Chickie Garrison's New Phase Of Revelations of a Wife

How Katie Led Madge and Lillian Down the Lonely Lane.

Katie sprang from the couch on which Lillian and I had deposited her but a few minutes before, as if she never had known a tremor. Either the pungent restorative Lillian had brought her or my drastic threat to look her up—probably the combination—had quieted her hysteria and had given her new poise.

"Here my cloak?" she asked. "Lillian took it from a chair and handed each of us a heavy dark veil, the next minute beginning to tie one on her own head.

"Wrap your heads in these," she said, "and keep your faces covered as much as you can. We want to get as near you, Katie, as we can, and we don't want to be seen."

"You bet!" Katie declared emphatically. It is her favorite expression of acquiescence and she uses it in season and out of season, much as Jerry Tiger does his invariable "Yes, Ma'am," no matter what the sex of the person to whom he is speaking. "You bet! I won't let anybody see you. I get out! Mister Dicky say 'merry hell' and eat out—eat an' body see you?"

"Not you mean?"

With her ostrich propensity she was still keeping up the fiction that we did not know the sex of the person who had so terrified her. "Nobody will," Lillian said confidently, then, as Katie turned toward the kitchen, instead of the front door, she asked quickly, "Which way are you going?"

Katie stopped and looked at us uncertainly.

"You say don't seem no stop me tonight," she asked.

"No, Katie, he will not trouble you tonight," I returned, and she must have caught something unconsciously ominous in my tone, for she turned on me quickly, determined "not to be seen by dot."

"Nothing at all," I returned, making my tone purposely impatient. "We told you before that Jim had promised Mrs. Underwood not to interfere with you tonight. Now tell us which direction we are going, how far and—"

"We going on dot old wood road to Sag Harbor, just beyond dot beeg creek, where dot automobile got turned over. Here a little road turn off from beeg road, and we go down dot a few feet out of sight."

I shivered impressively, for I knew the spot, and a lonelier, more dangerous place for a night encounter with a probably desperate man could not be imagined. The road is a winding, tortuous one, a chain of sylvan beauty in the light, but a dangerous thoroughfare by night, and there were not a dozen cars a night traversing it.

"But that is a mile around the road," I said. "We never can make it in time."

"HOOSIE—LISTEN!" Katie returned. "Dot only little offer half mile across pasture and through dot wood path to beeg road, and I can feel you up fine in place to hide were you can hear anything."

"All right," Katie went ahead. I said impatiently, and in another minute we were outside the house with Mother Graham latching the door behind us. That old lady was a tempestuous with terror for us. I well knew, and I mentally paid tribute to her gallant spirit in keeping down any expression of her feeling as she saw us forth.

"Shade those flashlights, and keep their light on the ground," was the only advice she had given us as she led us out the door, and we accepted and acted upon the suggestion as soon as the intense darkness made it necessary for us to use them.

I shall not soon forget that tollsome nerve-racking journey through the pasture land and the woods to the old wood road, Katie, because she knew the trail, stalking ahead, using the flashlight in the more difficult places, leading us through the maze of a distinct outline in the easier places. The only words uttered were a whisper of mine to Lillian when we had gone but a few rods on our way.

"Suppose he discovers us and turns ugly."

Lillian did not speak in reply, but she reached out her left hand, took mine and guided it to the thing which the fingers of her right hand were firmly grasping. I had no need for words as I touched the cold steel. I recognized the little "snapper" pistol which Lillian only carries in moments of unusual danger.

I needed nothing more to tell me what estimate she placed upon the encounter before us.

And then we had come out upon the wood road, and in another minute had glided into the other path and were being hidden by Katie, in a little thicket of bushes from which we could distinctly hear voices either on the main road or in the little lane. Katie, herself, stayed with us, whispering to us.

"Ven I hear whistle, one, two—one, two, three, den I go out—merry hell!"

Down the road came the expected signal, and the girl stepped out into the little lane. The whistle came nearer, so quickly and with such absence of other noise that it did not take Shock Holmes to deduce that the man was riding a bicycle. We were so intent upon the queer whistle that we heard only subconsciously the noise of an approaching motor car in the opposite direction.

And then—the sight haunts my eyes yet—the car rounding the curve, caught the cyclist who had no lamp and nudged him almost to our feet.

Time's Humors.

Time changes—
And with it customs—
And sitting in the game of life—
Time holds up all his aces—
And never seeks to run a bluff—
Upon the future—
By standing on a pair of deuces—
Which brings to mind the men who led—
Life's battles—in those days gone by.
I see them now there standing—
With flowing mane—and manner stern—
With right hand hidden in the bosom—
Draped in a long Prince Albert coat—
And as they faced the multitude—
Of cheering mad-men—
They snatched the stars from out the vault—
Of trembling heavens—
And waved Old Glory round their heads—
And in loud raucous thunder tones—
They trifled with emotions—
That brought man up to tip-toe pitch—
Loud shouting—in wild acclaim.
And if one would be congressman—
He wove a spell of eloquence—
Around your reeling senses—
He never told you where he stood—
Upon most vital questions—nor did he have to—
He hooked you with his fiery talk—
About the glory of our flag—and of our nation.
His colder reason—
So oftentimes in those old days—
We found much to our sorrow—
That he who talked of flags and stuff—
Would turn out just a sorry bluff—
Upon tomorrow.
And so old Time has worked a change—
To me it seems just passing strange—
That long we married—
And now if you'd be constable—
Or governor or county clerk—
You've got to tell folks you will work—
To make our lives worth living.
And as you stand before the throng—
In short sack coat—and sing your song—
Don't bother then to bring your flag—
Just point with pride—"I'll not say brag—
But say in voice alluring—
That taxes must come down—
For they are past enduring.
I miss the men who waved the flag—
They cheered and thrilled me—
And taught my feeble wings to flap—
In distant clouds—
But still today it is immense—
To tread on heels of common sense.

A Good Style for the Business Girl.

(No. 1533)

Your everyday frock would give excellent service if you made it from this pattern and fashioned it from serge, tweed or homespun. The woman who often makes her own clothes will find no difficulty in finishing this dress in a day. If homespun at $1.00 per yard and linen for collar, cuffs and vest at 50c per yard were chosen as the best choice, the dress would cost about $3.75.

The pattern No. 1533 cuts in sizes 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3 1/2 yards 36-inch material with 1/2 yard 36-inch contrasting.

Sweet Stranger

by Bertha Ruck

"Take," my brother was saying, "that man in the train. We had to help you pick up those beads, didn't we? Surely, that was all right?"

Quite coldly the girl replied, "But—there was something else that you picked up and kept. My mascot."

"Yes, The little jade god," from Jim. "After you'd gone. The thing was in the turn-up of my trouser. Did you imagine that I'd kept my mascot on my person, until you were out of the way? Well, I hadn't done that."

"You held on to it," she accused. "You advertised to know where you should bring it. Bring it! You used it as the way you might get to know a girl. What you should have done was to send the mascot back straight to some box at the paper."

Very respectfully, Jim replied, "I see. And—next thing I did wrong?"

"Why? When I answered you through that—that extraordinary Personal Column of yours that you have over there, you didn't even send back the jade god that belonged to one of your Bond street friends. Didn't you go out and buy one especially to send to me instead?"

Jim admitted, "Yes, I did." "She went on to say, 'Well, now wasn't that an impudence to send a present like that to a woman who did not even know your name—no! I don't want to know it!' she cried as Jim's lips parted. 'The mascot I lost I wore it because it had been given to me for luck by some one I care a good deal about at home.'"

She caught my eyes. "I said I always wear it on my neck, and I made strange. But it wasn't real jade, just a little imitation thing that she gave to me because I liked it. But you—you went and bought a real jade one out of your Bond street to send to me! I could see by just the look of the little box it came in that it was valuable! Valuable!" she repeated angrily.

Benighted, I looked upon and listened to this American, who, because she found the gift of price, stormed at the giver.

"If it isn't just like you mean!" she declared. "You are an idea of pleasing a girl? You go out and buy something for her that costs dollars and dollars and dollars—"

My poor Jim, with his divining wand, went on to say, "Well, I don't think it so fine of you! We'd think more of you, maybe, if you'd thought first whether you might be intruding on my pride than to buy me a mascot. You should have sent back the mascot that you'd found."

"I see," from Jim, quietly. "By rights—yes. And then what?"

"Then," she persisted, "that made me—'as if I were so easy to know.' Cheap. 'No, no,' he put in sharply. 'Never! Please don't say that. And then you put me in the terrible awkward position. You forced me to feel I'd be ungracious if I sent it back—your present, a mascot. Because you were English, and I didn't know how you'd take things. I was sailing for home, she pursued. 'I told you so I wrote out that other advertisement in your Times for you to let me know how I was and after I'd come back home, I found you'd come over here. Well, maybe you'd be a right to travel, where you like. But then you did that other—that unforgivable thing!'"

"Do you mean," said Jim, with gravity, "that film business?"

"Certainly I mean that film business!" she retorted. "I don't know how you came to think of such a thing—piling my name on to that!"

"But I—'Hooray!'—'I gave him first contradiction. 'Forgive me, but your name didn't come into that. Until my sister and I were in Chicago the other day, we'd never even heard your name.'"

"Ah, you were in Chicago, then, asking about me? Oh, what did matter that my name wasn't on your message? All my friends knew. That odious, horrible message on the screen. They knew that it was mine!"

"How dared you call me 'Queen America'?"

"But I—"

"You didn't even know my name, but you gave me a nickname. Then without my permission, you went way over to my home-town to seek me! I suppose you were with my friends?"

Jim nodded admittingly.

"Yes! Asking them about me! Following me about! Hunting me down. It was a—chase! That is no flattery to a woman in these days either," she declared.

"That's another mistake that you can make! 'Women like it,' you go on saying. 'The truth is the reverse of us,' panted the girl, 'some of us have got a long ways from the cave!'"

I listened, my threshold forgotten, for I could not but be amused, as a Canadian, with all the cave-men's keenness and love of the great outdoors, but gentler, with, say, the sensitive hands of the modern airman. He could have made of me anything but the passive prey.

"By getting a little of this sort of type of girl, I realized something of the rich variety of Life and Love. A breath from another world seemed to stir in the mountain breeze about her."

"Did you make me think of another English officer that I met over in France," she went on, "who was just mad about big game shooting. Every thing was a 'head' to bring down? You've been like that about finding me? The truth is the reverse of us," panted the girl, "some of us have got a long ways from the cave!'"

"To begin with," he said, "About keeping that mascot. Anyhow, about sending you that other one. I never—Good Lord, I never thought about it's coming from Bond Street. I'd seen those little jade fellows in the window there, and I thought they looked rather like the jade I got. I never thought about whether yours was real jade or what. All I wanted was to get the nicest that I could see for you. As for talking to your friends. Well! what did you expect me to do when I found that by the merest chance we'd a friend in common?"

"A friend in common—"

"Yes, Claudia Crane. She came over on the boat with us, and we met her in Chicago."

"She told you where to find me? Jim? Crane? I should have thought she could have told you how mad I was about it all."

"She didn't. Seemed to think it was better for me to find out by myself," added my poor Jim.

"Then about this film-business. I just thought of it as the only way, you know. No name, no address, no clue. Ought I to have written round to every one of your war-working contacts over here to try to get the jade god?"

"That," he said, "before I hit on the question to which, that seemed more direct—Where is Cousin America? I'd nothing else to call you. I was blessed if I knew what I ought to do!"

"You ought," she said implacably, "to have let it alone."

"Ah, I couldn't," Jim said quickly, quietly. "As for getting your name talked about, well I needn't say how frantically sorry I am about that. I—but—of course I agree. Well do you suppose I don't know it's the last thing any decent man would want? To get the girl—any girl's name talked about? Least of all the name of the girl. Least of all your name."

"And yet," she said, "you did it." "Yes. But look here," he took up, "none of your friends need have known that 'Cousin America' was meant for you."

"You mean, why did I tell them?" I had to explain to Martha—the girl who gave me the little green god—why I didn't wear it any more. "I thought I'd lost it or hadn't cared. It was a luck-charm."

Jim, harking back again. "Then as for my coming over here. Pursuing you, as you say it was—I wanted to explain to you. In the Times, you know, had struck me as a bit fed up. So I had to make things clear. You said I'd dropped a brick. I had to apologize."

Coldly she told him, "It seems to me that you have no excuse at all." Now this Jim answered quickly, and with a change of tone his eyes shone with gay resolution.

"Perhaps you're right. After all, I'd no excuse. But I have a reason. I was—"

"No sister, however mouse-like and self-effacing, could be expected to stand more of this. Up I got from that boulder. Decisively I said, 'I'm going, I'll wait for you down there.'"

But out shot Jim's hand and gripped me by the upper arm. "Stop where you are, Mouse. Please. What he got to say, I say before anybody." He faced the girl, "I came over here to the States because I had to find you. I don't think you are quite fair to me. Anyhow, that doesn't alter now. 'I'm going,' I thunder, growing into his next words, 'for perhaps you won't mind so much about that when I tell you what's happened to me this very evening.'"

Then, sudden as the gleam that ran across London skies on rain-nights, sudden, the lightning! Swift on its heels. "Crash!" pealed the thunder, deafening, terrifying. As the thunder crashed, so close she gave an involuntary little jump, and a twig, catching in the red tie at her throat, tore the loose jumper-neck apart.

There, unmistakable, the gleam of bright fur gleamed on milk-white flesh. The face smug bearing the little green god! Jim's mascot!

Then down upon us, with a clatter, rushed the headlong thunder-rain.

After that all was bright, swift confusion.

"Come on!" shouted Coke, "come now to the caves. To the cave over in the rain."

Jim's hand on my arm. "Here, Mouse, the professor's getting back to the camp in his car. Hurry up!"

I scrambled after him down to the road and saw the gleam of the professor tucked the waterproof rug about me, leapt in, took the wheel.

I looked around for Jim.

"But my brother—"

Geraldine's SHOULDERS

Listen, World!

THE Novelist and the Practical Business Man were having an argument, and I think you'd better listen in.

"I tell you, it's beastly inhumanity," asserted the Novelist. "The whole industrial system is wrong. They don't give a rat for the needs of the individual worker, but they pick the young, strong people for their own selfish profits and let those with dependents go begging. Look at the old men and the widows ousted from their jobs by mere infants—"

"But what else can they do?" said the Practical Business Man. "They should inquire into the status of the applicant for a job and give employment first to married people and those with obligations to meet. They're really twice as sensible and efficient as the youngsters."

"That's a pretty theory but, unfortunately, it isn't true. They're not as efficient. Life ought to be a ripening, strengthening process, but it isn't—not making them more sensible, it usually befuddles what little sense they started with. Instead of responsibly putting them on their mettle, it generally makes them heavy and discouraged."

"You're wrong," cried the Novelist, in exasperation. "You're wrong—profit—profit! Don't you ever think of the people themselves?"

"It's just because the employers do think of the people at large that they can't afford to be so inconsiderate. Incompetence in labor means losses and rising prices. You must help John Smith's five children—"

Here is a strange case: Dear Geraldine:

Have been reading your page for some time, and thought that I'd just drop a line to encourage you in all the things from the same angle, so perhaps our views may differ on some things; but when I see a person who is doing the work we are doing I feel like patting them on the back and saying, "Go to it."

Two years ago, while in another state, I adopted a little orphan boy, then 4 years old. He is an affectionate little fellow, and has gained a place in our hearts. He has been the cause of a great deal of trouble in our home, as we have two little girls of our own, now 6 and 11 years of age. Of course they know he is not their own boy.

I have thought of putting him in an orphanage, but they want $17.50 per month to keep him, and we cannot afford to pay that amount.

If you knew of some good family who would take the little fellow, please let me hear of it. I think it would be the best thing we could do for him.

Begging your pardon for bothering you with our troubles, I am

"WORRIED."

I have never advocated spanking for children, but if ever I should change my attitude on this subject it would be for just long enough to advise a good paddling for the two young ladies mentioned in this letter. However that would hardly be fair, for I doubt if the children themselves are entirely to blame for the attitude shown.

would wager almost anything that if the whole story were told it would be revealed that some older person, possibly some relative, is getting the two little girls against their little adopted foster-brother and probably doing this secretly, hiding behind the children and working on the father's love through the children. Something extremely contemptible is going on and I am powerless to advise without knowing the whole story.

I will say this much, however, whether the little boy is disposed of or not, a very grave problem remains in the person of those two little girls. They are possessed as present by an abominable spirit and unless they are made to see their wickedness of it they will grow up a menace to themselves and society.

The name and address of the sender of this have been retained and will be given on request to anyone interested in asking about the boy.

by employing him, but you'd make life harder for five hundred or five thousand other children."

"And yet, if you'd give John Jones a start so he could get his little place in the country, he'd prove self-supporting and become a good citizen. Are you only going to look at the dollars—doesn't the salvaging of human life count—doesn't character profit count?"

"Surely it counts, and some one ought to protect it and cap it. Some one—the government, perhaps, ought to see that John Jones gets a farm and that Widow Brown doesn't starve because young Mary Ann has taken her job. But the employer can't do it. Don't you see that?"

But the Novelist didn't see and they're still arguing. What do YOU think about it? Write and tell me won't you? I'd like to print some of your answers in the space for the World to mull over.

TO COURT THEY WENT.

"You'd think she'd grow up, some time," said Aunt Caroline. "But no, she's still a more romantic now than she was when she used to get her red wax trapping around in the moonlight looking for yellow night-blooming jasmine, and catching her breath in the dew."

And Cousin Sarah didn't say a word. She just sniffed and looked down.

They do say Cousin Sarah liked Cousin John, herself, when they were both twenty or so, and wouldn't have said "No" if he had asked her to marry him.

And so poor old Sixty-five went home and got his trunk and settled down to live with his relations. He's a well-to-do man is a small way and can live wherever he pleases, and when he dies, of course, some body will inherit his property. It shouldn't be his wife, no, he was bound and determined she shouldn't have the place and all the acres. She'd just turn it into a flower garden and marry some smooth-tongued nobody before John had been in his grave six months.

And when Sixty heard that about the property and the smooth-tongued stranger, she went to court applied for letters of guardianship.

She said she'd worked and saved for forty years and she wasn't going to have a lot of disingenuous relations cheat her out of everything at the last minute.

And so you think happened? The judge was a humorist, being as well as a judge, and he sent for the husband and the wife, together, and he had a good, plain talk with them in his own chamber. He talked about ten minutes, out they walked, arm in arm, on their way to the "movies." It was an educational film—something about sick worms and deep-sea divers. The judge picked it out himself. What do you think they carried with them? An historical hat!

HIS CURE FOR DISCORD.

And they promised the judge to read aloud together, she for the novel and he for the history, and they're going to have sprints on the other, and he'll read at the side porch and geraniums at the kitchen door, and they both took it back about not liking each other for forty years, and the judge says Sixty died and Sixty-five looked as if he were in a war, and they both decided that they were either his relations or her relations for a visit for awhile.

Next Sunday, they're going to the little country graveyard together and to a few red geraniums and white flake daisies to the grave of the little boy who died when both of them were young.

And because the judge was a humorist—as well as a judge.

PERCY By MacGILL

Uncle Wiggly Stories By HOWARD K. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGLY AND THE TRAMP DOG.

Once upon a time, as Uncle Wiggly Longears, the bunny rabbit gentleman, was hopping around, looking for an adventure, he came to a place in the woods where three roads branched off.

"One road went to the left, one road went to the right, and one road went straight on through the middle."

"Let me see, now," said Uncle Wiggly to himself as he twinkled his pink nose. "Which road shall I take? It's quite like a fairy story. If I take the left road I may meet a wicked fairy in the shape of the Woolly Wolf, so I think I'll not take the left road."

And it's a good thing the bunny didn't for, as truly as I'm telling you, the Woolly Wolf was hiding along the left road."

"If I take the road to the right," said Uncle Wiggly, once more twinkling his pink nose, "I may meet a wicked fairy in the shape of the Fuzzy Fox, so I think I'll not take the right paw road."

And it is a good thing the bunny didn't for, lurking on the right paw road was the Fuzzy Fox.

"But if I take the middle road, as they always do in fairy stories," laughed Uncle Wiggly, "I may have a jolly good adventure."

So he took the middle road and he had an adventure and I'm going to tell you about it. Along and along the middle road hopped Uncle Wiggly, the dried leaves rustling under his paw, for this was now the fall of the year and the leaves were beginning to fall from the trees. Many of the trees were bare and Uncle Wiggly could look through their naked branches and see a long distance.

And as the bunny looked he saw, coming toward him what, at first, he thought was a moving scarecrow from a cornfield. "Dear me!" thought Uncle Wiggly to himself. "Perhaps since there is no further use for the scarecrow—the corn having ripened and the crows having come—perhaps the scarecrow has come to life. And that would be a fairy thing, for a scarecrow is only a lot of old ragged clothes stuffed with straw to scare away the crows."

Uncle Wiggly was so sure the ragged thing was a scarecrow that he had started to hop away, that he began to hop away, when, all at once, from the bundle of rags came a gentle voice saying:

"Don't run away from me, Uncle Wiggly. I'll not harm you!"

"Oh, it is alive! It is alive! The scarecrow has come to life!" cried the bunny.

"Of course, I'm alive, being a dog, and a friend of your friend Percival. But I can't help that."

And surely enough, it was a dog inside the torn and ragged clothes of a scarecrow from a cornfield.

"Why—why—what happened you?" asked Uncle Wiggly, sitting down and holding his paw over his pink nose to stop the twinkling. "Are you so poor, and out of work that you have to wear scarecrow clothes? If you are come with me and I'll lend you some of my clothes. And I'll ask Old Dog Percival to give you work so you can earn money for a new suit. Come to my hollow stump bungalow."

"Thank you," said the ragged dog with a smile that showed his white teeth. "But I think I can get back my own clothes soon."

"What do you mean?" asked Uncle Wiggly.

"Well, you see, it was like this," explained the ragged, tattered and torn dog. "I had a good suit and I started out to make a trip and have an adventure. Not far from here I saw a pond of water and I wished to take a bath, as I was dusty from the road. So I took off my clothes and went in swimming."

BY MURPHY

And while I was swimming along came an old Fox and an old Wolf. They took my good clothes between them and ran away, the Wolf with my coat and the Fox with my trousers.

"How unkind!" said Uncle Wiggly.

"Quite shocking!" barked the ragged dog. "Well, I had to get a suit of clothes. Not far away, in a field, I saw an old scarecrow, so I took the clothes off that, dressed myself in them and started out to find the fox and Wolf and get back my regular clothes."

"Do you think you can find them?" asked Uncle Wiggly. "I mean the Fox and Wolf?"

"If I can come to a place where three roads branch off," growled the ragged dog, "I can get the Fox, for he lives along the right paw road. And the Wolf lives along the left road. If I could find that place—"

"I can take you to it!" eagerly cried the bunny. "For I passed it not long ago."

"Show me where it is and I'll tell you how I can catch the Fox and Wolf and get back my coat and trousers," said the ragged dog.

So when the two friends reached the left road, the dog told Uncle Wiggly to hop down it a little distance.

"The old Wolf will run out to catch you," said the dog, "but don't be afraid, for I'll be hiding in the bushes, and as soon as the Wolf comes I'll leap out, nip him and take back my coat."

"I'll do it," said Uncle Wiggly, and he did. Surely enough, out popped the Wolf wearing the dog's good coat.

"Ah, ha! Now I have you!" barked the dog, and he nipped the Wolf and took the coat. In the same way, going down the right road, out came the Fox with the dog's trousers.

"Now for ears!" howled the Fox as he saw Uncle Wiggly. But out of the bushes where he was hiding popped the dog. He nipped the Fox, making the bad chap howl, and took away the trousers.

"Now I am well-dressed again," said the no-longer-ragged dog, as he put on his own things.

"Then please come to dinner at my bungalow," invited Uncle Wiggly, and the dog did. And how Nurse Jane laughed when she heard the story.

So if the cream puff doesn't hide down in the coal bin and look like a chocolate pudding when it comes up to supper, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggly, and the Rub Dub.

ELEVEN INJURED,
CHILD IS DYING,
IN AUTO CRASHESBoy Fatally Hurt As Result of One of Series of Week-End Accidents.

Eleven persons, one of whom, a 6-year-old boy, probably is fatally hurt, are suffering from injuries today as a result of Sunday's automobile crashes.

BENEILLY GREY, 6 years old, of 124 Guerrero street, San Francisco, was knocked down by a jitney bus yesterday at Twenty-fifth and Valencia streets, that city. He was taken to St. Luke's hospital. The driver, Albert Linchner, 1570 Valencia street, was arrested on a charge of reckless driving and released on bail.

JOHN GIBBIN, 1907 University avenue, Berkeley, was seriously injured and three companions escaped with bruises last night when an automobile overturned near Bay Point, Contra Costa county. Gibbin was taken to the Temple emergency hospital.

G. F. JAY, 573 Fifth street, Richmond, was badly cut by flying glass when he lost control of his automobile on San Pablo avenue, Berkeley, yesterday and his machine plunged into a street car. Jay was treated at the Temple emergency hospital.

MRS. R. D. HANAVAN, 369 Pine street, San Francisco, received cuts and bruises last night when the automobile in which she was riding was struck by a street car.

J. L. SOTO, an accountant, 464 Twenty-seventh street, received bruises and lacerations early today when he was struck by an automobile driven by F. E. Lee, 1695 Chestnut street, at Twenty-seventh street and Telegraph avenue.

MAX SENECA, 1265 Sherman street, San Jose, received cuts, bruises and possible internal injuries when his automobile skidded on the wet pavement as he turned out to avoid another car yesterday in San Jose. The machine overturned and Seneca was pinned beneath it.

JOSEPH R. YUILLE, of Santa Clara, and his 16-year-old daughter Frances were hurt when their automobile turned over near the junction, on the San Francisco side of the bay. Both were taken from under the car by passing motorists.

LEE DAGNER, 442 Twenty-fourth street, Oakland, had a narrow escape from drowning last night when his machine plunged through the end of Pearl street, Alameda, and into the estuary.

Babies to Rule at Eastbay Show
As Most Important 'Home Product'

IRGINIA GALLEZ, aged two and one-half years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neal Gallez, Virginia is a contestant for the beautiful silver loving cup to be awarded the healthiest and prettiest East Bay baby in the Baby Show contest at the Eastbay Manufacturers' Exposition, Idora Park, Saturday next.—Boussum photo.

Report Prepared on High School Site

An informal report on San Leandro junior high school sites may be given to the board of education tonight by Secretary and Auditor John W. Edgemond, who has been getting option prices on the tracts which are available for the new school.

Edgemond says that the owners of the sites have shown no haste to reduce prices, and the figures ultimately rendered next week may be the same as were submitted before.

Meantime San Leandro is still divided on the question of where to put the school. Two-thirds of the citizens are in favor of a central site, while the remainder favor the fast-growing and aristocratic Broadmoor tract west of it.

"Final decision will be made next week."

PRIZE OFFERED IN CONTEST TO RAISE STANDARDSilver Cup Chief of Awards
For Best Youngsters;
Exhibits On Display.

The rulers of the Manufacturers' Exposition at Idora Park on Saturday afternoon, October 21, will be the babies of Alameda and Contra Costa counties. Tiny dumpy fists will hold the Exposition sceptre and gurgles will be stern commands. Babies between six months and three years of age will enter the Baby Show to be held on that day, and a silver cup will be awarded to the most perfect baby.

The Baby Show is to be conducted according to modern health standards. Miss Bertha Wright, who has charge of the baby clinic at the Baby Hospital, will also have charge of arrangements on the afternoon of the show. A number of prominent Oakland physicians will examine and judge the little folks.

The development, nutrition and general health of the little ones will be important factors in the contest and the child to whom the silver cup is given will not only be judged the prettiest baby, but must have a perfect health record.

All babies who come through the examination with a perfect health score will receive blue ribbons. Points upon which the youngsters will be judged include skin, hair, eyes, throat, and general condition.

TO AID CHILD WELFARE
The baby show has been arranged as a part of the Manufacturers' Exposition in recognition of the importance of child welfare industrially as well as socially.

In order that mothers and babies may be comfortable during the show convenient quarters will be established for them at the Baby Show Booth in the Exposition Tent.

But while babies are recognized by the exposition management as the most valuable Eastbay product in their potentialities as future citizens, the exposition itself is a revelation of the wide array of factory products turned out by the Eastbay manufacturing plants.

The Oliver Manufacturing Co. is presenting a dishwashing machine which it has designated as the "Wonder Portable" and which is recommended for home, restaurant and hotel use.

Another interesting exhibit is that of "stone-tile," a California waterproof stucco, turned out by Rhodes-Jamieson and Co. This tile

Is really concrete and is turned out in molds manufactured by the Oliver Manufacturing Co. Carroll F. Sample, in charge of the exhibit, declares that it is possible to manufacture the stone-tile as the work of building, a progress.

At the California Cup Company, a well-headed machine is shown in actual operation. Then, too, there is a large array of other products of this concern located at Richmond. Fuse, dynamite caps, cartridge shells and other articles are displayed.

A Schleuter & Co. are displaying the Johnson Washer, an Eastbay manufactured product, along with various other articles.

The San Francisco-Oakland Terminal Railway has an exhibit of more than 450 pairs, turned out by their shops in Oakland and used on the street cars turned out by these shops. Then, too, this concern is presenting the evolution of the modern street car from the horse drawn vehicle of fifty years ago to the electrically propelled car of today.

The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company is driving home the idea that "the telephone is indispensable to modern business as a supplement to mail, telegraph and automobile service." The exhibit booth has been divided into two sections. On one side is shown the up-to-the-minute business man talking via phone to an associate in a distant city. On the other is a vacant desk littered with papers and documents and a card announcing that the desk occupant has gone to call on a business matter, having no telephone he must leave his desk.

For the first time in Oakland the Rickenbacker Six, the motor car manufactured by Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, famous American ace, is on display. R. S. Stockton, who is interesting investors in Rickenbacker motor stock, is in charge. The machine "Eat in the Ring" made famous overseas, is carried on the radiator of the Rickenbacker Six. The car on display is equipped with an Oakland-made trunk carrier.

The Emeryville section is perhaps the most interesting section of the entire show. The Emeryville Industries Association has grouped its members under the banner "A Trip Thru Emeryville." R. S. Hawley, secretary of the association, a member of the Emeryville school board and city engineer of Emeryville, is in general charge of this division.

Among the displays in the Emeryville section are those of the Mercantile Trust Company, controlling seven East Bay branch banks, with Clyde M. Shrader, advertising manager and manager of business extension department, in charge; the Johnson Electric Washing Machine Co.; the California Syrup Extract Co.; the Gardner Electric Co., manufacturers of transformers; the Judson Manufacturing Company, showing structural steel, open-hearth furnace steel and other products; the American Bank; the Western Aluminum Company, manufacturers of cooking utensils.

Paraffine Paint Co., manufacturers of linoleum as well as paints, roofing, wall boards and varnishes; Pacific Manufacturing Book Co., makers of forms, printing and binding; Shell Oil Co.; Bayle-Lacoste, packers of California Cracker Co.; meat Co., meats; Virdin Packing Co., canners of fruits, berries and vegetables; California Bag & Paper Co., paper and card board, bags and carton manufacturers; Peterbilt Co.; Tread Bros., automobile body builders; Oakland Meat & Packing Co.; Sterling Paint Co., paints and varnishes; Emeryville Chemical Co., manufacturers of chemicals of soda and water glass; California Soda Co., soda products; California Cracker Co., crackers, cookies and cakes; Penzance Co., latest concern in Emeryville, which turns out greases, lubricants and oils of various kinds; Morehouse Mustard Co., mustards, sauces and dressings; Simpson Manufacturing Co., screen doors and windows, special patent; Couzens and Ball, Ford dealers; Ray Cook Marble Co., commercial polished marble, and other manufacturers.

Wednesday will be celebrated as Emeryville Day at the show. Entertainment features are special attractions at the exposition. Hawaiian singers and instrumentalists under the direction of Prof. Bohn entertain the visitors inside the "big tent."

Then there is the motion picture producing company from Hollywood, in charge of Ivor McFadden which is filming a play at Idora. Jack Connolly is the star of the cast, assisted by a number of well known Hollywood film actors and actresses.

The Leo Feist trio in song and the world's largest magnavox, an Idora feature, are other instrumentalities that furnish music and fun for the visitors to the exposition.

The big show closes next Sunday night.

'WILD MUSTARD'
HUSBAND FALSE,
REPLIES SONGBIRDMme. Matzenauer Answers
Chauffeur's Divorce Action.

Angered at being served with summons for divorce proceedings instigated by her chauffeur-husband, Floyd Glatzback, Mme. Marguerite Matzenauer, prima donna of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company, who arrived at the Oakland mole yesterday, broke her silence at the Fairmont hotel, San Francisco, today regarding her shattered romance.

Mme. Matzenauer, who arrived here on a concert tour and will return to New York to resume her work at the Metropolitan opera house, branded as "false and absurd" her husband's charges that he was forced to hook her gowns, and accused the former chauffeur of infidelity.

After giving out her statement of what she claims are the facts of the affair, she barricaded herself behind locked doors, refused to see any one, and turned all callers over to her close friend, Mrs. Stella Hammerslough of New York, who is accompanying her on her western trip.

At the same time it became known that Glatzback, the author of "My Prima Donna Wife," has disappeared. For two months he has not been seen in his customary haunts about Del Monte, and it was only when his attorney filed the second divorce petition that he was heard from indirectly.

Mme. Matzenauer does not want him back. The romance of the "orchid" and the "wild mustard" was completely shattered almost a year ago.

The prima donna, who is to appear at the Plaza theater tomorrow, felt that she was being harassed "when informed that she had been ordered to give a deposition on that day."

"I had no intention of reopening this matter or answering any of Mr. Glatzback's accusations at this time," said Mme. Matzenauer, "but now I am compelled as an American citizen and as an artist who has served the American public for eleven years faithfully and as a woman who is dependent upon her career to support not only herself, but also her aged father and her little daughter, Adrienne, to make this statement to the public."

"Mr. Glatzback's articles in the Sunday papers were already threatened last March in a telegram to my lawyer, John Godfrey Saxe, 30 Broad street, New York. He has waited to carry out this threat until now when I am in the state of California to make a concert tour and is trying to persecute me when he knows that I need all my strength for my work before the public. He has also intimidated through his lawyer, Maximilian J. Peyser, that under the California law half of my income during my marriage is due him."

"I have in my possession an original letter written by a woman of Carmel, dated January 19, 1922, in which she states that she is in an interesting condition and commanding him to return to her immediately. Glatzback left me during December, 1924, and visited Carmel at that time. This letter is the real cause of the break in our relations."

"I temporarily canceled my divorce action in New York state solely for the reason that my first duty is to the public and feeling that while this litigation was in progress I could not do full justice to my work. I will now carry out this duty in spite of all Mr. Glatzback's false accusations and persecutions. I trust in the fairness and sense of rightness of Americans to know that I am saying the absolute truth."

Three former city attorneys, Frank D. Stringham, Frank V. Cornish and Earl Sinclair, are at work on the document, assisted by the present city attorney, Lemuel D. Sanderson. Other leading attorneys and law experts of the university are also assisting.

Santa Clara Driver
Hurt in Auto Crash

SAN LEANDRO, Oct. 16.—Manuel Torra, 2005 Main street, Santa Clara, received lacerations of the hands when the automobile in which he was driving crashed into an unidentified machine on East Fourteenth street, near Pelton court, last night. He was removed to the county hospital. His injuries were said not to be serious.

WOMEN ROBBED,
MERCHANT HELD
BY MEX. BANDITSMarauders Demand Ransom
For Business Man of Mexico City.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 16.—(By the Associated Press)—A kidnapping similar to that perpetrated on A. Bruce Bielaski last June occurred yesterday on the road leading from Cuernavaca to Cacahuamilhi, the victim being Francisco Benitez, a wealthy merchant of this city. The holdup occurred in the same spot as Bielaski's and was performed by the same number of bandits and in the same manner. The merchant is being held for ransom. The bandits stripped the women members of the party of their jewelry and sent them back to Cuernavaca to obtain ransom money. They then escaped the merchant with them, escaping to the hills.

Second Production in Dramatic Series.

BERKELEY, Oct. 16.—Following in the wake of the success of "The Second Lady Eanlock," presented as the first production of the Burnham Players, a new dramatic organization of the college city, the presentation of "The Marriage of Kitty" is announced by the same group of artists for November 10 and 11.

The new comedy is adapted from the French play "La Passerelle," and will afford an interesting vehicle for the talented cast selected. Included among the players will be Paul Wright, son of Harold, Bell Wright, famous novelist; Mrs. Virginia Wiles Morgan, a reader in the university extension division; Mrs. Eugene Beardsley Kyle, Berkeley dancer; Miss Laura Straub and Esther Howard, both talented University of California students.

The forthcoming play, like the previous production, will have its setting in the ballroom of the Hotel Claremont. The Burnham Players are being conducted by Mrs. Roger Burnham, who recently came to Berkeley from the Hawaiian Islands.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16.—Henry Cleary, 54 years old, of 2023 Polson street, was slain at an early hour today following a battle with his wife, and two men who went to the latter's rescue are held by the police on charges of manslaughter. They are:

Louis Lury, 29 years old, a cooper, and Frank Serressequi, 31 years old, lodging-house keeper.

It was shortly before 2 o'clock this morning, according to the story told the police by the wife, Mrs. Lillian Cleary, aged 43, that her husband started to quarrel with her. They had a heated argument, after which she says he struck her. When she screamed she claims he picked up a chair and struck her in the face. Her cries finally attracted the proprietor, Serressequi, and Lury.

Cleary is alleged to have fled the house, running out the rear door and escaping into Enterprise alley. He was pursued by the two men, who sought to hold him for the police. The efforts of the pair to prevent his escape, according to the investigating officers, led to another fight, with Cleary getting the worst of the battle and finally falling to the pavement.

He was taken to the Mission Emergency hospital, where it was discovered that his skull was fractured and his nose broken. He died within an hour. Mrs. Cleary was also treated at the hospital for a badly battered face. She was then booked on a vagrancy charge, to be held as a witness. Lieutenant A. R. Dietel of the Mission station took personal charge of the investigation and ordered the three arrests.

Some More Truths.

WOULD you use a steam shovel to move a pebble? Certainly not. Implements are built according to the work they have to do.

Would you use a grown-up's remedy for your baby's ills? Certainly not. Remedies are prepared according to the work THEY have to do.

All this is preliminary to reminding you that Fletcher's Castoria was sought out, found and is prepared solely as a remedy for Infants and Children. And let this be a warning against Substitutes, Counterfeits and the Just-as-good stuff that may be all right for you in all your strength, but dangerous for the little babe.

All the mother-love that lies within your heart cries out to you: Be true to Baby. And being true to Baby you will keep in the house remedies specially prepared for babies as you would a baby's food, hairbrush, toothbrush or sponge.

CASTORIA

Are You Prepared?

A doctor in the house all the time would be a good idea. Yet you can't afford to keep a doctor in the family to keep baby well or prevent sickness. But you can do almost the same thing by having at hand a bottle of Fletcher's Castoria, because it is a wonderful remedy for indigestion, colic, feverishness, fretfulness and all the other disorders that result from common ailments that babies have.

Fletcher's Castoria is perfectly safe to use. It is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. Children cry for Fletcher's Castoria, and mothers recommend it because they have found it a comfort to children and a mother's friend.

If you love your baby, you know how sweet it is to be able to help baby when trouble comes. You cannot always call upon a doctor. But doctors have nothing but good to say of Fletcher's Castoria, because they know that it can only do good—that it can't do any harm—and they wouldn't want you to use for baby a remedy that you would use for yourself.
